MORGAN SMILES AT FIRST TESTS AS 'PUBLIC MAN'

Reaches Paris to Act as Debt Expert.

BY HENRY WALES.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Appearing for the first time in his life in a semi-public role, J. Pierpont Morgan, one of the American unofficial financial experts for the revision of the Dawes plan for reparations, posed today for newspaper photographers. He also freely, though it seemed rather reluctantly, shook hands with journalists when the special train on which Owen D. Young, Thomas W. Lamont, and he arrived.

A horde of newspapermen and cameramen swamped the officials who were on hand to greet the American delegates.

"Wait a minute—hold that," yelled the photographers, and as Mr. Young waited for the flash Mr. Morgan dutifully lined up beside him. He removed a giant cigar from his lips as the cameras clicked.

Stands for More Pictures.

After a couple of shots Mr. Morgan started to leave but the photographers insisted on more pictures.

"One more, wait a minute—stand still," ordered the cameraman, and taking the cue and smiling, Mr. Young and Mr. Morgan stood at attention again.

"Yes, thank you. Had a wonderfully fine crossing. I enjoyed it," said Mr. Morgan, affably. "No, I cannot say how long the conference will last."

Then Mr. Morgan climbed into a limousine and drove off.

Mr. Young greeted old friends of the former conference.

"Plenty of hard work this time," he said. "Of course I feel optimistic but can say nothing now until the conference gets started."

Young Meets Gilbert.

Mr. Young conferred with Seymour Parker Gilbert, agent general of reparations, who is just recovering from his grip, later in the afternoon.

The fourteen delegates of seven powers will meet at lunch tomorrow as guests of Emile Moreau, president of the Bank of France, one of the French delegates.

Despite the statement of President Coolidge and Mr. Young's silence, opinion here favors Mr. Young as chairman of the conference. It is reported that M. Moreau will state at the luncheon tomorrow that all colleagues unanimously insist that the American take the post.

Experts Ready for Work.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The assembling of the keenest financial brains of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan, and Germany, with the object of settling once for all the extent of Germany's obligations to the allies of the world war, was completed today.

J. P. Morgan, Owen D. Young, and Thomas W. Lamont, the unofficial representatives of the United States, brought a staff of 34 with them. Mr. Morgan, who stands out in the minds of Frenchmen as the personification of the power of money, remained in the background at popular receptions at railroad stations and other public places.

The French attitude might be summed up in the statement that Germany must pay France or this country cannot pay the United States. Yet any solution by bookkeeping methods, such as wiping off France's debt to America in return for cancellation of Germany's indebtedness to France would be looked on here with the utmost disfavor.

Confers with Belgians.

Several Belgians were present this evening at a meeting held in the Paris quarters of the Morgan bank. This fact was interpreted as showing the desire of the American delegates to be entirely impartial, because hitherto Belgium has been committed to the French stand that Germany should pay sufficient to cover all damages to occupied territories as well as amounts owed to the debts incurred by the allied governments. This viewpoint has been considered somewhat antagonistic to the reputed willingness of England and America to grant Germany a reduction in the grand total.

The task before the experts is to find a satisfactory compromise between the number of dollars which Germany says she can pay, and the amounts which the allies, headed by France, aver she is capable of paying. There is a tremendous discrepancy between these totals, yet the Americans profess confidence in an amicable outcome.

"Morgan can settle it," said one high financier this evening.

Say Bank of England Controls Policies.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—There is to be an investigation by congress of the subserviency of the federal reserve system of the United States to the Bank of England, the governor of which, the Rt. Hon. Montagu Collet Norman, procured the action by the federal reserve board to check stock speculation in this country for the purpose of halting the flow of gold from London.

The inquiry will be made by the house committee on banking and currency, the chairman of which, Representative Louis T. McFadden, and ranking members discussed a program of procedure at a conference this evening. It was stated afterward that no definite decision had been reached. The prevailing sentiment favors a comprehensive inquiry into the prerogatives the reserve board has assumed to regulate security loans.

Leaders Counsel Caution.

The stock market slump on the first day of trading following the reserve board warning against speculation caused the leaders at the capitol to counsel caution against rocking the boat in financial waters at this time. For this reason the investigation may be postponed until the recess of congress.

Mr. Norman sailed from New York tonight on the Majestic, having accomplished what he came for, though not wholly. It transpires that what he wanted to induce the federal reserve system to do was to reduce the rediscount rate, which is now five per cent, except in the far west, where it is 4½ per cent.

To assist in this campaign he brought with him Walter W. Stewart, the $50,000 a year American financial expert whom Mr. Norman took to London a couple of years ago because of his knowledge of the federal reserve system in which he received his training.

Finds Task Impossible.

When Mr. Norman came to America ten days ago the Bank of England discount rate was 4½ per cent and England was losing gold as a result of the attraction of investment funds by the higher interest rate in this country. If Mr. Norman could get our reserve banks to reduce the rediscount rate to four or even 4½ per cent the flow of gold from London would be halted.

He soon found, however, that it was impossible to procure a reduction of the American rate. He was informed that he might count himself fortunate if it were not found necessary to raise, instead of lowering, the rate because of the stock market situation.

What he got in the end was the next best thing—action by the federal reserve board to check stock market speculation which would tend to halt the upward trend of interest rates and perhaps make it unnecessary to advance the rediscount rate again. He realized, however, that it would not be sufficiently effective at once to stop the flow of gold from London and the further decline of sterling exchange.

London Forced to Raise Rate.

He therefore was compelled to cable London that as a result of failure to obtain the full concession he sought it would be necessary to raise the Bank of England discount rate to 5½ per cent for the purpose of checking the flow of money from London to New York. The rate was raised yesterday.

Much criticism of the federal reserve board was heard at the capitol during the day. Some senators and congressmen held to the view that the board had exceeded its powers in interfering in security trading, particularly in the absence of evidence of inflation. Others, while commending the action as better late than never, contended that it should have been taken a year ago.

That the board did not act until the step was sought by Mr. Norman to ease the British financial situation was pointed to as proof of the subserviency of the board to the Bank of England. It was recalled that the action of the board in 1927 reducing the rediscount rate, with unfavorable economic consequences in this country, was taken under identical circumstances at the instance of Mr. Nor-

Wife of Fokker Plane Designer Leaps to Death

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Viola Fokker, wife of Anthony H. G. Fokker, widely known inventor, designer and builder of aircraft, died tonight in a fall from her fifteenth story bedroom window overlooking Riverside drive.

She had returned from Presbyterian hospital, where she had been suffering for some time with a nervous ailment, a few hours earlier. She was 29 years old.

Mr. Fokker Overwrought.

Mr. Fokker, so overwrought that he had to be guarded from a fate similar to his wife, told the police that she had chided him for not paying more attention to her. He had felt drowsy after an airflight during the afternoon and had fallen asleep on the twin bed next to his wife's.

The police gathered that while he was dozing, Mrs. Fokker had called the maid and told her to fetch Mr. Fokker's dinner to the bedroom. When the maid brought in a service table, her mistress asked her for a glass of water.

The maid's return woke the inventor, and both instantly realized that Mrs. Fokker had disappeared from the room. She had been in night dress. The window was open. The police record asserts that Mrs. Fokker had jumped to her death. Detectives are investigating.

Seen Frequently at Flying Fields.

Mrs. Fokker was seen frequently at the flying fields with her husband, and last spring accompanied him on a flight to the Pacific coast in a new three motored air liner of the Fokker make.

Mr. Fokker was born in Java, of Dutch parents, and became widely known during the war through the pursuit plane he designed for the German army. Later he came to this country, became a citizen, and is known as one of the most prominent builders here. He designed Commander Byrd's trans-Atlantic plane.

LINDBERGH LANDS 165 LB. SAIL FISH OFF CANAL ZONE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEARL ISLANDS, off Panama, Feb. 8.—It is doubtful whether Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's ocean flight thrilled him more than when this afternoon, following a half hour's grappling with a monster sailfish, he landed it with a gaff. The sailfish weighed in this evening at 165 pounds. It put up a battle against rod and line to which many Isthmian fishermen would have surrendered, or at least accepted help.

RESCUES CHILD FROM DROWNING IN MUDDY BASIN

Shirley McGuire, 20 month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire, 3443 Jackson boulevard, was rescued last night from possible death in a muddy catch basin near her home by Dave Richards, 25 years old, of 3441½ West Jackson boulevard.

The child fell into the basin, containing six feet of mud and water, when she ran ahead of her mother to meet her father, who awaited them in their automobile in front of the home. The mother heard the screams of her child and fainted. Richards came running out of his apartment, armed with a large knife, thinking that a dog was attacking the child.

He descended into the manhole into which the child had fallen head first, the upper part of her body becoming imbedded in the slush. After some difficulty he extricated the girl and pushed her to the street level.

Convict Keyes and 2 Others in California

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Ex-District Attorney Asa Keyes, who, in his 25 years as assistant and chief prosecutor of Los Angeles county, sent hundreds to San Quentin, tonight was found guilty by a jury, which sends him there himself.

Keyes and two co-defendants, Ben Getzoff and Ed Rosenberg, were found guilty of conspiracy to give and accept bribes while Keyes was in office as prosecutor and Rosenberg was on trial as one of the defendants in the $35,000,000 wrecking of the Julian Petroleum company. The penalty is one to fourteen years in prison. Sentence will be pronounced Monday.

The jury of ten women and two men returned its verdict shortly before 10 o'clock this evening after having deliberated less than three hours.

Keyes Charges a Plot.

The jurors' verdict was a great blow to Keyes, who spent almost all of last Wednesday in a fervid appeal to the jurors not "to sacrifice me in a political plot." Keyes trembled as the verdict, "guilty as charged," was read, and collapsed into his chair. Rosenberg fainted.

Keyes and his attorneys, five of them, had not expected the conviction of the prosecutor who sent Clara Phillips, Kid McCoy, Dorothy MacKay and Edward Hickman to their fate in San Quentin. They had announced that they expected an acquittal or a hung jury.

Plan for an Appeal.

Keyes counsel headed by William Beirne, Judge Rush, Paul Schenck and LeComp Davis immediately moved for an appeal. Before such a motion can aid Keyes, however, the former ex-prosecutor must face the ordeal of another trial on charges the same as those which brought tonight's verdict.

Keyes goes on trial in March on accusations of participating in a conspiracy to give and accept bribes in the prosecution of A. I. Lasker, convicted of swindling.

Evanston Girl to Wed at Injured Father's Bedside

The wedding of Miss Arlene Stedem, daughter of Dr. Frank P. Stedem, insurance examiner, 1804 Sherman avenue, Evanston, to Robert Duncan of Detroit will take place in the Evanston hospital at 4:30 this afternoon at the bedside of the bride's father. Dr. Stedem, both of whose legs were amputated some years ago following injuries in a railroad accident, was hurt in an automobile accident on Jan. 30. No guests will be present at the ceremony, which will be performed by Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston.

Cop Arrested for Shooting Cafe Owner

Policeman Albert Dwyer, assigned to the Rogers Park station, was arrested early this morning and locked up on a charge of shooting and probably fatally wounding John Boyle, owner of the Rosemont restaurant at 6302 Broadway. The shooting occurred early yesterday in the restaurant, but it was not until late last night that Dwyer was taken into custody.

Several hours after the shooting Acting Captain John O'Brien received an anonymous telephone call to the effect that Boyle had been wounded by a policeman. He notified Deputy Commissioner Thomas Wolfe and they started an investigation. Some time later an unidentified stranger appeared at the station with a policeman's star which he said had been found on the floor of the restaurant. It was Dwyer's star, and he was taken into custody.

Taken to Evanston Hospital.

Immediately after the shooting, Capt. O'Brien learned, Boyle was taken to the home of Henry Gavigan, an employé. Gavigan called Dr. Adolph Held and the physician took the wounded man to St. Francis hospital in Evanston. Boyle had been shot three times and his condition was reported to be critical. He refused to make any statement concerning the shooting, even when told his chance to recover was slight.

According to Dwyer, the shooting was an accident. He said he stopped at the restaurant on his way home from the station and was admitted by Gus Steader, a waiter. Inside he found Boyle fighting with Charles Lavin, a policeman from the Summerdale station, Dwyer told Capt. O'Brien. Police were sent to Lavin's home to bring him in for questioning.

Turns on Policeman.

Dwyer pulled the men apart, he said, and was attempting to pacify them when Boyle turned on him and tried to take his pistol. In the struggle for the weapon it was discharged three times and all the bullets struck Boyle. Capt. O'Brien believes it was in this tussle, too, that Dwyer's star was torn from his coat and fell to the floor, where it was picked up by the stranger and used to trace the policeman.

Steader also was questioned by the police but they found his story incoherent, they said.

Boyle, 55 years old, was formerly a policeman and active in north side Democratic politics, according to Capt. O'Brien. His restaurant was said to be a rendezvous for politicians. According to the police, he is the owner of several soft drink parlors on the north and northwest sides. His home is above the restaurant.

STEWART HAS NEW JOB LINED UP, N. Y. HEARS

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, will associate himself with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation in the event that John D. Rockefeller Jr. succeeds in his effort to remove him from office at the annual meeting of stockholders on March 7, according to a report in Wall street today.

60 Families Driven Out by Flat Building Fire

Albert Brisky, 51 years old, was rescued from a third floor apartment by a fireman early this morning when he was overcome by smoke in a fire that damaged the apartment building at 7541 Eastlake terrace last night. Brisky was carried to safety by Fireman Harry Kill of engine company 70. He was revived by an inhalator squad. Occupants of sixty apartments were driven to the street by smoke that filled the building. The blaze started in the apartment of Attorney George Landon on the first floor while he and Mrs. Landon were absent. The damage was estimated at $5,500.

REACH VERDICT AND RETIRE FOR NIGHT'S SLEEP

Finding to Be Made Known Today.

The jury in the rum conspiracy case against Ald. Titus A. Haffa and four co-defendants apparently reached a verdict last night. The verdict will be opened in the court of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson at 10 o'clock this morning.

The case was submitted to the jury at 3:30 yesterday afternoon, and after waiting two hours Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, who presided at the trial, ordered the jury locked up for the night with instructions to seal their verdict and deliver it to Judge Wilkerson this morning. Judge Lindley then departed for Danville, where he was called by the illness of a son.

At 8:30 last night the jurors went out to supper, and instead of returning to the jury room they went to bed. From this it was judged that they had completed their discussions and had arrived at a verdict.

Case Ends Suddenly.

The case came to a close unexpectedly when defense attorneys waived closing arguments after Assistant United States District Attorney Allan Healy had given a thirty-minute resume of the evidence for the government. Judge Lindley immediately began issuing his instructions.

First explaining the nature of the indictment the court enumerated the eleven counts against Haffa and the alleged partners, dwelling particularly on the major count, which charges "conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law."

"There is no question of a conspiracy on the part of some one to violate the prohibition law," said the judge. "The defendant Sam Simon has admitted he bought and sold liquor. The defendant Edward Hug also said from the witness stand that he had obtained alcohol for a government agent.

"Your duty is only to find these defendants guilty or not guilty, based strictly upon the interpretation of the law given you here. You are not to be concerned whether these men are punished severely or not in case you find them guilty. That is an unpleasant responsibility the gentleman on the bench must assume."

Court Reviews Testimony.

Passing on to the testimony, the court reviewed parts of it specifically, especially the contradictory points.

"You must remember in considering the evidence," the court said, "that it is not necessary that the government prove an expressed agreement on the part of the defendants to conspire against the prohibition law. It is sufficient only that it be proved that there was an understanding, an arrangement, or a scheme, in which each participated and assented to for the purpose of violating this law."

The court briefly sketched the testimony of Special Intelligence Agents James Donahue and John Conwell, who came to Chicago to investigate reports that a $5,000,000 liquor ring was operating on the near north side. "These men are not to be criticized because they used assumed names," the court said. "The kind of violations they investigated are usually carried on behind closed doors."

Recalls Gambling Offer.

The judge recalled the agents' testimony that they had met Haffa and that he had offered to find quarters for Donahue to open a gambling joint. Haffa, Donahue had testified, had spoken on that occasion of his intention to have the police captain of the district removed because he wouldn't stop his officers from collecting tribute from bootleggers.

"If this statement is true," said the court emphatically, "Haffa had the lowest conception of public duty. What a travesty of justice!"

Referring to a conversation the agents testified they had with Simon in which Simon said "the police want everything from us," Judge Lindley again said, "If this, too, is true, what a travesty is revealed! And Simon admits it—there is no question about it, I imagine."

Takes Whack at Auto Stars.

The court then spoke of the evidence that the agents had purchased two stars for their automobile reading "Official, City of Chicago," from Haffa's henchmen, Albert P. Bauer, former Lincoln park commissioner, who pleaded guilty at the beginning of the trial. "And anybody could get these stars by paying ten dollars for them," the court told the jury with emphasis. "Haffa himself said that from the witness stand."

tection money," mentioned in Simon's statement to Donahue, as "corruption money to police officers and to prohibition agents."

Turning his attention to the defense testimony, the court referred to Haffa's testimony that he had had only a slight financial interest in the El Patio café, where the alderman is alleged to have offered to rent Donahue rooms for gambling.

Discusses Haffa's Ownership.

"Haffa says it was only a slight interest, but another witness this morning tells you Haffa owned the cafe and paid the rent." Judge Lindley was referring to the testimony of Harry Weinstock, who said that Haffa not only owned the place but had hired him to run it for him. "We'll be rich in a year," Weinstock said Haffa told him.

Judge Lindley passed to the testimony of three of the defendants, Hug, Simon, and Joseph Bagheria, alleged president of the syndicate, that they had owned a building at 1530 North Halsted, where it is claimed the three operated the still with Henry Murray's help, all under the direction of Haffa.

The court commented on the assertions of the five that Charles Geller, who claims he built a still for the syndicate there, had actually operated the still himself unknown to them until neighbors told them, at which time he tried to blackmail them for $3,000.

"You must ask yourselves, gentlemen," Judge Lindley said, "if it is reasonable to assume that these men allowed Geller to threaten them if he was violating the law. Of course, you and I know that if he was violating the law a word from any one of these men would have been sufficient to quiet him. You must inquire, gentlemen, if such testimony is reasonable."

Witness Accuses Officials.

Earlier in the day the testimony of Weinstock had given a room full of court fans several sensations.

"How about liquor violations?" Weinstock said he asked Haffa, when Haffa hired him to run the El Patio.

"That's all right," the alderman was said to have answered, "I'll take care of that with the commissioner." Then, somewhat grudgingly, Weinstock added, "Commissioner Beitler." Henry C. Beitler was United States Commissioner until about a year ago, when he failed of reappointment.

Later Weinstock brought former State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe's name into the record.

"Did Haffa say anything about protection?" Weinstock was asked. "Yes," was the answer. "He said he was friendly with the top, with Crowe, and his office. Haffa said Crowe had spent half a million dollars for a $15,000 a year job and he had to get his money back some way."

On the stand Thursday, Haffa testified that he had never taken a drink in his life. Yesterday First Assistant United States District Attorney John E. Northlup asked Weinstock, "Did you ever see Haffa drink?"

SMALL REGIME WIPES OUT FUNDS IN QUITTING JOBS

Two Emmerson Aids Find Appropriations Gone.

BY CARL WARREN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Two new state department heads, recently appointed by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, today revealed that funds supposed to be available for expenditure by their offices were virtually wiped out by the eleventh hour activities of the outgoing Small administration.

Harry H. Cleaveland, new director of public works and buildings, had on his desk a report showing that less than $4,000,000 of the $100,000,000 highway bond fund will be available for new contracts in 1929, while Ralph Bradford, director of conservation, said he would have difficulty meeting the actual expenses of his office until July 1, although his pay roll was cut by Gov. Emmerson's order to lop off unnecessary employés.

Small Let Many Contracts.

Although approximately $23,000,000 in road bonds are left unsold, according to Mr. Cleaveland's report, approximately $18,000,000 of this amount is already appropriated, while incidental expenses will eat up a share of the balance. During the last five weeks of the Small administration highway contracts totaling $6,500,000 were awarded.

"The real situation is that we have practically no money at all unless there are new revenues," said Mr. Cleaveland. The new revenue hoped for is the income from Gov. Emmerson's proposed gasoline tax.

The department of conservation, Mr. Bradford explained, was stripped of funds by a $56,000 contract let by the Small administration a few days before its retirement for fish and game preserve property in Champaign county. Although warrants for the land were issued, they have been held up in the auditor's office and efforts are being made to stop payment and return the $56,000 to the department.

Real Conservation Needed.

"We are going to need all of it to get through the next three or four months," said Mr. Bradford. "We had only $34,000 on hand Feb. 1, and the fees collected will be only about $12,000. It requires $40,000 a month to run the office, so we may have to dismiss some employés."

Reports were current here today that the next appointment of Gov. Emmerson may be that of former Lieutenant Governor John G. Oglesby to a cabinet post, possibly as director of agriculture. Mr. Oglesby, a farmer in Logan county, was in charge of the agricultural campaign in behalf of Herbert Hoover. Others mentioned for the agriculture post have included B. H. Davidson, former director of the department; Phil Haner, Taylorville, and A. C. Everingham, formerly connected with the Illinois Agricultural association.

Gov. Emmerson was confined to his home this morning, but announced through his secretary that there will be no appointments for several days. Despite a bad cold, the governor left late in the day for Decatur, where he will officiate at the dedication of a new Masonic temple in that city tonight.

DE VALERA TALKS IN GAELIC, BUT ULSTER JUDGE SAYS "JAIL"

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Eamon de Valera tonight began serving a sentence of one month's imprisonment after his conviction on a charge of violating the civil authorities' act forbidding his entry into northern Ireland territory.

At the conclusion of the evidence regarding the republican leader's arrest on Tuesday at the Ulster border, Patrick J. O'Donohue, the presiding magistrate, gave Mr. De Valera an opportunity to speak in his own defense. The defendant, who had been taken off the Dublin train at Newry while en route to Belfast to open a Gaelic bazaar, replied in Gaelic.

"Irish is not the language of these courts," the magistrate responded. "The official language is English."

The crown solicitor then interposed with the remark that Mr. De Valera understood English and was merely play-acting when he spoke Gaelic.

In passing sentence the magistrate said Mr. De Valera by his demeanor not only failed to offer any reason or excuse, but seemed to have flouted the whole administration of justice in northern Ireland, and expressed the belief that the defendant was there in consequence of his own deliberate act.

He stated that under the act magistrates could impose a term of imprisonment up to two years and a heavy fine, but in the hope that the defendant might even yet reconsider his attitude, the magistrates had confined themselves to sentencing him to one month's imprisonment.

YACHT BEARING FIELD MUSEUM PARTY MISSING

Anxiety for the safety of the Pacific expedition of the Field museum on the yacht Illyria in the South seas was caused yesterday when reports from the orient revealed that no radio reports from the vessel had been received for 26 days. The American embassy at Tokio requested the authorities at Manila to aid in a search for the missing ship.

The anxiety was somewhat relieved when it became known that two messages had been received more recently in the United States. Stephen C. Simms, director of the Field museum, said last night that he had heard from the expedition about a week ago, and Miss Katherine M. Macmillan, sister-in-law of Capt. Seldon B. Boutiller, skipper of the ship, reported the receipt of a message on Monday night.

Cornelius Crane in Charge.

The party, on a 30,000 mile cruise to study marine life in the South Seas and including a dozen scientists under the command of Cornelius Crane of Chicago, son of Richard T. Crane Jr., a trustee of the Field museum, sailed from Boston on Nov. 16, via the Panama canal to the south Pacific. The yacht was last heard from off Turk island in the Caroline group. Ships in this vicinity are endeavoring to locate the vessel through radio calls.

The Illyria, a two masted sailing vessel, is also equipped with a 300 horse power auxiliary Diesel engine. It was designed especially for the scientific expedition and included a radio powerful enough to remain in communication with home stations.

Noted Scientists in Party.

In addition to Mr. Crane, the Illyria carried Karl P. Schmidt, assistant curator of reptiles at the Field museum; Dr. Albert W. Herre of Leland Stanford university; Dr. W. L. Moss of the Harvard Medical school and other scientists. The expedition is seeking the world's only "sea serpents," marine snakes, giant tortoises and rare birds and fishes.

The departure of the Illyria from Boston was delayed by fire, which destroyed part of the equipment. Such an accident on the day of sailing is looked upon by superstitious sailors as presaging misfortune on the voyage.

HOTEL SEEKS TO HALT PROJECT OF ART INSTITUTE

Stevens Asks for Writ Against Building.

A bill for an injunction was filed in the Circuit court yesterday to block the construction of a proposed $5,000,000 addition to the Art institute. The complainant is the Stevens hotel. The south park board is a defendant with the Art institute.

The hotel, which is advertised as the largest in the world, contends that as owners of property abutting Grant park, on Michigan avenue between 7th and 8th streets, it has a right to insist that the land east of the boulevard be preserved for park purposes only. The light, air and unobstructed view of the lake were included in the purchase price of the realty when it was bought on Jan. 17, 1925, by James W. Stevens, the bill points out.

Cite History of Park.

The history of Grant park, with its many lawsuits on this particular question, is cited in the pleading to support the hotel's contention.

The original property owners surrendered riparian rights for the creation of the "Lake Front park," as it was then known, with the condition that the land would always be used for park purposes only.

The Illinois Central railroad, which had tracks on the site, was barred from erecting any building on the park by a decision of the Supreme court on Sept. 14, 1896 in a suit brought by the city of Chicago. On Feb. 3, 1902, the state was enjoined in a bill brought by A. Montgomery Ward from putting an armory in the park. On Feb. 23, 1907, the same plaintiff obtained a similar injunction against construction of the Field Museum of Natural History.

Area Is Defined.

The area covered by these old court orders is from Randolph street to Park Row, between the lake and Michigan avenue, and it is this area that the Stevens hotel is asking the Circuit court to protect against an addition to the Art institute.

The city council granted the institute permission to build on a 400 foot frontage on Mar. 30, 1891. Attorney George P. Merrick, representing the hotel, doubts the legality of this permit but does not attack it.

On Jan. 18, 1928, the south park board granted a permit for the institute to extend its building 800 feet. The 120,000 square feet now occupied by the art building is worth $16,000,000 and the new allowance, 400,000 square feet, is worth $40,000,000, the bill mentions incidentally.

On Mar. 22, 1928, Attorney Merrick addressed the park commissioners, charging that they had acted illegally in granting the additional land to the Art institute. Nevertheless, the permit stood.

COURT ASSIGNS ELLER TRIAL TO JUDGE WILSON

State, Witnesses Gone, Moves for Delay.

The conspiracy indictment against Morris Eller, city collector, and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller of the Superior court, was definitely assigned for trial to Judge Francis S. Wilson of the Appellate court yesterday afternoon. The lone assignment of the Eller case to Judge Wilson was over the protest of the special prosecuting staff of First Assistant State's Attorney Frank J. Loesch.

Although the Ellers succeeded in having the case assigned to a trial judge it was indicated by Special Prosecutor Grover C. Neimeyer that they would not be so successful in obtaining a trial. He intimated to Chief Justice John J. Sullivan of the Criminal court that the prosecution will not proceed to trial with the Ellers until forced to do so by law.

The prosecution is not in a position to try the Ellers because the three chief witnesses are not now available. Two of them have fled from Chicago while a third, Edwin Johnson, recanted his testimony and took a sentence of one year in the county jail for contempt.

The Ellers could have had a trial last fall with fifteen of their henchmen, who were found guilty of conspiracy to commit election day crimes. At that time the Ellers took a change of venue.

"We ask that the two recent kidnaping indictments involving the Eller henchmen, the same men convicted of conspiracy last fall, be assigned to Judge Wilson along with the Eller case," said Prosecutor Neimeyer.

Defense Attorneys Thomas D. Nash and Michael Ahern argued that the motion had to do only with the Eller case and that inasmuch as Judge Wilson agreed to take only one case, it should be the Eller case. In this Judge Sullivan agreed.

Under the law the Ellers must be tried within four terms of court from the time they make a demand. The state, however, can be allowed an additional 60 days on a showing that witnesses have disappeared or for some valid reason a continuance is necessary to the administration of justice. The demand for trial having been made in January, the prosecution can, if it desires, wait until June.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Duffek, Emory Drew, and Henry Hintemus, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Frank Comerford.

Claude Noxan, indecent liberties, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

John Brigadni and John Kulki, murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years each in the penitentiary by Judge John P. McGoorty.

LEGISLATORS EYE CITY'S 14 MILLION IN WATER BONDS

State Invited to Sit In at Finance Parley.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The city has issued and sold to the public about $9,000,000 worth of water certificates, it was learned yesterday. It has authorized the issuance of $4,000,000 more in water certificates which City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson has refused to buy. He questions the validity of the issue.

A bill is pending before the general assembly to validate the $4,000,000 issue or the $9,000,000 issue, or both, according to information given the aldermen who are attempting to straighten out the city's financial affairs and provide money for operation of the local government this year. They have been told that there will be no question about validating the $9,000,000 bonds sold to the public, but that a group of legislators will call on City Controller George K. Schmidt on Monday morning "to ascertain all the facts relating to the situation."

Aldermen to Meet Today.

The council subcommittee on city loans and deposits, headed by Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [13th], will attempt to bring all the pertinent information on this subject out into the open at a meeting at noon today.

The subcommittee session, however, was called for the primary purpose of getting definite information on the tax and financial tangle of all the tax expending bodies in the county, particularly with reference to Chicago.

"All the taxpayers and rent payers," said Ald. McDonough, "should know how we are running financially and where we are headed. They are stockholders, they will have to pay the bills, and should know our situation. If our financial troubles affect downstate, the citizens there also should be informed accurately, not only on our condition but how and to what extent that condition affects them."

Gov. Emmerson Invited.

With this in mind Ald. McDonough invited Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and other state officials to attend the meeting. Invitations also were sent to officials of the large county and city tax spreading and spending agencies. Those who have been asked to be present, in addition to Gov. Emmerson, are:

Oscar Nelson, state auditor.

Omer N. Custer, state treasurer.

Ald. McDonough explained that he deemed the situation so important that he believed that a frank discussion would be highly beneficial to all concerned.

Explains the Situation.

"Here is the situation as it has been represented to us," explained Ald. McDonough. "The city and school board, the county and other governmental agencies must issue tax warrants to obtain money with which to operate this year. The Chicago banks have said they now hold an estimated $140,000,000 of these warrants. They have estimated that $150,000,000 more will be issued this year, which they say they cannot buy. But they have suggested two plans by which the financing may be done.

"In the meantime we have had to go to New York and borrow $15,000,000 at 5¾ per cent interest. The bankers emphasize the delay in paying last year's warrants and predict it will be 1930 before payment is made. The local governmental agencies should have an authoritative estimate of the time required to get out the 1928 assessment roll. We must have that before we can talk intelligently to the bankers about their suggestions.

"Therefore, I shall ask the assessors and reviewers to estimate how much time they will require for their work. I have also asked Mr. Malone to appear and estimate how much time his state tax commission will take.

Hopes for State Questions.

"The state officials have been invited because the Springfield press dispatches indicate that no legal tax roll can be made in downstate counties until the muddle in Cook county is straightened out. I hope the governor or his representative sees fit to question not only the tax assessing bodies but also the representatives of the city, park boards, sanitary and county boards on their methods of getting cash on which to operate.

"There is more information which it is essential that the city shall have before starting conferences with the bankers, but we will attempt to get that on Monday, if we do not have time at this first meeting.

To illustrate, there are several bills pending before the state legislation on the tax tangle. Reports indicate that Gov. Emmerson, Senator James J. Barbour of Chicago and Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet have a suspicion that will not completely untangle the mess, and may mix it up more. If that view is correct it will be an fine how-do-you-do for us when we confer with the bankers. Another piece of information we must have is an authoritative statement of when the 1929 tax assessment will be finished."

CITES GRANDMOTHER'S CASE IN RETURNING BRIDE TO HUSBAND

Superior Judge Worth E. Caylor yesterday cited his grandmother's matrimonial experience as precedent for returning a 16 year old bride to her Lochinvar husband, 22 years old. John Giangiacomo, 6319 South Artesian avenue, came into court to get his wife, Irene, from her mother, Mrs. Anna Hoff, 8934 South Marshfield avenue.

"He virtually kidnaped her," the mother complained. "He came into church two weeks ago and took her away from me, eloping to Crown Point. I didn't find her until last Sunday, when I took her back home. She is only a baby and I want to keep her with me."

"My grandmother was only 15 years old when she was married," Judge Caylor reflected. "What does Irene want to do? Do you love your husband?"

"I love him," the girl answered, "and I want to go back to him."

"Do you love him more than you do your mother?" Mrs. Hoff demanded.

"Don't answer," the judge interrupted, and then turned to the mother. "Of course, she loves both of you. My grandmother was successfully married at 15, and I'm going to send Irene back to her husband."

MOTHER OF NINE, 77, BECOMES 4TH WIFE OF MAN, 73

Mrs. August Pross, 77 years old, the mother of nine children, became the fourth wife of William Rieve, 73 years old, of Aurora, yesterday. The ceremony was performed in Aurora by the Rev. A. M. Loth, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church. Two of Mr. Rieve's former wives died and he divorced the third a year ago.

3 EX-COPS ADMIT LAGRANGE THEFT; CHIEF RESIGNS

Three former La Grange policemen were sentenced to from one year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Comerford in Criminal court yesterday when they pleaded guilty to charges of burglary. The ex-policemen, Joseph Duffek, 28 years old, Emory Drew, 28 years old, and Henry Huizinga, 26 years old, brother-in-law of Chief of Police Henry Pullman of La Grange, with whom he lived, robbed the store of George J. Repsold in La Grange of 100 rugs last summer.

All three men were on the police force at the time of the burglary, and in their report to Chief Pullman declared that the crime was of a baffling nature. The chief later caused the arrest of the trio when he received a tip that they had committed the robbery.

Following the sentencing of his brother-in-law, Chief Pullman sent in his resignation to the La Grange village board last night. It was accepted. Byron Greenlee, superintendent of public works, was appointed to act as temporary chief of police.

YOUTH GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER IN AUTO DEATH

One Killed, Girl Hurt at Grade Crossing.

Andrew Knizer Jr., 25 years old, a plumber and steamfitter, 2110 North Lockwood avenue, was found guilty by a jury before Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday of manslaughter in conrection with an automobile accident. It was the first such conviction since 1927, with the single exception of a Negro youth who pleaded guilty last year. The verdict carries a penalty of from one to fourteen years' imprisonment.

Knizer was indicted after his automobile collided on June 10, last, at 68th street and Wentworth avenue with a car driven by Martin Doherty, 24 years old, a salesman, 6726 South Maplewood avenue, who died eight hours later. Knizer, according to testimony, was driving fifty or sixty miles an hour, returning from a dance.

One Killed, One Hurt.

Jean Farmer, 10 years old, daughter of Richard W. Farmer, wealthy head of a tailoring company bearing his name at 16 West Jackson boulevard, was injured, perhaps fatally, yesterday, and the family chauffeur, Berger Ahlberg, 23 years old, Highland Park, was killed by a Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific train that struck their automobile on a grade crossing in Glenview.

The chauffeur was driving the girl from a Chicago school for the deaf to the Farmer estate in Deerfield. The railroad tracks intersect Waukegan road at an angle. The driver evidently first saw the train when a few yards from the crossing. The automobile skidded onto the tracks and was crushed by the locomotive.

Chief of Police J. V. Miller of Glenview took the girl, a deaf mute, to the Evanston hospital. Her skull was apparently fractured, her right leg broken and she seemed to be suffering severe internal injuries.

Gates Not Lowered.

L. W. Coons, president of the village, stated that he had for some time been seeking authorization for a subway under the tracks at the crossing because six persons have been killed there in twenty months.

There were two other automobile deaths yesterday, raising Cook county's 1929 motor toll to 80. The other victims:

Frank J. Benes, 39 years old, 4128 West 21st place. Struck last Tuesday at 22d street and Crawford avenue by an automobile whose driver escaped.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—King George left Buckingham palace at 10:34 a. m. for Craigwell house, Bognor, Sussex, where he will recuperate from his long illness. Queen Mary started for Craigwell house five minutes after the king.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—King George expects to leave Buckingham palace at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow to take up temporary residence at Craigwell house, Bognor, in the hope that the vigorous sea air and sunshine of Sussex downs will repair the ravages of his long illness. Five minutes after the sovereign departs in a specially designed ambulance, Queen Mary will leave the palace and motor by a shorter route to Bognor in order to be able to welcome her husband.

Early watchers at the palace gates knew the royal plans before the bulletin was posted, for a van carrying the king's heavy luggage drove off early. The van carrying his bedroom furnishings left last night. Although Queen Mary decided not to take many pieces of the heavy palace furniture, she has ordered a half dozen familiar pieces transferred in order to provide homelike surroundings. This includes the king's favorite leather armchair as well as his personal bureau and one or two small tables.

A tapestry, an easy chair, a beautiful chest and bric-a-brac stands were transferred from the queen's boudoir, while another large wooden chest contains the royal cutlery, plate, and linen.

COOLIDGE TO SEE AMERICA FIRST ON RETIREMENT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—President Coolidge plans to see the United States before he travels abroad. Reports that the President is considering "doing Europe" after his retirement to private life on March 4 were denied at the White House today. It was asserted that while Mr. Coolidge has received many invitations to visit European and South American countries, none have been accepted.

WEALTH FADES; OLD SALTIS MOB GOES GUNNING

Five Jailed; One Shot; One Sought as Slayer.

The sad fate which has befallen the opulent south side gang of Saltis since their leader, Big Joe, departed from the marts of the beer trade nine months ago with police and federal agents in hot pursuit came to light last night. The depth to which a beer runner will sink to maintain his standard of living was revealed at the detective bureau where five alleged members of the gang were in custody as robbery and burglary suspects. Two others are fugitives, one accused of murder and the other of robbery.

Nine months ago the Saltis gang was supreme in the south side liquor business. Today their erstwhile chief is a prisoner at the Bridewell, serving a 60 day sentence for gun toting which caught up with him just before Christmas after he had eluded searchers for 208 days. And Eddie Piech, one of his lieutenants, lies desperately wounded in the Bridewell hospital. He was shot by a policeman, not in battle but in an attempt to escape from a squad who wanted him for robbery.

Here's the Roll Call.

Thus have the Saltis henchmen fallen and the reason, the police say, can be found in the raids which city and federal authorities have made continually on the gang's stills and saloons since Big Joe went away. The five now held at the bureau are:

The shooting of Piech proved the downfall of the gang. When he was seized the police learned that the men frequented the flat of Risnick. On Thursday night they went there and found Becker with four pistols obtained for his companions' use. Becker told police that he was an employé of the city water extension bureau sponsored by Morris Eller, city collector and boss of the 20th ward.

After Becker's arrest policemen were left in the flat and yesterday they seized Risnick, Bowler and Brecak. The latter two were identified by officials of Ashjian Brothers' rug store at 6836 South Chicago avenue as the men who entered the place on Jan. 23 and carried away $20,000 worth of rugs.

Maczmarek was arrested after he tried to persuade Alexander Stanic, 8559 Burley avenue, not to prosecute the man who robbed him of $800 on Jan. 19. This man, according to Stanic, is Piech.

Accused of Many Robberies.

For weeks Piech had been sought in connection with the robberies of the Savoy ballroom, the Israel Warshawsky residence in Wilmette and the looting of other homes. Last night his five companions were being questioned about these crimes and also about the Cuneo Press pay roll holdup and the daring robbery of the Calumet Baking Powder company office where 300 employés were terrorized by a gang.

Dutch Emmerling, an alleged Saltis gangster, who was acquitted of the slaying of his wife two years ago, is the man sought on a robbery charge. Edward Maciejewski, alias Eddie Mack, another Saltis lieutenant, is being sought as the slayer of Steve Kuczynski, who was shot to death recently in a beer flat at 4915 South Ashland avenue.

SAYS NEARBY CITIES SEE NEED OF WIDER ROADS

They'll Bring Profit in 1933, Hayes Predicts.

Cities within a 150 mile radio of Chicago have awakened to the urgent need of building wide highways leading into Chicago in preparation for the enormous motor traffic to be attracted by the World's Fair in 1933, it was declared yesterday by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. His views were concurred in by officials of the Chicago Regional Planning association.

Mr. Hayes asserted that of the three ways by which visitors will come to the fair—train, airplane and auto—the automobile will be far in the lead. With this fact in mind, the motor club has organized a campaign which has been going on for some time with gratifying results, he declared.

Wider Highways Needed.

"The cities around Chicago in the Milwaukee-Rockford-Peoria-Kankakee circle have begun to realize that if they want to benefit from the World's Fair, they must help to develop adequate highways into Chicago so as to encourage motor traffic," he said. "Many meetings have been held which members of the chambers of commerce and other civic organizations have attended.

"Many communities have officially indorsed the wider road program. They realize that the big problem presented to them by the 1933 fair will be the handling of the tremendous traffic attracted to Chicago. Wider roads should be built at once so that all will be in readiness by 1933.

Whole Area Will Benefit.

"It is obvious also that many of these visitors will stop in outside towns. There they will spend thousands of dollars. The building of wider roads will result in great benefits to the cities in the Chicago area."

Mr. Hayes said he believes that thousands of airplanes will be in use in 1933 to bring visitors to the fair. Acting on this belief, the motor club is contemplating the organization of an aviation department, he said.

Robert Kingery, secretary of the Chicago Regional Planning association, pointed out that many communities in the Chicago area have been lined up to coöperate in the association's wider roads program.

TWO YOUTHS HELD AS ROBBERS.

Oliver Baker, 19 years old, 1527 Wicker Park avenue, and Fred Scheuerman, 21 years old, 3023 Normandy avenue, were held to the grand jury under bonds of $15,000 each by Judge William E. Helander in the Boys' court yesterday when they were arraigned on twenty charges of robbery.

PASSENGER AIR SERVICE TO N. Y. MAY OPEN SOON

A rumor that the National Air Transport company is to open the first all passenger airplane service between Chicago and New York received partial confirmation yesterday from Earle H. Reynolds, president of the company.

Five new Ford tri-motored cabin planes, each with a passenger capacity of 14, have been delivered and are now being tested and used frequently in carrying the air mail over the New York-Chicago segment of the transcontinental line. It is understood that the pilots on the N. A. T. staff are being trained in the new ships in preparation for the opening shortly of the new passenger service.

Mr. Reynolds stated yesterday that daily passenger service between Chicago and the eastern seaboard is part of the National Air Transport's program of expansion, but added that it had not been decided as yet when the service would be inaugurated.

The N. A. T. now flys the mail between Chicago and New York and to the southwest. Occasionally passengers are carried over the eastern leg when the mail shipment is light, but no service exclusively for passengers is provided.

The company is the first to contemplate regular passenger flights to New York. Two transcontinental routes between New York and the west coast are to be opened in the spring, but each follows a course that crosses south of Chicago.

JURY CONVICTS GIRL AS ROBBER DESPITE TEARS

Miss Jean La Monte, 20 years old, a public dance hall instructress, wept before a jury yesterday in Judge John P. McGoorty's criminal court, where she was on trial charged with robbery with a gun. Despite her tears the jurors found her guilty.

Miss La Monte will be sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary—the same sentence to be given to her three boy companions—unless Judge McGoorty later allows her a motion for a new trial.

The youths made every effort to shield the dark haired Jean from punishment. They took all the responsibility for the four robberies with which the quartet were charged, but the jurors, like Assistant State's Attorneys Duane Reed and Clarence Piggott, refused to discard the story of Miss Mona Phelan, 3418 North Springfield avenue, who said the La Monte girl stripped her of her fur coat.

POPE'S POWER AS SOVEREIGN FIXED BY ITALIAN PACT

Vatican Law to Control All Marriages.

ROME, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The last article of the Italo-Vatican treaty of conciliation, to be signed Monday, reads: "The pope acknowledges the kingdom of Italy with the city of Rome as its capital and the house of Savoy as the reigning dynasty."

The treaty begins: "In the name of the most holy and indivisible Trinity, his holiness, Pope Pius XI., and his majesty, King Victor Emmanuel III. of Italy," etc.

The first article declares that the law of guarantees of May 13, 1871, which established the status of the papacy in Rome after the fall of the temporal power, has come to an end.

Acknowledges Pope's Sovereignty.

Following articles acknowledge the complete sovereignty of the supreme pontiff over "the City of the Vatican," with the present boundary enlarged as far as Cavalleggeri gate, following the Vatican walls and comprising St. Peter's square.

Outside "the City of the Vatican" the sovereignty of the pope is acknowledged also over apostolic palaces, churches and institutions.

Within six months the Villa Barberini at Castel Gandolfo, famous for years as the summer home of the popes prior to the "voluntary imprisonment," must be expropriated and delivered to the pope and added to the papal villa there.

Will Enjoy Immunity.

Throughout Italy in all churches and buildings where the pontiff may go he will enjoy immunity. In other words, the laws of the state will be suspended in his favor.

The patrimony and administration, of the holy house at Loreto will be returned to the pope.

The right of extraterritoriality is extended to all residences of cardinals in Rome as well as to the residences of all diplomats accredited to the holy see, who will enjoy the same privileges as those accredited to the king of Italy.

Fixes Indemnity to Vatican.

The treaty is followed by a supplement containing clauses of a financial character, consisting chiefly of formulae for the payment by the Italian government to the holy see of an indemnity of one billion lire in cash [about fifty million dollars] and one billion lire [about fifty million dollars] in government bonds immediately.

The concordat, besides clauses previously made public, contains a prohibition to the clergy against belonging to any political party and acknowledgment on the part of the Italian government of the organization called "Catholic Action," under the control of the bishops and the pope.

Church to Govern Marriages.

Marriage laws are among the matters of great public interest in the treaty. All questions concerning the matrimonial tie are established by the concordat as the exclusive competence of the ecclesiastical authorities.

The original draft of the marriage clauses in the concordat said legal separation would "be tolerated." Later the pope agreed to modify this to "consentita," which means allowed. Such separation, however, can be granted only by state courts.

A learned authority on canon law tonight said divorce as understood in the modern law of France, England or the United States does not exist either in canon law or in the Italian civil code. Both laws, however, admit of complete dissolution of the marriage bond, so that the man or woman is free to contract a fresh marriage in grave specified cases [separatio quoad vinculum] or simply relief of one of the parties from the obligation of living with the other [separatio quoad torum et mensam.]

Permits Legal Separation

This latter corresponds to leggal separation and may be granted in the case of mutual consent of the applicants or if one party exposes the other to grave danger of body or soul or commits adultery. In all other cases the marriage bond is indissoluble and married persons are bound to live together as husband and wife. Canon law uses the word divorce not in its modern sense but as meaning a dissolution of the marriage bond or separation as in the above mentioned cases.

The difference between modern laws allowing divorce and canon law is that the former consider marriage as a civil contract concluded by individuals and dissoluble like any other contract, while the latter proclaims that marriage is a sacrament that no man power can dissolve.

BANDIT BEATEN, DISARMED BY INTENDED VICTIM

Wally Martin, 22 years old, 216 West Garfield boulevard, was captured after being disarmed and bady beaten last night by Homer Smith, 25 years old, proprietor of a gas filling station at 810 East 61st street, when he tried to rob the latter at the point of a nickel plated revolver.

When Martin, who said that he is a painter by trade, approached Smith at the gas station and displayed his gun and ordered him to hold up his hands, Smith leaped at Martin's throat, grappled with him, and wrested the gun away. He then beat nim over the head with the firearm. A doctor was called later to attend to the robber's battered head. Smith held his prisoner until police arrived.

FAIL TO SAVE CHILD'S LIFE.

An inhalator failed to save the life of Dorothy Winder, 5 years old, 3329 South Artesian avenue, who was suffering from pneumonia. The child died two hours after firemen applied the device yesterday.

WOMAN BANDIT USES TEAR GAS TO HOLD UP BANK

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Firing a tear gas bullet in the face of Thomas Witkowski, cashier of the Michigan State Bank of Detroit, a woman bandit grabbed $2,000 in cash and escaped in a waiting auto today at noon.

Entering the bank just before 12 o'clock, the woman walked directly to Witkowski's window and handed him a note demanding $2,000. Then she fired a tear gas bullet from a small pistol. The cashier, choking and partially blinded, shoved the money through the cage door. The woman grabbed it and ran from the gas filled bank.

Repulsed and confused by tear gas, two workmen who turned robbers, were captured by George Springer, Plymouth chief of police, following an attempt to hold up the Plymouth Liberty Starkweather bank.

Ald. Moran's Auto Stolen from in Front of Church

Ald. Terence F. Moran [16th], one of the councilmen who voted against the addition of 1,000 police, yesterday felt the need for adequate protection for the city. He reported to the police that his automobile, parked at the Visitation church Thursday night, had been stolen while his two sons were inside. Four days ago he reported the loss of his dog to the police.

MIAMI'S GAYETY DRAWS NOTICE OF DRY LEAGUE

Plan Little Demonstration Next Week.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Greater Miami, at the height of its season, with visiting millionaires as plentiful as cocoanuts, its racing, gambling, and drinking discreetly arranged with the nation's spotlight upon it because of the presence of the President Elect and other notables, is drawing to itself the attention of the Anti-Saloon league. A little demonstration in a dry way is to be staged next Wednesday.

Conflict of Forces.

While Mr. Hoover is away fishing on the west coast the business committee of the league will hold a luncheon at the White Temple in Miami with Howard Hyde Russell, founder and associate of the league, toastmaster. George W. Morrow, national field secretary; Robert P. Carson, lecturer, and Willis J. Abbott will be the speakers. Mr. Carson will speak on "Amendment 18 and the League's Second Campaign to Obey and Enforce."

Something of an inner, unseen conflict is going on in Florida between those forces that like to attract the spenders to these lovely beaches and balmy, tropical night clubs and those who are more anxious to emphasize the moral aspect of things and let Florida build through its own natural resources.

There is much agitation, for instance, against racing and its attendant gambling and threats are heard that the tracks will be closed.

No Dearth of Good Liquor.

The beaches are crowded with gay and sunburned girls. The clubs and bars are well managed, but there seems no dearth of good liquor. The rum runners of the federal government seem to be tied to the docks most of the time.

The Miami Herald calls attention this morning to the fact that one of Mr. Hoover's callers on Thursday was Don C. McMullen, attorney in Florida for the Anti-Saloon League. He was accompanied by Judge Leo Stalnaker, chairman of the house committee on prohibition and enforcement of the last state legislature. They spent only a few minutes with Mr. Hoover, calling merely to "pay respects," according to Mr. Hoover's secretary.

VAN LENT SENATE FIGHT COMES TO SURPRISING HALT

Witnesses Missing as Prosecutor Appears.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Attorney John Dailey, former state senator from Peoria, called an unexpected halt yesterday in the hearing of the contest of George Van Lent against State Senator George Mendel of the Second senatorial district, one of the west side pocket boroughs.

The taking of evidence in support of Van Lent's petition, begun on Thursday before a subcommittee of the senate committee on elections headed by Charles H. Thompson of Harrisburg in the city hall, was continued yesterday morning. But almost before the afternoon session had a fair start Attorney Dailey asked for a recess until this morning.

Prosecutor at Hearing.

The sudden halt was coincidental with the appearance at the hearing of Thomas A. Dillon, assistant state's attorney, and Charles Center Case, vote fraud prosecutor, who not only were watching the testimony but were having a complete transcript made of it. It was suggested that these facts had something to do with Attorney Dailey's announcement that a number of his witnesses had failed to appear.

Inasmuch as Mr. Dailey had filed several hundred affidavits alleging that fraud had been committed against his client and had said that some 300 witnesses were to be called, his move caused surprise to the subcommittee.

Consults with Client.

Mr. Dailey said that a number of witnesses had failed to respond to summons. He then suggested that, while such testimony might be out of regular order, he might call the contestant, Van Lent. But after a conference with his client he asked for the continuance.

"If we can stop now for the day and resume in the morning," he said, "I believe we really can save considerable time. In the interim we can sift the remaining evidence we have to present and we will agree to conclude by noon tomorrow."

WATER BURSTS 'PIE CRUST' CITY, FLOODING HOMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—London's "pie crust" surface broke through again early this morning, releasing a torrent of water from the bursting of an underground main, flooding several streets in the fashionable Lancaster Gate district, while the police dashed from door to door arousing residents not awakened by the thunderous explosion which threw a twenty foot jet of water in the air.

Although there were no casualties, the flood has left a deposit of stone and sand in practically every basement, as well as tearing up the roadway, carrying huge paving blocks across the swirling miniature lake into Hyde Park.

The greater part of the Marylebone district, which is dependent on this thirty-six inch main, is practically without water today. An army of workers are busily tearing up the road in order to repair the break.

CHEERFUL ROAD ACROSS SOUTH GETS INTO PRINT

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Monroe, La., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Continuing the quest for a highway which is off the beaten path, the suggestion by a Memphis amateur brought to light what thus far has proved a perfect specimen.

It is a combination route from Memphis to Texas and today the count during a drive of the 271 miles to Monroe showed forty-seven cars of the total traffic eastward bound.

This is a route of vast importance in interstate motor traffic, but it seems that its fame is wholly local.

Within seven hours one stirs the dust of four states and makes one of the most fascinating crossings of the Mississippi river to be found in the entire length of the Father of Waters—a passage of nearly four miles over the murky, sweeping bulk of brownish swirling water, from one wilderness spot on the east bank to another wilderness spot on the west.

Better Route to Texas.

Whatever else may be said for this thoroughfare, it is a vast improvement over the southwest arteries which traverse Missouri and Arkansas as a way to Texas and the Pacific coast. Paved in Tennessee, but smooth as a billiard table through Mississippi, Arkansas and thus far in Louisiana, nothing could be sweeter as a coast route for travel from Illinois and Wisconsin and of course all points eastward. The mileage is no greater on this route, or if it is the speed conditions overcome it.

When Memphis is left behind one is getting into the deep south—the old south which holds such romantic interest for northerners. The man on horseback begins to swarm and slivering hounds abound. The true spirit of the old south is heavily manifest on this journey.

Do Much Hunting.

As nearly as the spirit may be interpreted it consists of a social status embracing a few plantation or lumber aristocrats, surrounded by a population of "pore" whites, who, in turn, are surrounded by swarming settlements of colored folks, shuffling bondmen and women of the cotton fields and occupants of ante-bellum hovels. On the roads, the blacks with "dawgs" and shotguns seem mostly engaged in hunting.

Yet at every village the apparent entire black population of the region is gathered about the ramshackle stores.

To make this journey the route leaves Memphis over Tennessee Highway No. 14. It is paved, but winding. A new grade, straight as an arrow to the Mississippi line, will be paved this summer.

At the state line the route is over Federal Route 61 to Leland, where Mississippi 10 reaches westward to Greenville and the river ferry. Across Arkansas highway 2 is followed to Montrose, where Federal Route 165 carries such travel as develops into Louisiana.

Cross Delta Region.

First through the Tennessee river bottoms, then through the rich Mississippi delta region to the Big river, then through miles of Arkansas cotton fields, and finally into the hills west of Mer Rouge, crowned with towering pines and just now sweet with the perfume of reawakening vegetation. Few through travelers get upon this remarkable route, but the natives are familiar with it and they do not fool in the matter of speed. Fifty and sixty miles an hour is a normal gait, and if you ask an officer if you may exceed that, providing one has the ability, he replies in the terms of the region: "Yes, sah!"

Judge Fixes Legal Status of Child in Divorce Case

Mrs. Ethel O'Toole, 735 South Crawford avenue, had the satisfaction yesterday of having her baby legally declared to be her's and her husband's by Judge William N. Gemmill in the Superior court. Her husband, John Russell O'Toole, who is suing his wife for divorce, had contended that the baby was neither his nor his wife's. The judge's order was entered after Mrs. O'Toole had been examined by Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel to determine whether or not she was the mother of the child.

Divinity Students Quit Evanston Hospital Jobs

Thirteen students of the Garrett Biblical institute, working their way through school by serving the nurses' table at the Evanston hospital, sent their resignations yesterday in protest against the dismissal last Tuesday of two of their number who were colored. The resignations were accepted by Ada Belle McCleery, superintendent of the hospital, who stated that the students would be replaced by waitresses.

COUNCIL BATTLE OPENS IN HOME WARD OF MAYOR

F. W. Seifel Gains Support Against Nelson.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Aldermanic decks were cleared for action last night on the issue of Thompsonism in Mayor Thompson's home ward, the 46th. Capt. August F. W. Siebel, leading opponent of Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, the mayor's floor leader, was given the support of the ward Democratic organization at a meeting called by State Representative Joseph L. Gill, Democratic committeeman and a brother-in-law of the late George E. Brennan. Mr. Siebel was started under the auspices of the Deneen group and of Senator Hernan Haenisch, who defeated the mayor for committeeman last April with Deneen support. Haenisch represents the Emmerson wing in the ward.

The Brundage group has not come in for Siebel. Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, has moved back into the ward, his old stamping ground. There are three other candidates besides Siebel and Nelson. In this ward as in several others factional control of the Republican organization in the ward, which is one of the old Brundage string, is involved to a considerable degree, and in the background of the nonpartisan aldermanic fight is the old antagonism between the Deneen camp and the Brundage camp, which complicates the anti-Thompsonism fight somewhat.

Horan Campaign Opens.

The campaign of Ald. Albert J. Horan, father of the hollow tile ordinance and council leader in the movement for a municipal airport, was launched last night in the 29th ward. Albert R. Brunker's civic safety commission was criticized by James C. Denvir, president of the county civil service commission and president of the ward Democratic organization, for its failure to support Ald. Horan.

"Ald. Horan," said Mr. Denvir, "brings to this airport problem the enthusiasm and experience he gained as an aviator during the war, for he was one of the first American aviators to get overseas. He was chiefly instrumental in getting the new street traffic rules, which the Association of Commerce estimates saves Chicago a million dollars a week. He fathered the hollow tile ordinance, making a tremendous saving in the cost of building construction. Yet he is turned down by a civic safety crowd led by a man who lives in Lake Forest.

Review Fight on Meyering.

The Brunker civic safeties renewed their activities last night against William D. Meyering, anti-Thompsonite, of the Eighth ward. They sent out a statement declaring that the Avalon Park Nonpartisan league had unanimously indorsed their candidate, Edmund A. Miller, after a "hammer and tongs debate" Thursday night between him and Ald. Meyering. The statement said Thomas B. Stephenson called the meeting, and quoted him as saying: "We are a distinctively nonpartisan group working only for the welfare of the community. We are not connected with any political faction."

The statement said: "Ald. Meyering departed from the hall charging the meeting had been packed against him."

Ald. Meyering's version was somewhat different.

"This group," he said, "is one which has opposed me every time I have run. Stephenson has always opposed me and last year he was active in the election of Andrew C. Metzger for Republican ward committeeman over Michael J. Connelly, the Deneen candidate. This group is clearly tied to the Thompson camp. It was announced that 250 invitations had been sent out, but only twenty were at the meeting in addition to some of my friends who dropped in."

Aldermen Before Board.

A group of about twenty aldermen appeared at the election board rooms late yesterday when arguments were presented maintaining that the board has the right to review aldermanic candidate petitions. Attorney Urban Lavery represents the aldermen, who maintain that many spurious papers were filed. The other side is to be heard this afternoon.

Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [13th] and Ald. Nelson head the protesting council members who insist that many petitions bear evidence of having been copied from poll lists in backrooms without even an effort to disguise the handwriting.

ARTFUL QUIZZER TWISTS UP THE DEALER IN ARTS

Mrs. Hahn's Lawyer Makes Him Sweat.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Sir Joseph Duveen, world expert on art, was somewhat weaker today. He passed a restless forenoon. His temperature rose.

A relentless lawyer had wrung from him the admission that "La Belle Ferronniere," which hangs in the Louvre, has been doubted by experts. That is a potent admission.

In condemning as a fake the old painting of Mme. Andree Lardoux Hahn of Kansas City and France, Sir Joseph must prove it is a pretty bad copy of the real Da Vinci in the Paris museum.

Wrung is precisely the word for Sir Joseph's admission. Mme. Hahn's chief lawyer, Lawrence Miller, twisted the titled Englishman this way and that; twisted him into tight little knots. Water broke out on Sir Joseph's forehead.

Once Doubted Paris Portrait.

The witness said he always had regarded the painting in the Louvre as Da Vinci's real work—"except on one occasion." Then the storm broke. The lawyer wanted to know all about that occasion.

The witness was so obviously weary from his third day on the stand that Justice Black adjourned court at 1 p. m. to resume at 10 a. m., Monday. The trial will take all next week.

The witness said he had read in the works of one or two experts that they were inclined to doubt the Louvre painting. One of them, he admitted, was Bernhard Berenson, the Italian authority on things of that sort. Mr. Miller placed a book in Sir Joseph's hand and, by the ways of the law, forced him to read passages wherein doubt was expressed. The baronet shifted glasses—he has two pairs on hand—and began to read in a soft cultured voice.

Face Flushed at Reading.

"My whole heart went out to the portrait of the girl known as 'La Belle Ferronniere'," Sir Joseph quoted. "The look of fresh wonder . . . the color that made me happy . . . subtle modeling . . . the contour self-composed . . .

"I passed through a shameful moment when I resented this beautiful thing because I could not name its author. We cannot safely count her as his (meaning Da Vinci). But whose in all the world of art if not his?"

Sir Joseph had finished the reading and his face was flushed. Then he had to admit—because he had read it somewhere—that other experts attributed the Louvre painting in part to Boltraffio, one of Da Vinci's students.

SPECIAL JURIES HELD VALID IN FINAL RULING

The legality of special grand juries was decided once and for all yesterday by the Supreme court when it refused to grant a rehearing to Attorneys Michael Abern and Thomas D. Nash on their petition asking that the indictments of the recent special grand juries be invalidated. The Supreme court decided at the December term that the calling of a special grand jury is legal. The attorneys, however filed a petition for a rehearing and advanced additional reasons why the court should reverse its former decision.

FARMERS BACK DRYS IN "LIFE FOR PINT" FIGHT

Line Up Against Green's Modification Plan.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Amendment of Michigan's drastic habitual criminal act to exempt liquor violators from a mandatory life sentence for four offenses will be opposed by the Michigan farm bureau, it was disclosed today. The organization in state convention unanimously passed a resolution opposing any change in the criminal code.

This lines up the strongest rural group in the state behind the Michigan Anti-Saloon League and indicates that the legislative battle over the code will produce a sharp cleavage between the urban and rural elements.

Strengthens Holsaple's Hand.

The farm bureau's action today was the first definite demonstration that the league has any organized support, aside from its own membership, behind its legislative program. It is evident that the Rev. R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the dry organization, counts on the rural legislators, who because of poorly adjusted apportionment hold the balance of power, to defeat Gov. Fred W. Green's program of modification.

He will undoubtedly keep many of the rural lawmakers in line with threat of a withdrawal of league support, but several influential legislators from country districts have publicly stated that they would stand by the governor. The liberal element of the state is eagerly awaiting the first test of strength.

Snags Deportation Law.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Michigan's "life for a pint" law may prevent early passage of federal legislation to facilitate the deportation of alien felons, it was revealed in a house rules committee meeting today.

Representative Albert Johnson [Rep., Wash.], chariman of the house immigration committee, told the rules committee he anticipates that the harsh Michigan statute under which minor offenses, punishable by jail sentences of three months or more are classed as felonies, will be urged as an argument against the pending deportation bill.

"The Michigan habitual criminal law," Johnson said, "is somewhat of a legislative excess. I am informed, and I hope it is true, that the state legislature will shortly act to change this law."

Opponents of the measure argue that unless the Michigan law is modified or repealed aliens convicted in that state for comparatively trivial offenses would be liable to deportation under the proposed federal law.

TORAL TO DIE AT NOON TODAY FOR OBREGON MURDER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 8.—The one topic of interest in Mexico today is the coming execution of José de Leon Toral, assassin of President Elect Alvarez Obregon, which will take place at noon tomorrow in the district penitentiary.

As if to make the execution more dramatic, Toral will face the firing squad in the grand patio, or courtyard, which bears the name of the slayer's victim, "Alvarez Obregon."

This morning Judge Aznar Mendoza, who pronounced the sentence of death on Toral after his trial at San Angel three months ago, today delivered the prisoner officially to the head of the federal district government, Dr. José Manuel Puig-Casaurane, who notified the warden of the penitentiary that the execution shall take place at high noon tomorrow.

41 Story Apartment Hotel to Replace Gerry Mansion

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Plans for a forty-one story apartment hotel to be built on Fifth avenue, where the famous old Gerry mansion now stands, at a cost of $5,000,000, were filed today with the building department by the Hotel Pierre, Inc., Fred R. Loofbourow, president. The skyscraper will have a frontage of 100 feet on Fifth avenue and 270 feet on 61st street.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Forty socially prominent persons may be subpoenaed when charges against the government's prohibition agents by Charles Bern, proprietor of the raided Kaybern club, and counter charges by government forces are aired in court.

William J. Calhoun, leader of the raiders, said today that he has the names and addresses of those in the place and they will be summoned.

The forty caught in the raid are going to be asked whether, as Mr. Bern says, the prohibition men broke into the owner's private apartment and helped themselves to money, jewelry and papers or whether, as Mr. Calhoun asserts, the books and records of the place simply were taken from an office behind the bar. United States Commissioner Cotter will sit at the hearing, set for Monday.

Bern's charges were today denied by Calhoun. The search warrant, he said, covered the whole of the four story house. A quantity of gold coins were taken from Bern's rooms for "safe keeping," he added, and Bern refused to take them back when they were offered to him through his attorney.

Bern petitioned the court for the return of the valuables he said were taken, and presented affidavits from some of his clientele.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Illinois senators won a fight today for continuance of army lighter-than-air operations at Scott field, near Belleville, Ill.

The senate passed the 456 million dollar army supply bill after rejecting two committee amendments which would have resulted in the abandonment of Scott field and the transfer of the army's lighter than air activities to the navy.

In leading a successful offensive against the amendments, Senators Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.], and Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.], not only overcame the opposition of the senate appropriation committee, but also routed Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], president of the National Aeronautical association, and a leading opponent of the continued dirigible development by the army.

Both Votes Are Close.

The first amendment provided that none of the funds in the 1930 supply bill should be used for construction at Scott field. It was defeated by a vote of 35 to 32. The second amendment would have had the practical effect of limiting the army's air activities to airplanes and balloons. It met defeat by the vote of 35 to 31.

In opposing the second amendment, Senator Glenn quoted Gen. Summerall as stating that loss of the lighter-than-air arm would handicap the army in patrolling the seacoast and in keeping abreast of dirigible development.

Approximately 330 million dollars of the funds in the army supply bill were set aside for the purely military needs of the war department.

90 Million for River Work.

The balance of the appropriation will be used for flood control, river and harbor work, and for other nonmilitary purposes.

The bill carries $50,000,000 for river and harbor development, $30,000,000 for Mississippi flood control and $10,000,000 for development of barge lines on the Mississippi and important tributaries, such as the Illinois river.

Confesses Taxi Holdups After He Is Identified

Adolph Belma, alias Albert Nestor, 3544 Thomas street, confessed to three taxicab holdups last night after he had been identified at the West North avenue police station by his three victims, Louis Young, 1609 Lawndale avenue, who lost $3; Phillip Kouk, 1511 West Monroe street, $14.50, and Edward Schoenke, 2114 West 18th street, $15.

Uncle Sam Tells How to Make Buttermilk

Good Old Beverage Has Loyal Friends.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Ever since Father Dearborn's children stopped tethering their cows along the banks of the Chicago river, home made buttermilk, once the nation's popular beneficial beverage, has been hard to find. Churns have gone out of style in the city home. Buttermaking is in the hands of scientists who use mammoth churns as big as water tanks. Home made buttermilk, a by-product of home made butter, is seldom found in cities.

Uncle Sam saw the situation Father Dearborn and other city dads were in and is aiding with information on how to make buttermilk, as well as acidophilus milk, kefir, kumiss, and yogurt. It is explained by the federal experts that all fermented milks have a high food value, as most of them have lost only their butterfat. Their unrestricted use, however, might result in some persons getting too much or too little protein or other elements in their diet. Consequently, a doctor should be consulted before making any important change in the diet involving the use of much fermented milk, advise these specialists.

Not True Buttermilk.

"Much of the buttermilk sold in cities is not, properly speaking, buttermilk, but simply sour skim milk which has been churned or stirred to break up the curd. This has all the chemical properties of buttermilk, however, and may have one of more of the desirable lactic acid bacteria. A more uniform product can be obtained from firms that make it on a large scale, and if a reliable dealer is accessible it is not advisable to make it at home," dairy specialists say.

For those who want to make buttermilk and similar milks in the home, directions are given in a bulletin on "Fermented Milk" recently published by the federal department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Popularity Increases.

It is pointed out that the consumption of buttermilk and other fermented milks has greatly increased during recent years. Investigators find that the development of fermented milk, scientifically termed lacto-bacillus acidophilus, has been phenomenal. The beneficial results ascribed to its use have served to stimulate a new interest in all kinds of fermented milks, according to authorities at Washington.

It is also explained that kefir, kumiss, and yogurt are special kinds of fermented milks long used by people of southern Russia, Turkey, the Balkans, the countries of the eastern Mediterranean, India, and Egypt. Investigators of this branch of dairying say that kumiss in eastern countries is made from mare's milk, kefir from sheep's, goat's, and cow's milk. When kumiss is made in this country from cow's milk it is more correctly called kefir.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Raw Spinach Salads.

To give credit where credit is due, I here set down the fact that it was Winifred that introduced me to a salad of raw hearts of spinach to which, as I remember, she was quite devoted, and I hope is now in her happy housekeeping.

To make a heart of spinach salad, cut or pick off the spinach plant leaves for cooked greens, trim the root, and leave on it the inner leaf stems, cutting off the leaves in such a way as to leave about an inch of their stems. Wash, and wash, these hearts of the spinach, and when you have them as clean as is possible, rinse and let them drain until dry. It is a waste to add a dressing to wet greens, and also gives a degree of unpalatableness. Serve these with a French dressing, and chew them well. But you can use a thin mayonnaise if you prefer that, and if you wish to serve these hearts as a dinner relish perhaps the latter dressing will be preferred.

You can cook these hearts for a salad, also, in which case drop them into boiling water and scald for five minutes, drain them and rinse them in cold water and then cook them in the water that clings to them until they are tender. This means careful cooking. Serve them hot with butter only or even with the elegant Hollandaise in the most expensive menus.

We must acknowledge that there is spinach and spinach, and that some is too rough for salad—that is, the whole plant is, though the heart which looks rougher, is not—but young spinach was once much used for salad.

Here is a fifty year back recipe for it: "Put into a bowl a quart of the young, tender leaves; cut up three spring onions, add them to the spinach; pour over all a plain dressing. Miss Corson recommends addition of a few mint leaves to this salad. I also consider it an improvement."

This "I" was Thomas J. Murrey, a famous eater and writer on the subject of foods in the eighteen seventies.

Miss Corson's idea of the mint leaves did not originate with her, as I find by referring to an older book. It does not seem to be an English idea, however, as we might expect, for in the leading English dictionary of foods the recipes are all for cooked spinach.

ELLER HENCHMEN AGAIN SEIZED IN POLICE ROUNDUP

In the regular week-end roundup of hoodlums which began last night police raided a political meeting being held in the interest of Martin Klass, candidate for alderman of the 20th ward, and again arrested Sammy Kaplan and Abe Klass, henchmen of Morris Eller, who were recently convicted of conspiracy to commit frauds in the county primary last year. With them was seized David Feinberg, 3229 Potomac avenue. They were all charged with disorderly conduct.

Three gunmen were captured after an automobile chase on the south side and confessed numerous robberies. They are John Flaus, 3356 South Paulina street and James Barris and John Ryan, 2900 Prairie avenue. More than 100 suspicious characters were taken into custody in last night's drive.

Bishop McConnell Will Talk on "Church Lobby"

"The Church Lobby" will be discussed by Bishop Francis J. McConnell before the Chicago forum meeting at the Adelphic theater at Clark and Madison streets at 3:15 tomorrow afternoon. As the president of the Federal Council of Churches, Dr. McConnell, has been criticised in some sections as the leader of the church lobby in Washington. The criticisms have resulted from efforts on the part of church lobbyists to bring the influence of church members to bear on congress in support of certain social and prohibition policies.

The Romance that ended so soon

Her version: What a disappointment Bob had been! Once he was always bright and cheery—well-groomed. Then something happened. Bob became careless. Seemed to lose his ambition. Even his appearance was affected. Why, she was actually ashamed of him now!

His version: What had come over Mary? Two years ago he had been so much in love with her. But these days she was always so cross. Her old-time youth and charm had fled. True, he'd slipped somewhat, himself. But, Mary. . . .

What a tragedy that constipation can wreck so much happiness! It begins with such little things—headaches, listlessness. But it eventually saps the strongest body, and may lead to serious disease. And all the while it could be so easily prevented—so surely relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—to safely prevent it.

ALL-BRAN is effective and natural. Bulk or roughage relieves constipation in a natural way. ALL-BRAN furnishes bulk in generous quantity because it is 100% bran. It carries moisture through the intestines, gently sweeping out poisons. Part-bran products seldom contain sufficient bulk to be completely effective. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Don't risk drugs!

ALL-BRAN brings lasting relief. Far better than habit-forming pills whose dose must be constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is an appetizing cereal—delicious with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Mix it with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use it in cooking. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It will protect the health of your family.

All grocers sell Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Served at hotels, restaurants, on diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

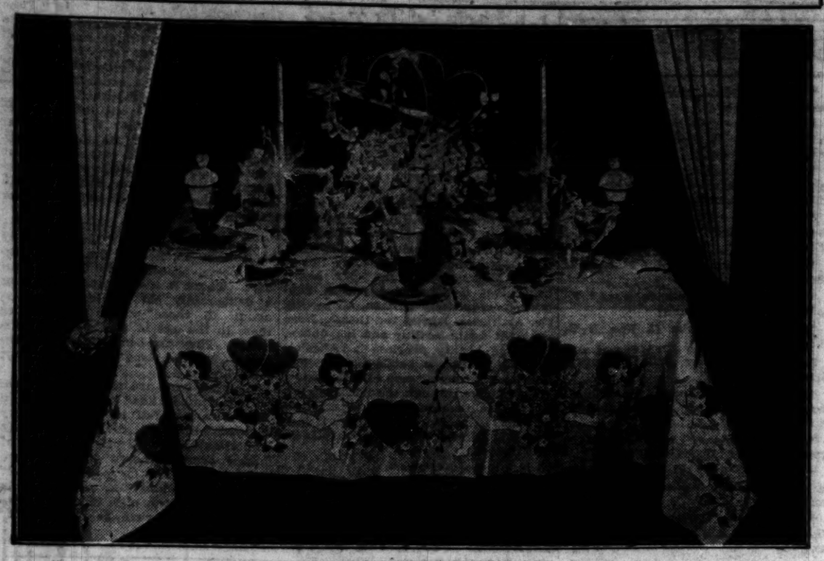
IN THE SPIRIT OF VALENTINE



The chubby little god of love dances gaily around the border of the crepe paper tablecloth on this Valentine table, shooting his darts hither and yon. The centerpiece is cleverly contrived of crepe paper, wire hearts, and gilt ribbon. Little will-you-be-my-Valentine hearts surmount the Valentine parfait, and there are frilly nut cups, favors, and snappers.

with some essence that will burn poured over the sugar which will sweeten the product and then lighted. You will find genuine recipes for it in New Orleans cook books. Each and every one of a score or so are all represented as the one and genuine. You "takes your choice." At any rate, the above will go all right with cake, and before the makers tire of it they will already have something else gay in train.

The Cooking Editor Has Griefs.

A great many people, even those who look upon cooking as a matter of low import, the more is the pity, seem to think that a cooking editor should be a great authority on every possible kind of a party. Alas! Worse, they think that she has sufficient gray matter and time to think out, plan out, work out from entirely insufficient data, try out "unique" ideas, just for their one party. They sometimes have written and told her of their grief because she has not done it.

Some cooking editors may be able to cover such assignments, but this one is not. She often gets delightful letters—others are likely to be rather mandatory—asking for this sort of help. Just the other day I had one extremely intriguing, and it seemed a shame to waste the opportunity to do what I would have found entertaining, almost as entertaining as making copy daily.

Another thing! If I am going to give a party of my own I mull over what I am to do. I may get up a combination of viands such as never were put together before, having in mind certain facts about the guests—who they are, what they are going to do. First, and last, a good many hours get spent doing everything, therefore, my conscience will not let me toss off any suggestion to others, in the time I am writing a letter, for anything so nice and wonderful as a party may be.

Mrs. Edith Haines in a talk after her "Fried Temptations" was on sale, said of a presumed occasion that it was not a party because nobody had taken any pains. She knew nobody had taken any pains because there were an even half dozen roses in the drawing room, and the other half dozen on the dining room table.

Have No Untried Effects.

A bachelor expert in cookery, who was likewise a London epicure, gave me in one of his books a motto which represents what may be now an obsession with me. Even under threat, I will not give anybody a list of recipes to use for the first time when they have guests at their table. It is not polite to try out things on them. Besides, I do not want the responsibility and the almost sure subsequent blame. A good recipe even may require that the amateur with it try and try again.

One of the eminent cooking editors of the country talks about being in a state of bread and butter preparation all summer for the sake of the pleasant spontaneous picnic. If we like "folks" we should keep in some similar state of food preparation.

If I could not cook and had time to entertain I know of some wonderful imported little cakes—they are expensive but rare in type and so desirably "unique"—that I would have always in a nice majolica cracker jar I have, ready for a party tea. That jar is entertaining. A fine tea caddy or one with real character is almost a party in itself. It affords entertainment of more than one sort.

This Is a Grand Week to Give a Jolly Party

Valentine's Day Is Best Excuse Ever.

BY SALLY LUNN.

If about this time you should "feel a party coming on," as one woman I know expresses herself when she is taken with a desire to entertain, by all means give a Valentine party. The spirit of romance is so strong in all of us, young and old, that we respond willingly to all the romantic folderol that is traditional to Feb. 14. If the group of guests you invite to the party harbors a real live love affair in its midst or a potential romance, so much the better, and a Valentine party is, of course, a highly appropriate time to announce an engagement.

The decorations for a Valentine party table can be as elaborate or as ingenious as you care to make them. Certainly you will use the customary symbols, hearts, cupids, bows and arrows, and flowers in your decorative scheme.

Make Your Own Trimmings.

With a quantity of red cardboard and inexpensive red ribbon alone you can work ornamental wonders. For example, you might use large red hearts for doilies instead of your regular linen or lace ones, making these more effective still, if you like, by bordering them with paper lace. With a centerpiece of white flowers, attach cardboard hearts to pieces of stiff wire and intersperse several of them amongst the flowers or perch one large one upright in the center.

To add still more to the decoration cut lengths of the narrow ribbon in varying lengths, paste a small heart on one end of each strip, and arrange these in a sunburst fashion around the centerpiece, with the ends carefully laid under the flower bowl. A variation of the paper cap idea would be to use large red hearts with ribbon streamers from each side, or mounted on a cardboard band. These may be placed on the plates at the table, marked with the names of the guests in lieu of place cards, and will be more becoming to the respective members of your party than the paper oddities that oftentimes come in snappers. To delight a party of little girls have small doll favors, each with a little heart shaped hat, glued on, and heart dresses with red ribbon shoulder straps.

Nut Cups and Favors.

Effective home made nut cups may be made by purchasing plain white cups, cutting red hearts with a hole corresponding in size to the top of the cup, and pasting it on top, or paste red cups on top of red hearts. Tissue paper napkins with appropriate Valentine designs add to the fastive scene, and red candles tied with red bows in glass or silver candlesticks are pretty. Compotes of candied cherries, red cinnamon drops, red gumdrops, or the like make another colorful note, and those sugar hearts with the mottoes on them are pretty as well as lots of fun for the guests, who remember "way back when."

Another idea I had for Valentine favors the other day, when some one asked for a suggestion, was to make little individual candlesticks, one for each place at the table, with large, heart shaped gum drops, red candles stock in the centers, and candy lifesavers for handles. The tiny little lights all around the table make a pretty glow.

Muffets!...we want Muffets!

There's a crispness, a crunchiness to them, a crumbling in the mouth, a new taste that resembles fresh pecans, yet a taste that's all their own. Muffets, the first really new breakfast dish in a generation! Whole wheat, cooked and baked, rolled to a filmy-thin ribbon, wound round and round to size and shape that just fits your cereal dish, toasted, both sides. Calories, bran, minerals, a new and essential vitamin. Easy digestibility. Mighty good eating. What wonder they say Muffets, we want Muffets! You will, too, once you've tried them. The Quaker Oats Co., Chicago.

You will find it convenient to crumble the Muffet before adding cream and sugar

Into Muffets—through ultra-violet rays—a new vitamin!

No change in taste, no change in appearance, but there's something new in Muffets.

The Steenbock Process of Irradiation with ultra-violet rays has added essential Vitamin D!

Grandmother Mickelberry's own secret recipe for sausage

At afternoon social gatherings in good old Georgia days the conversation invariably turned to matters of the table, when Grandmother Mickelberry's secret recipe for sausage, the envy of the countryside, would be sure to be mentioned.

"How do you suppose she makes it so delicious?" "What spices does she use?" "Just what portions of the tender, sweet young pork does she select?" "What condiments?" "Do you suppose she would reveal the secret?"

Then they would talk about the forthcoming "sunrise feast" to be given at the Mickelberry plantation when Grandmother Mickelberry herself would preside in the great kitchen and prepare this delicacy with her own hands.

Down the years has come the selfsame recipe in the same family, so that today all can enjoy these delicious sausage repasts by simply asking for Mickelberry's.

In addition to their appetizing goodness, these dainty sausages are also good for digestion. Their secret Southern seasoning lends a gentle urge to easy assimilation, so that they may be eaten generously, even by those with delicate appetites.

And, what is more, Mickelberry's old farm sausages are more than a breakfast dish. They are a welcome food for any meal occasion—lunch, supper, dinner. And there are so many ways of serving them. They come in links, patties, meat.

Made fresh every day. Sold fresh every day. Always fully protected in the well known green-and-yellow package. Try them next Sunday for breakfast. Then you will know how different they are and how good for any day of the week. At dealers' everywhere.

Today's Recipe

Sausage a la Mickelberry

1 lb. Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage Meat
1 onion, minced
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup tomato soup or stewed tomatoes
2 cups noodles (spaghetti or macaroni can also be used)
1 quart boiling water
1 teaspoon salt

Mix sausage, onion and flour. Stir and chop together in a hot frying pan until brown. When well browned, add seasoning and noodles which have been cooked for 20 minutes in boiling salted water. Simmer 30 minutes or until savory and thoroughly cooked. Serve hot with mashed potatoes. For variety in serving make sausage into small balls, flour and brown with the onion.

You will find other Mickelberry daily treats in Mickelberry's Southern Smoked Hams, Sliced Bacon in Cartons, Spiced Pigs Feet, Thousand Island Dressing, and many others.

PLAN INQUIRY ON BRITISH FINGER IN U. S. BANKING

House to Take Up Reserve Board Action.

Calls for Investigation.

Representative Loring M. Black Jr. [Dem., N. Y.] introduced a resolution in the house calling for an investigation and legislation "to prevent the board using its power to artificially raise or lower the markets in securities." Senator J. Thomas Heflin [Dem., Ala.] offered a resolution in the senate calling on the board to recommend measures to "prevent illegitimate and harmful speculation."

Mr. McFadden said that the main function of the reserve board is the maintenance of proper gold reserve and control of the total volume of credit.

"I do not understand at this time that the gold reserve is in danger," he continued, "nor do I see any indication of a general rise in the commodity price level, and because of these facts, I do not think that the federal reserve system should concern itself about the condition of the stock market or of the security loan market.

Sees No Danger to Reserve.

"I do not think that the assumption is warranted that brokers' loans are depriving business of funds, nor that all of the security loans are unproductive. In my judgment there is too little known about the ultimate disposition of stock market loans to warrant any action designed to depress these loans by the federal reserve system. There appears at the present to be no danger to the gold reserve and should the reserve system tighten credit with the purpose of restricting stock speculation, and should it actually succeed, two results may follow.

"1. The high interest rates will make it too expensive for corporations to finance by bonds; and 2, if the public is afraid to buy stocks it will be impossible to finance by stock issues, which are usually purchased by speculators. I think this may pave the way for that lack of confidence which can easily lead to a business recession, if not a depression.

"If it were possible to show—and I believe it is not—that any positive harm is being done to business and industry, to employment, or to bank depositors by the present growth of security loans, I think restrictive action might be sanctioned. But no such evidence is available.

Market Will Correct Itself.

"I firmly believe now, as I have in the past, that the eye of the federal reserve system should be kept [when the gold reserve is not in danger] on the question of prices and employment. It seems to me to be rather farfetched to endanger the pay envelope of the working man and the profits of the business man because some one gets the notion that there is too much stock speculation, or that stocks should not sell as high as they now are.

"There are so many matters of judgment involved in stock prices that I believe most of the critics and experts have erred in predicting the stock market. If, however, the condition of corporate profits does not warrant present prices the market will correct itself in time.

Due to Number of Causes.

"The large loans of our banking system at the present time, I think, are due to a number of causes:

"1. The large volume of individual savings which banks must invest somewhere. These savings correspond partly to the production of additional wealth, and they are partly the results of the capitalization of values, such as stocks and real estate. Large bank loans are, of course, required if there are to be large savings.

"2. The large volume of corporate savings which are being retained by corporations in the form of cash. These cash balances standing on the liability side of the balance sheet of banks must be offset by loans and investments on the asset side.

"3. Some portion of our deposits and loans are the result of the capitalization of stocks and bonds, and do not represent actual increases in productive wealth.

Decline Would Bring it About.

"The deposits and loans and investments of the banking system will decrease if, first, there is a decrease in the volume of individual savings or, second, if savers buy securities directly [or through investment trusts] rather than leave their funds on deposit in banks; third, if those holding deposit balances derived through the sale of securities go back into the market and repurchase these securities from those who are holding them on margin.

"This is, of course, what would happen should any extensive decline take place in the stock market, though I doubt whether any such decline is in prospect unless this present action should bring it about when we have such heavily protected margin accounts as we do at the present time. Furthermore, I do not think that it is the business of the banking system to try to wipe out one group of speculators and investors in order to benefit the other."

ALWAYS DEAD TIRED?

Mod sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? You are poisoned. The bowels are clogged and liver inactive. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients and olive oil. They act easily upon the bowels, free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Be beautiful. Have rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy, that make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

The Day in Congress

SENATE.

Illinois senators won a fight in the senate against a provision of the army appropriation bill which would have meant the scrapping of Scott field near Belleville, Ill., and the transfer of lighter than air activities from the army to the navy.

The army appropriation bill was passed and sent to conference.

HOUSE.

The annual naval appropriation bill was passed and sent to the senate.

The rules committee took under advisement a request for special rules for deportation bills.

Opposition to any increase in the tariff on raw wool was expressed before the house ways and means committee by spokesmen for clothing manufacturers.

STILL OPPOSED TO CRUISER BILL, PRESIDENT SAYS

But Leaders Discount Veto Possibility.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—President Coolidge's dissatisfaction with the naval cruiser bill as approved by congress was reiterated today at the White House. It was asserted that the President has not changed his opposition to the time clause.

However, there was a general impression that he would sign the bill, which reached the White House during the day, probably early next week. The navy department also will pass on the measure before the President acts. It is known that navy officials are making their plans on the theory that the President will sign and that funds will be provided for starting work on the first five cruisers before the end of the present fiscal year.

Pacifists Urge Veto.

Meanwhile pacifist appeals for a veto of the bill are reaching the White House. To offset propaganda of this character are numerous urgent requests for the signing of the bill.

If President Coolidge were not going out of office so soon there is a feeling that he might veto the bill. While he is for the cruiser construction program, he has been insistent that the inclusion of a time clause requiring building of the different groups of ships to be commenced within specified periods may interfere with a proper balancing of the budget.

Pass Navy Appropriation Bill.

When it became evident that the President would not sign the cruiser bill at once, house leaders decided not to hold up action on the naval appropriation bill further. The bill was passed late today and sent to the senate. The plan now is to add about $12,000,000 to the bill in the senate for commencing construction of five cruisers during the present fiscal year.

HONDURAS CLOSED TO WORLD, RUMOR OF TORY REVOLT

SAN SALVADOR, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Reports came over the frontier from Honduras today that all private communication in that country had been suspended. Efforts to get telegraphic messages from Honduran points have failed. The frontier reports also stated that Felipe Boan, a companion of Pedro Sierra, a Sabana Grande bandit, had been killed in an engagement with government forces. Boan was described as a rebel chieftain.

Reports of disturbed conditions in Honduras have been numerous and persistent ever since the presidential campaign of last fall. The trouble seemed to lie in the fact that the Conservative political party was not content with its defeat in the national election.

BOOKS

British Authors Busy on Novels or About Them

For Several Produce Able Critiques.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Now that Mr. J. C. Squire's cricket team has shown us that the English national summer sport can be played in the depth of winter, we are settling down to the new season's announcements. And very interesting some of them are.

E. FORSTER.

One of the most interesting is the first venture into fiction of Mr. Charles Morgan, whose "Portrait in a Mirror" is to be published by MacMillan. Mr. Morgan is the husband of Hilda Vaughan, whose novel, "The Invader," has been greatly admired, and of whom Mr. St. John Ervine was moved to say, "Hilda Vaughan is a writer!" Mr. Morgan also is the dramatic critic for the London Times, in succession to the late A. B. Walkley, and is the author of some of those leaders in The Times which are much admired. He is the master of a polished and witty style particularly suited to such brief and delicate essays; and while I sometimes think his dramatic criticism is less satisfying, because I cannot always discover what he thinks of the plays he criticizes, there is no question of the writer's wit and his ability.

These qualities may be expected from Mr. Morgan's novel, and as an addition to the ranks of "family" novelists Mr. and Mrs. Morgan must be regarded with awe. Not all husbands and wives who write can write as well as they.

Miss Sylvia Townsend Warner's new book is called "The True Heart," and Miss Shiela Kaye-Smith's is called "The Village Doctor." Both sound very appetizing, to me, and the latter has an almost Balzacian ring. And another interesting event is the announcement that Mr. E. V. Lucas has a new novel appearing early in the year. This is to be called "Stormy Haven," and for those who can relish the apparently easy chronicle style in which Mr. Lucas tells his novels it will come as a treat. A book with a very queer title indeed is announced by Heinemanns. This is "MW—XX3," and is the work of Mr. Roland Pertwee.

I have been reading a little book by Mr. Edwin Muir [a critic whose work I have previously commended] on "The Structure of the Novel," and for those who have read the extraordinarily clever study by Mr. E. M. Forster entitled "Aspects of the Novel," this short work will be worth attention. It is much more "serious" in tone than Mr. Forster's, but it deals faithfully with Mr. Forster on more than one point, and for a time it strikes me as being very sound.

It is very able throughout; but towards the end of the book Mr. Muir, like Mr. Forster, seems to lose control of his subject and to become merely theoretical. Perhaps it is only that I do not follow him as willingly in his later stages as I did when he was discriminating between the dramatic novel and the novel of character; and in this case it may be I, and not Mr. Muir, who falls by the way.

I cannot help thinking that if one reads Mr. Muir, and Mr. Forster, and Mr. Percy Lubbock [to whose book "The Art of Fiction" both Mr. Forster and Mr. Muir refer], the net result is that one returns with relief to the great novels—and some not so great—which they analyze.

"Of Making of Books There Is No End"

One of the questions oftenest asked of any one who has anything to do with books is, "How many books are published each year?" The Publishers' Weekly compiles statistics. They have just issued those for 1928. There were 7,614 new books published during the year. That does not, of course, count new editions of old books or pamphlets. There were 164 more published in 1928 than in 1927.

In a classification under twenty-three subjects, fiction is tremendously in the lead with 1,135; religion comes next with 766; biography, third with 640; juveniles, fourth with 634; poetry and drama together rank fifth, with 595 jointly, and sociology and economics sixth with 502. History suffered the greatest decrease during 1928. There were 73 less volumes of history published than in the previous year, and 1928 offered 394.

The other classifications rank in the following order: General literature, 363; geography, 346; science, 340; technical books, 246; medicine, 240; philosophy, 226; education, 208; philology, 206; fine arts, 165; business, 157; games, 116; agriculture, 95; law, 89; music, 65; miscellaneous, 45, and domestic economy, 42.

The statistics for Great Britain are very interesting in comparison with those for the United States. During 1928 there were published 10,612 new books, exclusive of translations, an increase of 278 over 1927. Fiction also led in the English production, with 1,498. Juveniles were second in England, as compared with fourth here, with 834. Religion came third, 702; sociology fourth, 617; biography fifth, 495, and description and travel sixth, 476. Poetry and drama were seventh with 464, and then followed science, 457; history, 410; literature, 384; technology, 370; fine art, 285; medicine, public health, 284; philosophy, 241; general works, 189; philology, 189; education, 183; law, 168; games, sports, etc., 166; agriculture, gardening, 145; business, 113; military and naval, 110; geography, 67; music, 66; domestic arts, 55.

The international statistics have just been compiled for 1927, and Russia led the world in book and pamphlet production with 36,416 books, three times and more as many as the United States produced. Germany was second with over five thousand less than Russia; Japan came third with about half of Russia's output; Great Britain was fourth, France fifth, and the United States sixth. Poland published about three thousand less than we did, and Italy only three hundred less than Poland. Holland came next with about four hundred less than Italy, and Hungary was tenth on the list with two thousand less than Holland. Denmark, Sweden, Bulgaria, Spain, and Switzerland preceded Norway, which published over 1,200 books, and Luxembourg, who got out 123 volumes. The statistics are concerned only with titles. The number of copies published of any one title has no effect whatever upon the compilation.

John Masefield Tries His Poetic Hand at Arthurian Legend

"Midsummer Night," by John Masefield [Macmillan].

"Cursory Rhymes," by Humbert Wolfe [Doubleday-Doran].

These four slim, artistic volumes of verse all are by Englishmen. The first three are serious; the last delightfully humorous.

In "Midsummer Night" Mr. Masefield gives us narrative poems, simply but exquisitely written, all having the Arthurian legend for theme. Here we meet again Arthur and his queen, "beloved beauty peerless"; Lancelot, "a flag in air, a battle banner bidding men outdare," and all the rest.

They move through the lyrics, acting their rôles in scenes new to most of us, and therefore doubly interesting. There is surety, serenity about Masefield's verse.

Sylvia Townsend Warner, who won united acclaim from the critics for her "Lolly Willowes" and "Mr. Fortune's Maggot" [both prose], has published her second book of verse, the first being "The Espalier." In "Time Importuned" she writes with delicate distinction about things abstract and concrete: a load of fern that symbolizes the passing of summer; church bells ringing in the country; epitaphs in a moss grown graveyard.

Her poems make one think a little of the verse of Elinor Wylie, in that they are poems of the intellect, addressed to the mind rather than the senses. They are clear cut and exquisite, but absolutely self-controlled, and are the work of an artisan rather than a troubadour.

Edmund Blunden in "Retreat" may be equally likened to the early English poets, especially to George Herbert. There is a quaintness, perhaps a deliberately old fashioned quality, about all these poems that places them in the age of rosebuds and pastorals. They are beautiful, if you are not wedded to Amy Lowell and her followers.

Whether you are antique, modern, or two jumps ahead of the age, you simply cannot fail to like "Cursory Rhymes"—one of the most gently humorous and wittily naïve group of ditties ever gathered between two boards. They're dedicated to Mr. Wolfe's little daughter, Ann, who is thereby given the high chair of fame right next to Christopher Robin's.

The REAL Arabian Nights in English—

Exactly As They Were Written!

YOUR dream of owning a set of the complete ARABIAN NIGHTS containing all those vivid tales of passion and splendor that beautiful Scheherazade told the Sultan can easily come true. Here in eight illustrated volumes, is the full English text of every one of the "thousand and one tales" that stayed the lust of the ruler and the dreaded blow of the executioner.

Here is all the Oriental fire and color, all the matchless imagination that has made this work "one of the two greatest story books that the world possesses."—(N. Y. Herald-Tribune). No library is complete without an unabridged version of The Thousand and One Nights.

MARDRUS-MATHERS TRANSLATION

Since 1704, when the first translation was made into a Western language, until the present, scholars have been trying in vain to release from their imprisonment in an obsolete Arabic tongue these marvelous tales which picture, as nothing else can, the fascinating life of the "unblushing East."

Dr. J. C. Mardrus, an eminent French Orientalist, translated the Arabic manuscript into his language, and from that unexpurgated version has come—at last—the English rendering by E. Powys Mathers, proclaimed by scholars and readers everywhere as "incomparably the best we have ever had".

24 GRAVURE ILLUSTRATIONS

The set is superbly printed on clear spring antique laid paper, and is available in two exquisite bindings designed by the famous illustrator, Roderick McRae. There are twenty-four full-page photogravure illustrations which actually interpret the text. A booklet printed in full natural colors will be sent free on request.

Vera Caspary Wins Success in First Novel

"The White Girl" Among Best Sellers.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The White Girl," by Vera Caspary [Sears].

Another first book to leap into the best seller class is this story of "The White Girl" by Vera Caspary. There has been lately an interest in how the other color lives. That interest had its effulgence in "Nigger Heaven," reached its artistic height in Claude McKay's "Home to Harlem." These books were concerned with the life of Harlem. They both mentioned the fact that some twenty thousand men and women are "passing" in New York.

VERA CASPARY.

"The White Girl" is devoted exclusively to that phase of Negro life. It is about a girl who looked white, felt white, had white reactions, hated everything that was black. Finding it perfectly simple to be accepted as white, she entirely cut herself away from her race.

She lived as a colored girl in Chicago. In New York, where she was at first a typist, then a model, she never was suspected of having colored blood by her employers, her fellow employés or by the woman with whom she boarded. But a colored elevator man spotted her immediately and began such a blackmail system that she was forced to leave. She never was fearful when she was with white people that her black blood might be suspected. But she dreaded any contacts whatever with her own race.

She went to live with two other models and their story might be the story of any high-living, gaudy New York life which is on the fringe of ordinary life, with night clubs, kept women, and girls spending every cent they earned, and more, on their clothes.

Her life was in a sort of brackish pool, but she didn't mind. Then quite suddenly she did an unforgivable thing to one of the girls with whom she lived and the other one called her a dirty nigger to her face. She had known all along, but she never would have told, low as she was. Then, when the heroine was going down for the third time, she met a young advertising man who was first a charming companion and then, when she thought he never would be, a suitor for her hand. All through her engagement she was terrified that he might find out about her having colored blood. Then, by a cruel trick of fate, when she thought he did know and didn't care, he did find out. She took the only way out of things that offered itself.

If it had nothing to do with the business of "passing" [which is an interesting phase of life for its novelty to readers], it would be a book of the best seller kind, for it is a remarkably vivid picture of that New York life which is lived by the purely physical.

There is Dell, the beautiful model who loved a rotter. Because she no longer could be blind to the fact that he was a rotter, Dell became the mistress of a Jewish millionaire who called his wife "Piano Legs." Dell is an unforgettable character as she drifts into dope, into tuberculosis, into complete disintegration of body and soul.

There is poignacy in "The White Girl's" passion to be white, in her fears, in the picture of the mother of the man whom she was engaged to marry, so completely calm and understanding, but so demanding of her son's devotion. All the emotions and reactions growing out of the situations, despite the somewhat hectic atmosphere of the book, are impressive.

The book undeniably is hectic, but the life which it depicts is phrenetic and therefore the atmosphere of the book and its material are at one.

There is something very like "Bad Girl" about "The White Girl"—they have the same intense reality about them, the author in each case definitely and undeniably knows what she is talking about and has not the slightest reluctance to tell what she knows. They are both terribly and memorably real.

"Miss Caspary was born in Chicago and went to Wendell Phillips High school and retains a vivid impression of her family being continually obliged to move on account of the inroads next door of colored families," so her publishers say, thereby smashing the illusion that "The White Girl" is autobiographical, and making the book even more remarkable as a record of observation and understanding.

Atlantic Monthly Offers Another $10,000 to Writers

The second Atlantic prize novel competition, conducted jointly by the Atlantic Monthly, Little Brown & Co., American publishers, and George G. Harrap & Co. of London has just been announced. The prize will be $10,000 plus book royalties "for the most interesting novel of any kind, sort or description, submitted before Jan. 15, 1930 to the Atlantic Monthly Press, 8 Arlington street, Boston, Mass. Mazo de la Roche won the 1927 competition with "Jalna."

SERVITORS OF THE ARTS

FEBRUARY BOOK CLUB CHOICES

"Mamba's Daughters" by Du Bose Heyward (review last week on this page) is the choice of the Literary Guild for February. The Book of the Month club offers "Kristin Lavransdatter" by Sigrid Undset, which is a sort of Forsythe Saga from the pen of the year's winner of the Nobel prize, inasmuch as it is the famous trilogy under one roof, as it were. The three books were: "The Bridal Wreath," published in 1923, "The Mistress of Hussby" (1925) and "The Cross" (1927). The Book League of America gives its subscribers the first volume of a two volume novel called "Prima Donna" which is to be published for the world at large on Feb. 15. The first volume was their January offering. "Pere Marquette" by Agnes Repplier is the choice of the Catholic Book club, Inc., and the Religious Book club offers "The Life of John Wesley" by Sir Alfred Lunt. "Dead Men's Shoes" by Lee Thayer is the choice of the Detective Story club.

TO REFRAIN FROM JESTING SCARCELY IS GALLIC DINNER CUSTOM

"A Voyage to the Island of the Articoles," by André Maurois [Appleton].

The author of "Ariel" and "Disraeli" [which incidentally was the best selling book of nonfiction in the United States last year] has permitted himself in this tiny little volume a jaunt into the satirical.

Perhaps—who could refute it—inspired by the round of dinings and fêtings that marked his visit to America, he conceived the land of the Articoles where one of the duties of the ruling half of the population was to allow itself to be dined by the wealthy but uncreative other half and to let fall an occasional memorable word.

The island—founded by an English novelist and a few followers who had retreated to it to be able to do their art work in peace—had become in a few generations a community where the ideal was the person who did only creative work, who never faced reality, only art, and who graciously allowed himself to be fed and waited upon [actually and metaphorically] by the uncreative.

The ranks of the creators were slightly overcrowded, due to the obvious advantages of being "called" to art, but there was no revolt among the Beos, who gave of their wealth and their daughters without complaint. It is an amusing idea, and André Maurois has a gorgeous time with its assorted ramifications. David Garnett, author of that incomparable satire, "Lady Into Fox," has made the English translation. F. Hunting Dogs Find New Historian of Their Efforts

"Hounds and Hunting Through the Ages," by Joseph B. Thomas, M. F. H. [Derrydale Press].

With the countless handsome books on the hunt that appear each year and have appeared for generations one would think that there was little left to be written about the most exclusive of all sports, but Mr. Thomas' book is actually something new under the sun of hunting books. He explains in a preface that he began writing the book as a series of simple letters to his son, which "would impart something of the romance and practice of hunting" and "spare him some of the mistakes I have made."

The book grew until it became a volume of hunting lore and practice, and a record of incomparable experiences. In a delightful dedication to his son he explains the moral benefits to be derived from the chase as well as the physical.

Mr. Thomas not only tells of the history of the hunt, but imparts the secrets of a lifetime devoted to a love of the sport and an active participation in it. He brings, as it were, the hunt to America, locates it against an American background. Some of the illustrations are of rare hunting scenes in the states as well as in England.

Literary Calendar

Feb. 10, 1775, was the birthday of the most beloved of all English essayists, Charles Lamb. His entire literary output can be crowded into two volumes and yet there are thousands of readers who know whole paragraphs of his work by heart who never heard of many a more prolific or more literarily gaudy writer.

Feb. 12 is celebrated all over the United States as the birthday of one of its two greatest Presidents. His greatness as a statesman blinds many to the fact that Abraham Lincoln was one of the greatest writers America has ever produced. For purity of vocabulary, succinctness of phrase, and perfect mating of sense and word, the speeches of Abraham Lincoln are unsurpassed. To read them is to read literature.

On the same day that Abraham Lincoln was born Charles Darwin, one of England's greatest scientists, saw the light of day. Eighteen hundred and nine was a great year for geniuses. The whole existing theory of evolution was upset by Darwin's epoch making "The Origin of Species," when it was published in 1859, and the echoes of the controversy which it caused have not died yet. Witness the Scopes trial in Tennessee.

Nineteen years later George Meredith began his life. He became one of the greatest novelists and poets of his day, although for years the mere mention of his name sent many English critics into spasms of abuse.

Feb. 14, 1819, was a great day for the literary business, for on that day was born Christopher Latham Sholes, the inventor of the typewriter.

Anna Howard Shaw, one of the foremost suffrage leaders and author of the famous "Story of a Pioneer" was born on Feb. 14, 1847.

Feb. 16, 1740, was the birthday of Giambattista Bodoni, an Italian printer who was famous for his editions of Homer, Virgil and other classical authors and whose "Manuale Tipografico" was one of the first volumes on typography. His name lives in Bodoni type.

On Feb. 16, 1840, one of the best known newspaper editors in America was born. Henry Watterson was for fifty-three years editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and known all over the country as "Marse Henry."

Praise Indeed.

Prince Mirsky, professor of Russian literature in the University of London, visiting in New York, said of Dorothy Thompson's "The New Russia": "It is far and away the best book in English on the subject that has come my way."

MR. MONTAGU NORMAN IN WASHINGTON.

The Federal Reserve board has issued a threat to withdraw credit from banks belonging to the Federal Reserve system which continue to lend money to Wall street for speculative purposes.

The Bank of England has raised its rediscount rate from 4½ to 5½ per cent.

These might be unrelated facts but they are not. As Mr. Henning was careful to point out in his dispatch to THE TRIBUNE, the connecting fact is the visit of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, to the United States. The inference that our reserve bank policy was arrived at in response to his pleading is inevitable.

The prosperity of the United States should be the sole interest of the reserve board. It is a matter of the utmost gravity, then, that the policy of the board should have been determined in any manner by the pleadings of the chief figure in British finance. It may be that the threat against speculation issued by the board can be justified on its American merits, but that fact should not be allowed to conceal the more important one of foreign influence in our affairs.

The bull market is no new phenomenon; with few setbacks stock prices have been climbing for four years. The greatest single influence toward speculation was the lowering of our discount rates months ago, again in answer to Montagu Norman's appeal. The lowering of interest rates here was intended, and did result, in the flow of gold to European nations where rates were higher. Because the reserve board at that time was thinking in international instead of in national terms, the board paid scant attention to the results in this country which its action would entail. The lowering of interest rates here, as was plainly foreseen at the time, encouraged speculation to the point where the board now says speculation is a menace. The board may be right, but if it is, the blame is easily placed. And the danger of subordinating American interests should have been sufficiently manifest to serve as a warning against future action in response to foreign appeals.

MR. BOK AND THE BIRDS.

It would appear that Mr. Bok has been misunderstood in his efforts at Mountain Lake, Fla. The newspapers have him creating there a bird sanctuary with the singing tower, dedicated by President Coolidge, rising in the tranquil beauties of the preserve for songsters and game birds.

The birds for which Mr. Bok provides sanctuary are his own featherless fellow citizens. The other birds are welcome to the retreat partly because by entering it they add to the beauties the folk are invited to enjoy. Mr. Coolidge seems to have understood the human purposes of the cloister. He said: "It has been designated as a sanctuary, because within it people may temporarily escape from the pressure and affliction of the affairs of life and find that quiet and repose which comes from a closer communion with the beauties of nature."

One of the most effective illusions of humanity is that repose and tranquillity are found in nature where the sum of life is the rule of the claw and where constant destruction is the law of continued existence. Nevertheless folk find the scene of the struggle quiet and peaceful and a relief from the ordered and protected flow of their own lives. The fable has potency and the fact none.

In spite of the President's designation of the purpose of the sanctuary the reporters threw it to the birds and there it will remain, a bird retreat incidentally visited by people.

DIVIDING THE GAS TAX.

The distribution of the gas tax revenue under Gov. Emmerson's three cent assessment plan is not acceptable to the larger municipalities of the state. Members of the Illinois Municipal league are on record against the administration's scheme of allocating two cents to the state road building fund and one cent to the county producing the income. As an alternative it is proposed that the cities share in the proceeds by dividing one-third of the total gas tax returns of the state among themselves according to the proportion the number of motor vehicles in the individual cities holds to the number of motors in the state. According to the same formula the counties would divide another third of the tax and the state would receive the third portion.

The Municipal league arrangement is not necessarily the proper adjustment, but it represents an attempt at an equitable distribution. Gov. Emmerson, in recommending the one cent diversion for the county, acknowledges the claim of the counties to enjoy immediate and direct improvements in the proportion of their assessments. But it is only approximately equitable, and in the case of Chicago and Cook county the least so. What the Municipal league proposes is a refinement of the principle which the governor has acknowledged and this plan, or perhaps a more precisely equitable one, should have the audience of the assembly.

The man who would be most unjustly burdened by the administration's plan is the driver whose movements are restricted to the streets of Chicago. His thoroughfares are pounded by trucks and buses; he is taxed to keep his streets in repair and it is proposed that he shall be loaded with a further assessment for the improvement of highways upon which he has least occasion to travel. This class of motorists is discriminated against; it is a large group and most of its members are Chicagoans. Why these drivers should not profit from a tax upon their fuel is not apparent.

SEA LAW AND SEA POWER.

In parliament Sir Austen Chamberlain has been stepping around questions intended to develop the British government's position as to Senator Borah's amendment to the cruiser bill. It provides for an approach to a conference which will revise sea law for the protection of neutral rights in war. As a substitute for naval competence a revised code would be small protection for the trade of a nation caught in the imperative needs of warring powers. In war sea law is modified to meet the requirements of the sea power able to dictate.

Neutral rights on the sea then are about what the strength of the neutral can make them. If Great Britain were the neutral and Italy and France were at war the sea code would be observed as to British trade. If Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan were at war with soviet Russia the sea code would be largely what they wanted it to be. Before the United States entered the world war the American government was protesting British conduct which violated the rights of American trade. In any great war American trade rights as a neutral will be respected about as its navy is respected.

If a revised treaty is not proposed as a substitute for naval increase a better definition of neutral rights has its advantages, assuming that there is a fair chance the United States will be a neutral and not a belligerent. As a belligerent the United States might be forced to readjust the sea code to its needs.

World opinion is a force a belligerent is reluctant to arouse against its cause. The promptness with which a nation at war attempts to take over the moral side of the struggle and to bring its opponent before the bar of judgment indicates the value of a generally favorable opinion. The enemy must be isolated from sympathy in his treachery and brutality. To a certain point this will deter great sea powers. Against weaker ones the code will be enforced by the great neutrals in their own interests.

Furthermore, in setting aside the law for its own needs a nation takes a chance of having to pay for it. The payment may never be commensurate with the damage done, but there will be a remedy for some of the injury. A case was that of the judgment against Great Britain for the damage done American shipping by the British built commerce destroyers. The award of $15,500,000 in the Alabama case may not have approached the total of the financial hurt, but Great Britain was in an uneasy position when the north came out of the civil war with a powerful army and navy and with a deep sense of injury.

A loser is almost certain to pay for violations of sea code regarded as depredations and even a winner may find it expedient to submit to the claims of nations too powerful to be ignored. It is probably true that the United States stands to gain more than to lose by a law more carefully protecting the rights of neutral trade. It may be true that Great Britain takes the other chance.

Sir Austen when questioned no doubt feels that by meeting Senator Borah part way Great Britain will encourage the American pacifists but in doing so is taking considerable risk. A failure in conference to agree to rules safeguarding neutral rights might have the same effect as the failure at Geneva on cruisers and turn the United States to ship building again. Sea power and sea law contain the destiny of Great Britain and its statesmen seldom approach the subject with any illusions.

Editorial of the Day

GOVERNMENT IN COTTON.

What is known as the Vinson bill has passed the house of representatives and been sent to the senate, where it has passed the second reading and been referred to the senate committee of agriculture and forestry.

The grain futures act furnishes the model after which this bill is drafted not because that law offers any aid to the cotton business but because the Supreme court decided it was constitutional. Like the present bill, the grain futures law, among other things, was aimed at eliminating fluctuations in the grain markets. In the political mind price fluctuations and manipulations are synonymous, therefore the legal sword was made with which to slay that fell monster supposed to eat up all the fruits of the farmer's toil. Armed with this weapon the St. George of political agriculture attacked the monster, but up to date he has not drawn blood.

In December, 1924, wheat for May delivery at Chicago fluctuated 25⅛ cents a bushel; the next month, January, 1925, the spread was 32⅜ cents and in February the monster wiggled over 35 cents differences. By this time the arm of St. George must have wearied, because May wheat went from a high point of 202 down to 140½, a fluctuation of 61½ cents, or over 30 per cent in the month. Coming down to more recent days, we find St. George still fighting his hopeless fight. In April, 1928, May wheat ranged between 171½ and 142, a difference of 29½ cents a bushel, and the July future fluctuated 29¼ cents. The next month the May delivery fluctuated 29 cents and the July 25 cents a bushel.

Cotton, which has had no St. George to fight for it, is not now enjoying any such fluctuations. After September, 1928, the market was satisfied as to the approximate size of the crop. The next important unknown quantity was world consumption. These two things—supply and demand—in the market mind are the price makers. Without any law to regulate the business, May cotton in October, 1928, ranged between 19.75 and 16.26 cents a pound; in November it ranged between 18.58 and 20.79 cents. There were only three days in which it was below 19 cents; the difference between the high and low was from a gradual increase through the month. In December the range was from 19.55 to 20.42 cents. There were only three days in which the price was under 20 cents and throughout the month the high and low points were close together.

At the present time the cotton market does not seem to be sending a very loud S O S call to the government to save it from an imagined danger. Neither has the government's record in wheat shown it to be qualified as a capable savior.

BATTLE OF THE BIG POTATO.

THE Northern Pacific railroad says it began using big baked potatoes as an advertising stunt about 18 years ago. It was about that date that Mr. Titus, superintendent of their dining car service, began the campaign.

But about eight years ago the N. P. diners did not serve big baked potatoes. Mr. Titus was for them, the railroad was for them, and the potato growers of Idaho and Montana were for them. Against them were the Amalgamated Order of Conductors and Cooks. They were backed up by one very practical proposition. A dining car stove was too small to cook enough big baked potatoes to meet the demand. The battle waged, as battles have a way of doing. When the smoke cleared, Mr. Titus was out and big baked potatoes had disappeared from the bill of fare. When I tried to get one, the conductor said "Nay, and, what's more, never again." And then he assumed the rôle of war correspondent.

Something has happened. Maybe dining car stoves are larger or else big baked potatoes are smaller. At any rate, the Northern Pacific is again baiting the traveling public with big baked potatoes. And they should, if they can, arrange matters with the stove.

The baked potato is fine food. It is high in food value and rich in mineral. It forms an alkaline ash which makes it suitable for use with meats. It is not so rich in some vitamins, but it is commonly eaten with foods which make up any deficiency that might exist in that direction. Containing more moisture than flour or bread, potato is more suitable than the latter for those who tend to fatten, and diabetics have a little more liberty with it.

And baking is the best way to cook a potato. In baking none of the minerals are leached out and the peeling is made tasty and edible. Let us interject a word in favor of eating some, if not all, of the potato peel.

Another advantage in baked potatoes is that there is a greater chance to escape grease and condiments. The best way to eat a baked potato is without salt, pepper, or even butter. Most people can be persuaded not to use pepper. Potato contains enough mineral to make the use of salt unnecessary. It will be digested more easily if it is free from fat.

METOL POISON TREATMENT.

R. B. K. writes: Recently one of your correspondents asked about metol poisoning. As you may or may not know, metol is a photographic developer, having the chemical name mono-methyl para-amido-phenol-sulphate. In his "Photographic Facts and Formulas," the late Prof. E. J. Wall gives a treatment for metol poisoning which you may find of interest. Metol poisoning [Beers]. The hands should be dipped into a saturated solution of paraffin in gasoline before using metol. Less severe forms of the trouble can be treated with: Carbolic acid, 160 gr.; powdered calamine, 240 gr.; zinc oxide, 480 gr.; glycerine, 1 ounce; lime water, 4 ounces; rose water, q. s. ad, 16 oz. Rub the zinc and calamine into a smooth paste with the glycerine, and add the carbolic acid and the rest of the waters. This may be applied during the day. The following should be applied at night: Salicylic acid, 15 gr.; boric acid, 60 gr.; starch powder, 120 gr.; zinc oxide, 60 gr.; petrolatum, 1 ounce.

Flexible collodion should be applied to all cracks during the day. Prof. Wall does not vouch for the formulas given in his book beyond saying that they have been selected "as far as possible, only from credible sources," but it seems to me that any one suffering from so painful an affliction might well give the above a fair trial.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

WIDENING OF LA SALLE.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Friend of the People.]—Can property on the near north side from Ohio to Eugenie street be assessed for the La Salle street widening inasmuch as the bond issues for same have not been passed? I paid the assessment for widening from Washington to Ohio street a year ago, but the work has not been done as yet.

G. L.

The property in question is evidently within the assessed district for the widening of La Salle street from Ohio street to Eugenie street, as laid out by the commissioners and approved by the court. While it is true that the bond issues were not approved by the voters when submitted, the fact still remains that there is a judgment of confirmation for the widening of La Salle street as mentioned, entered by the court Dec. 27, 1928. The assessment roll was certified for collection on Jan. 7, 1929.

By reason of these facts this improvement must be brought to a successful conclusion. The total cost of same is $5,944,852.20. The city's share in connection therewith, as ordered by the court, is $3,046,719.79, and the remainder, $2,898,132.41, assessed against property owners within the benefited district. The necessary funds to pay the public benefit, which is the city's share of the assessment, will have to be raised from some source, and the only logical way is through a bond issue.

A large portion of La Salle street from Washington street to Ohio street has been widened, and the board is making every effort to progress with this second section as fast as possible. JOHN C. HENDRICKS, Opening and Widening Division, Board of Local Improvements.

DIVORCE THROUGH PERJURY.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife left me recently for no reason whatever and I learn she intends to get a divorce on false grounds.

1. She claims she does not know my present whereabouts.
2. Could I arrest her for perjury?
3. If so, when?
4. Before or after it is committed?
5. Is it published?
6. Where. H. J.

1. If you wish to hold her in this respect, it would be advisable to write letters advising her of your place of residence and keep copies of the letters. 2. Yes, if you place yourself in the position to make sufficient proof. 3. As soon as the perjury is committed. 4. By inquiring of the clerks of the courts of divorce jurisdiction where she resides. 5. Yes, if summons is not served personally. 6. Ordinarily in papers that no one but lawyers read.

A SON OF THE SHADOWS.

I bought a little boat today
For a son I've never born;
I took it home and put it on
The shelf beside his horn.

Whenever the dark comes crawling,
My hungry heart-eyes see
Him stealing from the shadows
With never a glance at me.

He seems to like the moonbeams
Much better than the boat—
Oh, if he'd take it from the shelf
And try to make it float.

There never lived a taller boy,
Nor one so brave and fine,
As he that never can be born
Save in this heart of mine.

All right, one guess is as good as another. We will bet Calumet Chapel that Charley Lindbergh will be a member of Mr. Hoover's cabinet. One bone, Cal. Chap., are you on? We deduce that Charley will be in the cabinet, because when he was asked at Cristobal if Mr. Hoover had offered him a cabinet job Charley replied, "There's no authority for such a statement." Now, that was a truthful statement, but also a clever piece of sidestepping. Therefore—hey, Cal. Chap., are you on or not? One bone that Charley goes into the cabinet!

RHL: Well lifes almost a flop—one more year on this here farm . . . yeah I married a farmer. Ma says not ta doit because love didnt work in a cottage and I wouldnt of if I hadnt a come back on an awful rebounce after that affair I had with oh well you know and then he ups and marries a lotta municipal bonds and her old mans house. Everybody says they envy me with my outdoor life an home made butter an fresh eggs an sugar cured hams. Well I aint got no option on tha fresh air and Armour makes what hams we got and Swifts do tha churnin and I guess tha eggs come from Cudahy or somebody an we get our oats at tha elevator for tha horse—all we gots milk—mi gawd but we got milk and I'm so fat and healthy because we get up at four. Ya cant milk a cow at nine. Tha cows wont give milk at nine because tha cows gotta union. Tha only time a cow gives milk at nine is at night. D'ya spose a cow would give milk at four in the afternoon? Well yer nutty with tha hay if ya think so. Well then we gotta separate tha milk and after we get all tha straw and dirt outa tha milk my hubsand and his first name is Wallace takes tha milk to town and gets into a rhummy game at tha Palace barber shop and tha town bums put him through tha separator again. Sometimes we have more milk than we know what to do with and Wallace says to separate tha curds from tha whey and make some smearcase. Wouldnt that cork ya—separate tha curds from tha whey and make some smearcase! Well if thats livin in tha country with tha birds and tha flowers then them aint tha words Wallace used when he held my hand before we was married.

SATURDAY AGAIN. In summer time on Saturday afternoon you can go out in a sailboat, or you can play tennis, or watch the White Sox get licked by the Cardinals, or wander down the shady lane with somebody you know, and hold hands and sing "Sweet Adeline" until somebody starts throwing things.

BUT THIS SATURDAY afternoon you walk in slush up to your knees, or darned near, and you can stop and rub your nose against a plate glass and look at the trunks and suitcases, which the sign says are the very thing for your vacation trip to Europe, or you go to the library and all the books you wanted are out, or you just sit around and yawn. What guy invented this winter thing anyhow?

EVERYBODY, including the writer of the "Oh My God—The Movies!" department in the American Sketch, has told it now so it is probably sufficiently disinfected to appear in this family hitching post. When Dorothy Parker arrived in Hollywood to do patter for the lispies, she was shown to the room that was to be her office and asked what she would like painted on the door. She replied, "Men."

BILL RUSSELL, the w. k. chief of police, in his weekly warning this week tells everybody to look out for dips and not carry any more loose change around with 'em than is absolutely necessary. Bill, you don't know how careful we are to obey your tip. We never have any more money than that. And, it's a funny thing, we never have had.

TAKE IT from Variety, this enlightening bit was overheard in a millinery shop just off Broadway: "That new boy friend of yours from Chicago—is he a business man?" "Yeah—croak and shoot business."

"I HAF NOZZING to say," chirruped Suzanne when the boys from the Paris rags interviewed her regarding her marriage, "no, hommig, I shall then to marry thees Monsieur Bal'ween." How different from our Helen who answered the reporter birds, "I cannot discuss such a question. I must refer you to my parents." And yet Urup says our gals are the wild young devils compared with theirs.

THERE OUGHT to be a law against publishing pictures of big, strong, able bodied guys being wheeled around Miami in a wicker go-cart pushed by a Senegambian. FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 9, 1864.

WASHINGTON.—The movement by part of the Army of the Potomac on Feb. 6 across the Rapidan was not a bona fide advance, but merely a demonstration, the real significance of which will soon be disclosed. The 3d corps crossed the river on pontoons after driving back the enemy's pickets with artillery and moved from the south bank toward Orange courthouse. After a few hours the advance, consisting of the 2d division, Gen. Hayes, came up with a large force of the enemy in a strong position, and immediately attacked the rebels. Fighting continued until after dark, when our troops, in accordance with orders, fell back to the north bank of the river.

MEMPHIS.—Gen. Sherman's army moved forward from Vicksburg last week, the 16th army corps under Gen. Hurlbut following the 17th army corps under Gen. McPherson, which has the advance. Before this time they have not only captured Jackson, Miss., but probably have attacked Polk's rebel forces at Meridian, fifty miles east of Jackson. It is confidently believed that Polk's force, estimated at 15,000, will be "gobbled up." This is the first article on Gen. Sherman's program. The 15th army corps under Gen. John A. Logan has marched from Huntsville, Ala., westward to join Sherman. These movements are part of a general plan of operations which Gen. Grant has adopted for a grand spring campaign in the gulf states.

FEBRUARY 9, 1899.

CHICAGO.—Blown in on a northwest gale, a cold wave settled on Chicago and caught everything in its grip. The weather bureau at 10 o'clock last night issued this prediction: "From indications tonight the thermometer will register the lowest temperature on record in this office before morning. The previous low record was in 1872, when it dropped to 23 degrees below zero. At 9 o'clock tonight it registered 15 below, the coldest for the year, and it is steadily falling."

MANILA.—The advance on Iloilo has begun. In pursuance of orders from Washington, Gen. Otis has sent reinforcements to Gen. Miller. The Tennesseans have just sailed on the transport St. Paul. The Filipinos at Caloocan opened fire last night on the Kansas outposts of the American line. They made a stand behind entrenchments and were charged by Kansas troops led by Col. Fred Funston, resulting in their rout with heavy loss.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The British cruiser Porpoise and German cruiser Falk came near having a battle at Apia, passengers on the steamer Moana report. The Porpoise trained her guns on the German warship and was all ready for action. The steamer brings full details of all the trouble in Samoa over the kingship which has caused strife among representatives of the foreign governments there.

FEBRUARY 9, 1919.

SEATTLE.—Faced by desertions in union ranks, coupled with results brought about by Mayor Ole Hanson's ultimatum that troops would be used if necessary to restore Seattle's business to normal, the sympathetic strike, involving about 55,000 workers, seemed near its end. During the afternoon business fast began assuming normal conditions. Municipal street cars had been operating all day. All but two newspapers have appeared.

PARIS.—The first world's constitution, practically complete, will be given the test of universal public opinion next week. One clause accepted is that the league shall have an international army as well as navy. A supreme economic council to handle all questions of finance, food, blockade, and control of shipping and raw materials was established at the suggestion of President Wilson.

ARCHANGEL.—British and Russian troops, supported by American machine gun and trench mortar units, advanced five miles down the Petrograd road from Kadish. Two bolshevist guns were captured. The attack was made to protect the American positions at Sredmakrenga, about 30 miles eastward, from a flank attack. The bolsheviki are shelling the American positions in the Vaga sector continuously.

THE PROBLEM OF THE AMATEUR.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—You stated incorrectly in your editorial, "The Tennis Sham," that the California association will not permit Bill Tilden or Miss Wills to make money openly. There is nothing that can prevent an amateur tennis player becoming professional. The more the United States Professional Tennis association is encouraged and fostered, the better it will be for all tennis, including amateur tennis.

You seem to imply that tennis is having trouble along the line of amateurism that other sports are not having. Is it not also true that track, swimming and golf have amateurs who ought to be professionals? Johnnie Weissmuller has just announced that he has retired from amateur swimming, and yet for seven or eight years he has been traveling all around the world without any visible means of income. He states that he was a poor boy before he started breaking amateur swimming records.

Jole Ray, after many years of amateur running, dropped out a couple of years ago to go into the professional game. It wasn't very long before he applied for reinstatement as an amateur, stating that he had been unable to make any money as a professional. The fact that he was reinstated might indicate that his claims were correct.

Chick Evans, although an amateur, holds a job of golf architect, or golf supervisor, for the forest preserve district.

How many so-called simon pure amateurs in any line of sport are not profiting directly or indirectly as lawyers, insurance men, real estate salesmen or brokers of stocks and bonds?

LADIES OF THE CHURCH.

Danville, Ill., Feb. 6.—I am a Methodist, and in reply to G. C. Shaw want to set him right on the assertion that his business is being hampered by selling of greeting cards by the ladies of the Methodist church. They are not selling in opposition to the local dealers. The local dealers sell cards to the ladies' church society at a small margin above cost and the ladies sell them at the same retail price as the dealer, making a sum set by the local dealer.

M. H. EVS.

SOLICITING CRIPPLES.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—I would like to call your attention to the Cook county hospital. In ward thirty-four for patients with broken arms and legs a man comes in with the aid of some of the employés and advises you that it is necessary to buy one of his braces, which consist of two pieces of rolled steel welded on a ring with a leather pad, price $18, which should not cost more than $1.50. I think this practice is going on without the knowledge of the officials. B. W.

MILK FOR GINGERBREAD.

Oak Park, Ill., Feb. 6.—Will some chemist or milk inspector tell me and a lot of my neighbors why our milk does not sour like good honest milk should, but becomes rancid and stringy? A bottle of milk two or three days old used to mean a good batch of gingerbread or sour milk biscuit. Now it means a total loss, for it is bitter and unfit for use. The condition seems to get worse all the time. HOUSEWIFE.

BOATING IN CHICAGO HARBORS.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—I was pleased to read your editorial on the yachting situation in Chicago and vicinity. You have pointed out the needs of the boatmen—more harbors and moorings.

Chicago has many natural harbors along its shore line which should be utilized for the convenience of visiting yachtsmen. Belmont harbor, the downtown harbor, and Jackson park harbor are the ports of which Chicago now boasts. They were very good a few years ago, but due to the increasing number of yachts in Chicago they are no longer adequate for Chicago's own boats, much less visiting yachts.

I am sorry to say that Chicago is known as the most inhospitable port on the great lakes. One of the reasons for this is that we have no moorings for visiting yachtsmen to tie their boats and other conveniences which ports in other cities along the great lakes boast. Belmont harbor could be made a paradise for yachtsmen if the docks and moorings were laid out by a competent engineer who understood the wants of the yachtsmen. JOSEPH H. NICOLAI.

YACHTING FOR THE PEOPLE.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—I wish to take off my hat to the man who inspired the editorial, "Chicago Yachts and Small Harbors." It is quite timely and to the point. The yacht clubs of Chicago have been in the throes of a constant struggle with the local park boards to provide moorings for motor and sail boats used for recreation. Such limited facilities as we now enjoy are very good but their use is hampered by too many bureaucratic restrictions. We need more mooring facilities and fewer restrictions governing their use.

The Cook county forest preserve commissioners have a wonderful opportunity to serve the power yachtsmen by constructing docks or landings at a number of beautiful forest preserves on the Little Calumet river. We have petitioned them repeatedly to provide these facilities but to no avail.

Boating in all its branches offers most safe and sane sport and recreation that many other forms of sport and should be encouraged by providing more yacht harbors. Now is the time for the park boards to act since the lake front north and south of the Chicago river is in process of transformation. Contrary to popular belief, boating is not a rich man's sport. G. W. SCHAEFFER.

CHARGES CRITICS WITH PERSECUTION.

Somonauk, Ill., Feb. 4.—What a glorious thing it is to belong to the Protestant church in America today! I read the attacks of THE TRIBUNE upon the American Protestant clergy, and I rejoice that I am an ordained minister. There come to mind those words of our Lord: "Blessed are those who have endured persecution for their righteousness, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to them!"

May the good God raise up more prophets like McConnell, Cadman and Fosdick each time the conscienceless forces of the land seek to smite them. "The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." Long live the church!

SYNOPSIS.

Hickory Hill has been the homestead of the Freers for generations. Cynthia Freer, clinched to it by family obligations and a promise to her mother never to leave her, strains at her bonds and longs to be free of the place and all it entails.

Dolly Freer, Cynthia's mother, meets the new assistant rector of St. Timothy's church in town and invites him to Hickory Hill to meet her family. Aunt Lizzy Freer, Dolly's sister-in-law, has been an invalid for twenty-five years, but she runs the family and all business from her bed.

Barney, Dolly's eldest son, is delighted at Claire's arrival and the cousins spend a great deal of time together. Barney is a wild youth, but the most popular of the Freer clan.

Curtis Benson is invited to play with the Herbert Freers in town for a few weeks, and Mrs. Herbert Freer gives a tea for him, to which most of the parishioners are invited. Dorothy Freer goes home early and Curtis Benson offers to drive Cynthia home in his little car. On the way they come upon two wrecked cars and are horrified to see Barney sitting by the roadside in a dazed condition. On coming to he tells Cynthia that Claire, who was with him, was rushed to a hospital along with the occupant of the other car. Cynthia sees Iser McGuirk, Uncle Herbert's chauffeur, who had been her childhood playmate, lying unconscious near the car.

When Iser recovers he is arrested as the driver of the speeding car. He is unable to remember just what preceded the accident. Claire dies in the hospital that night and Barney is put to bed, broken in spirit and ill from exposure. Cynthia is haunted by the suspicion that it was Barney and not Iser who drove the car at the time of the crash. She tells Benson of her suspicion, but he pays no attention to it. After several weeks Peter Kelsey arrives from the Philippines, where he has been stationed as a captain in the medical corps.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

SYMPATHY.

"I kept thinking Claire would come to her senses and join me. I met every steamer and waited for every mail. She didn't come and she didn't write, not even to acknowledge my monthly checks. Then I swallowed my pride and implored her for news of the children. At the end of the year she sent a brief scatter brain letter saying she was out of funds and asking me to enable her more money so she could get back to America. Then I heard nothing more until the news of her death."

"And such a death," said Cynthia with a shudder.

"You were with her?"

"Yes, to the last."

Peter put his hand over his eyes as if to keep from visualizing the thing he had dreaded to face ever since his return. "Poor girl!" he said brokenly, and then added, "Poor kid!"

For a while they both were silent, looking into the fire, then Peter drew a deep breath and straightened his shoulders.

"You can't imagine what a relief it's been to me to talk to you like this. You see, I've never mentioned it to any one. Sometimes I wonder—— Will you answer me something frankly? If I had been more patient, do you think Claire would ever have made a good mother?"

"No," Cynthia said.

"Wasn't she any—any different after she got to Kentucky?"

Never had Peter seen a place he liked as well as Hickory Hill farm.

Cynthia hesitated. "Well, she was still Claire. I doubt if anything would have changed her."

"And it was you who took care of the children and made them what they were?" Peter had a hard time keeping the full warmth of his gratitude out of his voice. "And now I am repaying you by taking them away from you. I should think you would hate me more than all the rest put together!"

"But I don't," she answered stoutly. "I think you've had a rotten deal. And as for the children, they belong to you, and they ought to be with you."

He grasped her hand in speechless gratitude. What a load rolled off his heart! What comfort at last to have some one who understood and sympathized.

Behind them the door creaked on its hinges and a voice said: "Honey chile, where is you?" Then as the dark intruder spied Peter she instantly withdrew her woolly head with the apology: "Fo' Gawd, Mis' Cynthy, I never knowed you had a beau in de parlor!"

Cynthia laughed and sprang to her feet. "Mercy! What a time I have been loafing! I haven't been near Barney, nor Aunt Lizzie, and the housework has never been touched. You are a demoralising person, Capt. Peter Kelsey. You must go straight home this very minute!"

"I am coming back to lunch," Peter warned her.

"You are not," she said, then she relented. "But why not? All the conscientious objectors are out of the way. Come back at twelve-thirty and I will give you pot luck."

It was the first time Peter had been accorded the privilege of breaking bread with the Freer family, and as the bread happened to be golden corn pone made of water ground meal, together with sugar cured ham, foamy pone made of water ground meal, together with sugar cured ham, foamy buttermilk and apple pie, and as the family happened to be represented by Cynthia only, the meal was an unqualified success.

Never had Peter seen a place he liked so much as Hickory Hill farm. He liked the low celled rooms and the quaint furniture and the homey shabbiness of it all. And, best of all, he liked the girl who was pouring his coffee out of a melon shaped silver coffee pot and listening to him with an understanding sympathy that broke down all his customary reticences and made him talk more about himself than he had ever talked to any one before.

He went clear back to the beginning and told of his lonely childhood in California, of his struggle to get a medical education, and then of his nerve-wracking, soul thrilling experiences in the army, when at twenty-three he was made a captain and put in charge of a hospital train, and later served in the thick of the turmoil in various field hospitals. He told her of being gassed and wounded, and of his long months of convalescence, during which he had gotten interested in research work, now the great interest of his life. He explained to her the wonderful opportunity that was being given to him in the Philippines of testing out his theories in regard to certain serums, and of the men high up in the profession who believed in him and were ready to stand by him. The only thing he did not dwell upon was the terrible handicap under which he had worked on account of his eyes, and the ever present fear that they would not stand the microscopic work necessary for the completion of his experiments.

"The department has been wonderfully generous," he told her; "when I applied for leave to come here for the children they gave me four months' furlough for my eyes to clear up. I am hoping to go back in great shape, but I must say I'll miss all this." Peter tried to make his glance comprehensive, but his effort was a complete failure.

"All this?" she repeated incredulously. "Why, there is nothing here in comparison to what you have there. It must be marvelous to have a great work and the chance to do the thing you are most interested in. You know, I have a life work, too; only I am too busy living to get at it."

"Your writing?"

She nodded. "It has probably meant as much to me as your work means to you, but I am a woman and you are a man, and that's the difference."

Peter thanked his stars that was the difference as he sat watching her face. It was an interesting face to study, full of keen intellectual perceptions and quick emotional responses. But now and again he caught an expression that puzzled him. Surely thwarted ambition could not bring that swift shadow of tragedy into the girl's eyes.

"See here!" he said, "I've talked your arm off about my affairs and rolled out all my troubles on you. Turn about is fair play. What about yours?"

"How do you know I have any?"

"I recognise the symptoms. Shall I diagnose your case?"

"If you like. Only you needn't expect a fee."

"You have atlasitis," announced Peter solemnly.

"You have atlasitis," announced Peter solemnly.

"It sounds fatal," she said; "what is it?"

"Carrying the world on your shoulders. I've seen enough of you to know that you are trying to play Providence to the whole family. That's God's business. Why do you butt in?"

Cynthia laughed. "Because I am an interfering person, I suppose."

"Your first duty," Peter stormed, "is to look after yourself. I must say you are not on your job."

"What would you have me do?" she asked meekly.

"What would you most like to do?"

She drew a deep breath and considered the matter. "Well, sometimes I think I'd like to be on a desert island, with a barrel of ink and a fountain pen and bales of paper; and at others I'd rather be a fairy and sit on a star blowing beautiful useless bubbles through eternity!"

"And instead," he said, "you wear yourself out, at the beck and call of everybody, waiting on people, humoring them, making them selfish and dependent. Don't you ever get off to yourself?"

"Sometimes," she retorted. "I was trying to this morning when you came in."

He laughed. "A nasty dig. But I deserve it. Seriously, can't you stop living other people's lives for them? It doesn't help them a bit, you know. The only way they can learn is through experience. I used to watch Pip and Jerry learning to walk, and I had a time keeping my hands off. Down they would go, again and again. Hard bumps, too. Then up they would scramble."

Good Morning!

His mamma's boy, Georgie Jessel, is struggling valiantly over on the United Artists' screen under a load that would crumple and cast down a player with less poise and ability. It is regretfully stated that "Lucky Boy" [sounds like a race horse] is long, mediocre fare whose only bright spot is its star, and whose star at times wearies you because of the things he must do, say and sing.

This picture is a sort of also ran to "The Singing Fool." It has a mamma instead of a Sonny Boy for its Benign Influence. That's the main difference.

George Jessel is nice, likable, artistic—but he's no human dynamo—and it would take one such to get away with this vehicle. Al Jolson could do it. He didn't have a much better story in "The Singing Fool." The difference between Jessel and Jolson lies in the fact that the former's a skit and the latter's a play. In this instance they've tried to make a skit into a play, and it didn't have the stuff.

Mr. Jessel is seen as the son of a watchmaker. He can sing so as to dissolve all the Hebrew ladies in his immediate neighborhood into tears and he wants to go on the stage. His papa doesn't want him to, but his mamma helps him.

He departs from the Bronx and in the west finds recognition and a beautiful Gentile girl—rich and aristocratic and everything—who's crazy for him. He comes back to Broadway and his mamma, and is the hit of the town.

The key song of the piece is "My Mother's Eyes," and Mr. Jessel sings it several times too often—or several times when he should just sing it once. Anyway you get good and sick of hearing it.

Photography, staging and acting are okay. Direction isn't. There were two directors on the job and neither one of them had sense enough to snap out of it in six reels. The film is, I believe, about ten reels long—and it seems twenty.

However—it has its moments.

Discussion of the design for a proposed war memorial for Chicago, to be placed on a lake front site south of Adams street, brought to light varied suggestions and ideas yesterday. The only chief point of agreement was that the memorial be chosen and erected in time for the World's Fair.

The design, which was prepared for the Chicago City Council War Memorial committee was submitted to representatives of 40 organizations meeting at the Chicago Woman's club yesterday by Howard Cheney, president of the Illinois Architects' association, and today representatives of various societies, representing all living veterans, and some representing descendants of still other wars, will meet at the Palmer house.

Mr. Cheney's design includes a long, narrow structure having in the center a monumental tower, 25 stories high, and at either end of the base of the building are spacious auditoriums, one to be dedicated to art and the other to music. The building is planned for a site on the water front.

Following explanation of the proposed memorial, Col. Henry L. Newbold, commander of the artillery reserve officers for the 6th corp area reminded those present that there was no appropriate place to train the 500 reserve officers in Chicago and suggested that the memorial be planned with officers training quarters.

"We should perpetuate the memory of those boys who sacrificed their lives by something which will prevent a similar sacrifice," he said.

Col. George Langhorne seconded Col. Newbold. Whatever the nature of the memorial, the state probably will be asked to appropriate $150,000.

Fanny Brice Weds Song Writer; Mayor Officiates

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Fannie Brice, who sings "My Man" and other songs, was married today to the man who wrote "There's a Rainbow 'Round My Shoulders" and "Will You Love Me in December as You Did in May?" The groom was Billie Rose, and Mayor James J. Walker, formerly of Tin Pan alley, performed the ceremony in the Municipal building. It was Mrs. Rose's third marriage, her second being to Nicky Arnstein.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Miss Jane Ulrey, 5721 Kimbark avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

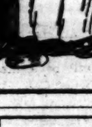
The Answers.

Mrs. E. O. Pyle, 8457 Fifth avenue, housewife.—"Hamlet."

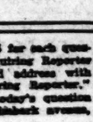
"This above all: to thine ownself be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man." I love those beautiful lines. "Hamlet" fairly rings with unmatchable sentences.

L. H. Schuler, 933 South Wenonah avenue, Oak Park, salesman—I like them all. I believe that the influence of the plays and poems of Shakespeare and the essays of Bacon and Montaigne has meant as much to me, if not more, than almost all other writings. My early home was in Boston.

Mrs. Jean Higgins, 801 Drexel square, clerk—"The Merchant of Venice" comes first to mind. It is a romantic play and I like it. "Romeo and Juliet" is a sweet play one can enjoy without any particular effort. "Hamlet" is a great play and "Macbeth" a heavy tragedy that will live forever.



S. L. Goldin, 2928 Pine Grove avenue, salesman—I have read almost all of Shakespeare's plays and I like most of them. At my graduation I wrote an essay on "Hamlet," and I suppose that play is the one that makes people think the most deeply. I have read much of the choice literature of the world, as I know several languages, but there is only one Shakespeare.



Miss Ann Bolon, 1509 South Springfield avenue, stenographer—I took a part in "The Merchant of Venice" at school and I thought it a wonderful play. I never saw any of Shakespeare's plays acted on the professional stage and I haven't had much time for reading since I left school.

Guise Wedding to Recall Day of Royal France

European Courts Will Be Represented.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Feb. 8.—The gayety of the pending wedding of Princess Francoise de Guise to Prince Christopher of Greece, who was formerly married to the late Mrs. Leeds, is darkened by the sudden death of the Spanish Queen Mother Christina, who was closely related to the French Bourbons.

The ceremonies will be exclusively in the Orleans palace, which has been the seat of the French royal exiles for many years. The civil marriage is to take place in a grand hall, and the religious in the jewel-like palatin of Palermo, Sicily. Witnesses for both ceremonies will be Manuel of Briganza, former king of Portugal and duke of Aosta for the bride, while Prince Umberto, Italian crown prince, and the former King George of Greece will be witnesses for the bridegroom. Invitations are rather limited for both the civil wedding on Sunday night at 8:30 and the religious ceremony on Feb. 11 at 11:30, for which invitation cards have been issued which are remarkable for their simple and extreme elegance, bearing the Guise arms and kindly telling the women to wear French afternoon high necked dress with hat. The men are to be in uniform or conventional civilian clothes.

The population of Palermo is getting excited over the royalties and personages coming over for the weddings. Besides the dukes of Guise, there is Prince Christopher at the Palm hotel as well as ex-King Manuel of Portugal and ex-Queen Victoria. The Spanish Infante Louis with Princess Louise and their two daughters have returned to Spain to attend the dead queen's funeral. Between today and tomorrow the queen mother of Greece, former King George II., Queen Victoria, Prince Andrew, Princess Mary and Princesses Marguerite and Theodora of Greece and Prince Paul, and Princess Mary of Serbia, Prince and Princess Nicholas of Greece, Princes Peter and George of Greece are expected. Sunday is to witness a warm Palermo welcoming of Prince Umberto and the duke of Aosta and others, including Princess Adelaide of Savoy.

Meanwhile the betrothed couple are visiting historical spots in the town. The former king of Portugal and Queen Victoria have done lots of touring around visiting interesting spots.

Miss Vickery Quits Girls' Latin School in June; New Plans

Once more the old order changes and the signal was given yesterday for a new era in the existance of a fashionable Gold Coast school. There came the formal resignation of Miss Mable S. Vickery, now in her thirty-fifth year as principal of the Chicago Latin School for Girls at 59-69 Scott street, that takes effect in June.

Past school in a bulletin to parents of prospective pupils explained its new plans. Parents of students have contracted to take the school off Miss Vickery's hands. There will be an issuance of $350,000 in securities. Children of those holding such securities will be eligible to the school.

The bulletin thus explains that feature: "In order to provide sufficient working capital a parent upon entering a pupil will purchase for $100 a certificate which will make the holder eligible for membership in the school corporation as provided in the by-laws. It is intended that this $100 shall be returned when the pupil leaves the school."

The bulletin also announced that the board of trustees, elected by the parent-owners, has engaged Miss Elizabeth Singleton of the Brearley school in New York City, a graduate of Radcliffe, to succeed Miss Vickery as principal. Miss Singleton will take office next fall.

Miss Vickery was a partner in establishing the original Latin School for Boys in 1888. In 1895 she opened a small annex for girls, at the request of Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick, who wished to enter his 6 year old daughter Elizabeth in the day school. Thus, the Chicago Latin School for Girls was started for Elizabeth McCormick, who died at the age of 12, and a group of her playmates.

The parents interested in the Chicago Latin School for Boys some time ago took over that institution.

Included among her former students were Mrs. Wesley Dixon, who was the former Kathryn Strawn, daughter of Silas H. Strawn; Nancy Anderson, one of Bishop Charles P. Anderson's daughters; Winifred Smith, daughter of Walter B. Smith; Katherine Dummer, who is now Mrs. Walter T. Fisher; Emily Otis, daughter of J. E. Otis; Mrs. Warren Ripple, niece of the late Mrs. Potter Palmer; Eleanor Follansbee, a young novelist of Chicago; Harriet and Beatrice Borland, daughters of Chauncey B. Borland; Mary Meeker, daughter of Arthur Meeker; Anna Marquis, who is now Mrs. Arthur Dixon; and Sarana Otis, daughter of Ralph C. Otis, who this year is president of the Junior league.

Miss Vickery's resignation will take effect in June. At that time she plans to return to her home in Boston. The board of trustees that will manage the school beginning next year are: Hopewell L. Rogers, president; Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, vice president; Mrs. Philip L. Reed, secretary; Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, treasurer; Lester Armour, William Bartholomay Jr., Paul W. Cleveland, Mrs. John Cochran, Frederick D. Corley, Mrs. Edwin I. Cudahy, Eugene E. Ford, Mrs. John L. Fortune, Charles Daniel Frey, Mrs. Horace Gray, Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill, Weymouth Kirkland, Mrs. William B. Parsons, I. Newton Perry, Paul K. Sims, Paul Steinbrecher, Walter V. Struby, Edgar I. Uihlein, Miss Mable S. Vickery, and John R. Thompson Jr.

St. Elizabeth's Hospital to Have $500,000 Addition

An effort to relieve the shortage of hospital beds in the northwest Chicago district will be made by the St. Elizabeth hospital, 1423 North Claremont avenue, which yesterday announced plans for a $500,000 addition to the present building.

The addition will be eight stories in height, will contain 150 beds, and also will house a free dispensary and clinic. Half the sum, according to Karl Eitel, chairman of the executive committee for the public appeal, will be given by friends, it is expected. The balance will be financed by the Sisters of the Order, the Poor Handmaids of Jesus Christ, who conduct not only St. Elizabeth hospital but also the Angel Guardian orphanage, St. Anne's hospital, and the Contagious Disease hospital for Chicago.

Boy Scouts' voices were raised last night as they rededicated themselves in all the cities and towns of the United States in which they are organized. In Chicago the 15,000 Scouts, meeting in their respective weekly assembly in 525 troops, were ready as scout masters gave the command to join their comrades all over the nation.

Stock Presents Novelties with His Orchestra

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Of the considerable amount of new music introduced by Mr. Stock at the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert yesterday afternoon, first place for skill, light touch, and enjoyable qualities generally is, as far as one vote is concerned, awarded to the two numbers by Barbara Giuranna, "Marionette" and the suite, "Apina Stolen by the Dwarfs of the Mountain."

Signora Giurana, the wife of Mario Giuranna, an assistant conductor of the Civic Opera company, was a Chicago resident during the opera season. Wherefore the opera company is entitled to honors by marriage, for she has done something worth while. She has imagination and a sense of the humorous in music, and, judged by these pieces, she declines to sentimentalize.

Brightness and charm are valuable qualities, and because she has them and knows how to express them, she will probably in her own good time become well known. At any rate, she has made an excellent start.

The next novelty was a "Symphonic Dance in Basque Style" from the opera, "Die Baskische Venus," by Hermann Hans Wetzler. Here the composer seems to have picked up four Basque dances and developed them into a concerted number. The beginning, a fandango, aroused hopes that here would be something to add to important ballet literature, because it came trippingly from the orchestra with a good deal of manner. Soon, however, Wetzler apparently decided that loud music was more to the purpose, and the rest of the work was both loud and heavy handed.

After the intermission appeared Yolanda Mérö, the soloist of the afternoon, bearing another new work, "Capriccio Ungarese," for piano and orchestra, from her own pen. There is a formula for writing works of this sort. Pick out your country, in this case Hungary, present a slow tune ending in a cadenza, a fast tune, another slow tune, another cadenza, and so on. Mme. Mérö did her task with considerable feeling for the piano as a brilliant solo instrument, and being herself a brilliant soloist, she worked out something that was both melodious and effective. She was greatly applauded.

Elsewhere on the program Mr. Stock played Weber's fine overture to "Oberon," the Haydn-Brahms Variations, opus 56A, another fine work until Brahms got to making the variations; Strauss' "Don Juan," and one of the Dvoark Slavonic Dances. It will all be heard again tonight.

BEG YOUR PARDON

THE TRIBUNE on Thursday reported that the Chicago Bar association had started disbarment proceedings against Lester E. Williams, 155 North Clark street. Attorney J. Lester Williams, 10 South La Salle street, a member in good standing of the bar association, has been embarrassed by the similarity of the names.

In the same story the address of Attorney Francis X. Lecin was given as 2954 Milwaukee avenue, which is also the address of the Second Northwestern State bank. Although Attorney Lecin's office is in the building he has no connection with the bank.

Arts Club Displays Antique Jewelry and Futurist Camera Work

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There are two exhibitions of unusual interest at the Arts club. From the standpoint of beauty, the collection of antique jewelry shown by Olga Tritt is the more important. There are heavy gold bracelets from India, heavily enameled and set with precious stones; there is coral from Italy, beautifully carved and light as sea foam; there are ponderous ear pendants, studded with turquoise and pearl; there are chains and amulets and rings. Case after case is filled with glittering spoils from other centuries and countries. Russia, England, and France contribute. The court beauties who wore these brilliant ornaments almost walk again in the shadow they cast as memory throws a light upon them.

The second part of the Arts club exhibition is curious. There are photographic compositions by Man Ray, weird essays in grotesque arrangement and extraordinary lighting—the modernism of the lens—and there are water colors by Rodin which make you glad that in the ordinary course of affairs he kept to sculpture, and there are drawings by Modigliani that come the nearest to approximating an insult to the intelligence of anything offered us in some time.

These three exhibits are like bits of nightmare. You walk through them in a daze and you come out more dazed than you went in. What is the sense back of the camera phenomena? Where is the beauty in the Rodin drawings? Where the maturity of Modigliani's talent? The photographs excite one's interest, but the most fascinating of puzzles grow tiresome if light never illuminates their meaning. The water colors by Rodin are interesting as proof of what he could do with a sketching block. Fame based on them, however, would scarcely fill a teaspoon.

The Rodin water colors are little more than outline drawings, studies of the human figure, man and woman, in various poses and generally nude. The most modern, as far as exaggeration is concerned, is the "Nu de Profil" with its anterior development. The Modigliani drawings are just that, thin lines drawn carelessly, jottings of suggestions. Two are powerful, one is the "Don Quichotte" and the other "Ecco Homo." For the rest, the majority might be the work of a child of seven. This sacrilegious comment will probably bring scathing rebukes from the cultured but to the uncultured its appropriateness will be obvious.

The exhibitions continue through Feb. 15.

An exhibition of paintings by German artists, loaned by the Art museum of Bremen, will open today in the reception hall of the North German Lloyd building and will run through Feb. 28.

Chicago alumni of De Pauw university, Butler, Earlham and Franklin colleges, will be the honor guests today at the Hoosier salon, which has been held for the last two weeks in the picture galleries of Marshall Field & Co. There will be luncheons and programs at 12:30 p. m. in Field's tea rooms. After that there will be a tour of the galleries and a general Indiana homecoming for all college alumni. The exhibition will continue until Feb. 13.

Suggests Open Air Show of Sculpture for Fair

An open air exhibit of sculpture to be modeled after the Garden of the Tuileries has been proposed by Chauncey McCormick, chairman of the world's fair committee on the fine arts display, it was announced yesterday from the headquarters of the 1933 centennial. In connection with the display, however, with the indoor display of famous paintings, Mr. McCormick is negotiating with Paul Claudel, French ambassador to the United States, for the loan of Leonardo Da Vinci's Mona Lisa and of James McNeill Whistler's "My Mother."

The University of Notre Dame has published another annual survey giving student views on prayer, work, modern girls vs. girl mother was, marriage, sacrifices made during Lent, diversions, topics of student discussion, etc.

PRAYER—"Three hundred and twelve of them believed prayer their best spiritual aid; 346 explained they resorted to prayer only when they wanted some benefit, while 90 admitted that they were forced to prayer only when they 'had their backs to the wall.'"

MARRIAGE—"One hundred and thirty-six stated they had laid no foundations for a happy marriage; 79 expressed their lack of interest; 140 said they were praying for future domestic bliss; 124 professed that leading a clean life was bringing them closer to their marriage standard; 87 said they were maintaining a high ideal about matrimony. One senior, graduated from the university last June, said he was laying the foundation for a happy marriage by 'studying girls from a cold, practical standpoint.' A freshman, now a sophomore, explained 'I am too dumb for that subject.'"

MODERN GIRLS—"Asked if their girls were as good as their mothers, a majority of the students explained that they were, although 234 stated flatly that they had no girls."

COMMON SENSE—"Two hundred and eighty-seven said a boy has more common sense. One hundred and eighty-seven were inclined to favor the girls' common sense and 119 admitted that 'it's a draw'."

VACATIONS—"Vacations are spiritually disastrous to the college student, for 320 of them admitted that to be true, while 213 claimed the contrary."

FAVORITE TOPICS—"Girls, sports and studies were the favorite discussion topics in college dormitories, although 81 admitted that the faculty was their favorite subject."

Antoinette Laughs at 38 as Zero Hour in a Femme's Life

The rather startling suggestion offered in a current magazine article, "Is 38 justified in using art to retain her charm?" inspires me to exclaim, "Retain 'em. She's justified at 38 in raising a whole new crop of them!"

Thirty-eight is no zero hour in the love or beauty interests of women, is it?

If a woman of 38 isn't interested in life sufficiently to set about renewing her fascinations, she must be a victim of self-hypnosis of the most antiquated order. She belongs in the remote spots of our country as they were thirty, forty, or fifty years ago, where, because of their inaccessibility and because of the hard labor of wresting a living from the soil, women aged twenty years ahead of their time.

With tears in his eyes, a man lately since grown rich, told of his wife's almost toothless at 40, bent and gray, and dead at 42. Today that same farm woman would be reached by radio, by movie, by magazines, newspaper and manufacturer's catalogue. She would be informed on matters of health and hygiene. And she'd know a surprising number of hints on beauty care. Not only know them, but practice them.

At 38, if she had a family, a prudent day woman would be aware that she was no debutante, but she certainly would never think of herself as nearing the zero hour. If you wanted advice on how to live to a ripe old age, you'd have to go look up her grandmother or her great-grandma, probably the latter. Just that much may be claimed for the youthfulness of 38—when it is a youthful 38. It isn't always, of course. It may look decidedly middle aged if it's grown fat and disorderly of person.

But about using art to retain her charm—she ought to be put in jail if she doesn't.

We would shove the hour of "awareness" back eight years, though. It wouldn't be a zero hour. It would be the vital hour. With most women the thirtieth birthday is the turning point ahead or backward in their beauty careers.

Two Society Nuptials Today; One in Church

BY THALIA

The last of the series of important late winter weddings take place today with the marriage of Miss Mary Barbara Amberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ward Amberg, to Charles Pigott, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pigott of Jackson, Tenn., and that of Miss Florence Notz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Notz, to Charles Hines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hines of Evanston.

Miss Amberg's wedding is to be a simple one, this morning at Holy Name cathedral, with Msgr. Francis A. Purcell reading the nuptial mass. Only the immediate families will be present at the ceremony and at the breakfast which will follow at the residence of the bride's aunts, Miss Zoe, Miss Leontine, and Miss Lillian Interrieden of 1439 State parkway. Plans of a more elaborate ceremony were canceled when Miss Amberg's brother, "Tommy," was quarantined with scarlet fever. The groom's parents arrived yesterday from Jackson, Tenn., to attend the wedding.

The ceremony uniting Miss Notz and Mr. Hines is to take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at 1555 State parkway, where her aunt, Miss Florence Kranz, now resides. The services will be read in the same room where her father and mother were married a quarter of a century ago. Attending Miss Notz will be Mrs. Howell Howard [Loretta Hines] as matron of honor, Mrs. Rush Clark Butler Jr., and Miss Anne Schuttler as bridesmaids. Ralph Hines is to be his brother's best man, and William Moody, Peter MacHugh, and John and Felix Notz are to usher.

After a bit of industrious sleuthing the society department has learned the identity of the mysterious host and hostess responsible for the invitations to a "hard times" party to be given this evening in the bungalow atop the Hotel Sherman. We are, however, far too polite to thwart their desire to remain anonymous until the guests arrive, so the secret is safe with us. It is to be a sort of glorified subscription dinner and dance, with a tax of $15 per person or $30 per couple, and about 100 invitations were sent out.

The youngsters of members of the Winter club in Lake Forest will undoubtedly have a "field day," to use current vernacular, at the annual costume carnival this afternoon at 3 o'clock. A program of exhibition skating and all sorts of exciting diversions for the young are scheduled, pending the approval of the weather man.

The Tavern entices its members to attend the annual meeting with promises that "at 9 o'clock the membership will go into a huddle for the annual business meeting and election of governors. This duty will be painless and will not last more than fifteen minutes," and "the entertainment committee will spring something new and then, unless the members wish to spend the entire evening singing 'Sweet Adeline,' the conclave will be next Monday night, and 'members only' means that privileges for the ladies will be suspended that evening."

Mrs. Lawrence Reed of 1400 Lake Shore drive is to give a bon voyage luncheon on Tuesday next for Mrs. Walter Peacock of 5120 Hyde Park boulevard, who is sailing for Europe soon, to be gone all through the spring months.

Mrs. Charles F. Hills returned on Thursday from a four months' sojourn in California. She will occupy the Kenilworth residence of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Woodland, while the Woodlands are wintering in Havana.

Mrs. Rudolph Matz of Winnetka, her daughter, Miss Ruth Matz, and Miss Louise Otis, also of Winnetka, are to sail today on the steamship Conte Grande for Italy. They are to travel in Italy and France for three months.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoyt of Winnetka and their daughter, Betty, and son, Billy, have motored to Green Cove Springs, Fla., where they have a winter place, if I mistake not. They plan to return about April 1.

Mrs. Robert T. Newberry of the Ambassador is sojourning in Chandler, Ariz.

Men's Missionary Group Urged at Church Session

A missionary society for men was advocated yesterday by John Bailey Kelly of New York City, general director of missionary education in the Presbyterian church, as a counterpart to the Women's Foreign Missionary society, which for several generations has had the major responsibility of the study and support of foreign missionary work. He spoke before the joint conference of adult work and missionary education at the National Council of Religious Education conference which is in session at the Hotel Sherman.

"Men also should have a responsibility for the boys in the church," he continued. "I don't want to discount motherly work the women do, but the men certainly should shoulder their responsibility."

Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, first vice president of the Chicago Y. W. C. A., during the absence of the president, Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, will head the receiving line at the reception and tea with which the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial hall at Oak and Dearborn streets will be officially opened tomorrow afternoon.

WEDDING

The wedding of Miss Helen Fyke, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Fyke of Centralia, Ill., to John R. Montgomery Jr., son of Mrs. and Mrs. John R. Montgomery of Hubbard Woods, took place last evening at St. John's Episcopal church in Centralia and was followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents. After a motor trip through the south Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery will reside in Chicago.

Y. W. C. A. Opens McCormick Memorial Hotel for Women

Social leaders who were personal friends of the late Harriet Hammond McCormick, will be among the 1,000 visitors who will inspect the memorial given by her husband, Cyrus Hall McCormick, to the Y. W. C. A. of Chicago. The formal opening will be held tomorrow afternoon between four and seven.

The new structure is an eleven story hotel for employed girls and was planned to provide conveniences and comforts for those who desire more than a "hall bedroom" existence. It is located at Oak and Dearborn streets and represents an investment of $1,500,000.

The committee of management which worked with Mr. McCormick for the last five years on the project is headed by Mrs. Philip S. Post.

Sorority's Valentine Party to Aid Its Charity Fund

Alpha chapter of Tau Zeta Delta sorority will give a Valentine party tomorrow afternoon at the Bismarck hotel. Miss Janet Glickman is chairman of arrangements for the affair and Miss Rose M. Solomon is in charge of the ticket committee. Mrs. Henry J. Meyer is president of the chapter. Proceeds of the event will be contributed to the organization's philanthropic fund which is applied to several charitable enterprises.

Ontario Thankful It Has No Dry Law, Premier Says

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 2.—[U. P.]—Premier Howard Ferguson of Ontario wants the citizens of his province to be thankful they have no prohibition law like that of the United States. He told the legislature last night that if the neighbor across the border "were not so hamstrung with intricacies and complexities of constitutional difficulty she would repeal her dry law."

When They Make You Little Gifts, Be Appreciative

Mrs. Bevans has prepared two booklets, one on "Prayers and Graces for Children" and another called "Books to be Read to the Children or by Them," which will be sent free on receipt of stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

Mrs. Evelyn Huntington Bevans

It is more blessed to give than to receive—but it is very blessed to receive graciously. Especially when the gift is from a child.

When they give something they give it so wholeheartedly—with their whole being. A part of themselves comes to you with it.

It is partly that that makes them crave your appreciation of it. "Here is something of me—I hope you like it—I'd love to be sure that you do," their faces seem to say as they watch you open your gift. Is it just a thing to you—or do you receive it as a tangible piece of their affection? Do you accept the gift of a child graciously?

To do so, you need not use many usual politeness of language. But you do need to give your attention very much to the gift itself—how it is made, how much time or thought it took, and how much you need it. Discussing it, dwelling upon its points, are all drunk in by expectant young ears.

A little girl who had laboriously made something for her mother was talking it over afterwards. "It's very little in size, mother," she said, "but it's very big in niceness—it's really enormous in niceness." And every time her mother wore it she looked at it so hard—it was one more gossamer thread that bound them together."

"You gave me my big, old, gray Jim, didn't you, Nan?" asks a young nephew every once in a while.

"Yes, but why, honey?" says his aunt.

"O, I don't know—I just like to know you gave it to me," he replies. The gift and the giver are inextricably linked in his mind.

There is some well known poem that says "The gift without the giver is bare."

That's it. Remember it when a child gives you something. He rarely gives the gift without the giver, too. So when he or she hands it to you, receive it with that most gracious kind of graciousness—a careful appreciation.

The Dipping Flounce Maintains Its Chic

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Not baccarat but Back Hurrah—this seems to be the style on which every woman of today is gambling. Among these backward movements of the mode the skirt which gives the effect of a flounce set in a low curving line to contrast with a raised front line is one which maintains all its former authority.

The behavior of these dipping flounces is decidedly variable. But one of the most effective methods I saw illustrated not long ago at the opera. A woman who had chosen green transparent velvet for her material swept out before me to reveal a skirt to which this dipping flounce had been applied in the same cartridge plaits of which Boulanger has always been so fond. Incidentally the flounce was scalloped and this brings us to another point. Scalloped hems and scalloped tiers—these are seen today on every hand.

The manner in which the idea of this dipping back flounce is incorporated in the evening gown of princess conviction is exceedingly interesting and is ably presented by today's sketch. Here in this stunning gown of white taffeta an inset band curves down in the back to a low point.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscript returned.

Strange Missive.

Mine has just happened. In sending out announcements for a forthcoming benefit for stray animals, in a spirit of fun I sent one to the Black Kat Klub.

On the bottom I had written in longhand: "Won't you take an interest in your poor relations—cats of other colors, and purps, too?" and signed my name. The letter came back unclaimed and I took it out of the envelope but didn't unfold it.

Being Scotch, I put it in another envelope addressed to a well known society woman on the near north side and chucked it into the mail before I remembered what I had written on the bottom.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Girl Scout Uniform.

"I have a Girl Scout uniform which should fit some one about 12 years old. Would one of your readers care to have it? H. G."

Attention, Girl Scouts! Are you in need of a new uniform? If the one H. G. offers is in your size, write me for it; please do not telephone.

Miscellaneous Offer.

"I have some beads, thread and books of instruction on art needle work which I would like to give to some one. I have an imported music box, also, which would be nice for some little shutin or for the children's ward in a hospital.

Going to Florida.

Mrs. Lawrence Hallberg and her son, Norman Hallberg, of the Ambassador East are leaving this week-end for a stay of a few weeks at Palm Beach, Fla.

Can You Keep Silence Together 'n Be Happy? It's Test of Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

As an additional solution to the many already on record in the very popular game of trying to find out what's wrong with marriage, "Jinks" (not High—just Jinks) says if you could take the boredom out of it there'd be nothing wrong with it. He might even consider it for future amusement.

One of those visiting foreigners, toward whose observations you may bear a prejudice, I think wasn't hasty in his comment about the boredom of wives toward men whose sole interest in life is accumulating money. Even the fact that the man may be working tooth and nail for the very woman who finds him dull and uninteresting doesn't seem to relieve the strain. It's an American complaint, the foreign visitor pronounced. "We have other complaints," he added fairly enough, "but at least there isn't so much lack of mental companionship in other countries."

What does mental companionship consist of? The same interests? The same hobbies? The same taste for amusements? Not necessarily, although like tastes are cementing in relationships. We think another man put his finger on the subject a bit more surely when he suggested that true companionship implies the ability to shafe silence.

It is no great trick, he said, to be congenial, understanding, sympathetic, when plans are vivid and their discussion eagerly shared, or when excitement runs high, or when amusement is indulged. But the supreme test for the enduring quality of companionship is not in the gay hours but the quiet ones. And the latter, it was added, exceeded in numbers the other by a good many in the course of an average married career.

Two people living under the same roof day after day must run out of conversational material. They get talked out. They are entitled to the privilege of being tired out, even. They're entitled to get a bit tired of each other's company once in a while. It is in the reaction of one or the other, under the circumstances, that the test may be applied.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each child saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to correspond or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Dee, The Tribune, Chicago.

We cook all the bones fed to Sparky, our young police dog. Other dogs have discovered the feeding station and often there are half a dozen hungry waifs in various parts of the lawn gnawing bones Sparky has discarded.

Little Agnes Mary, who is visiting me this week was standing at the window one morning when she discovered the dogs on the lawn.

Mrs. L. K.

When Hubet was 4 years old Uncle Joe came to visit us.

"You were just two months old when I saw you last, my little man," said uncle with admiration.

VARIOUS EVENTS

Delta Phi Tau sorority will give a formal dinner and dance this evening at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Miss Marie Theis is in charge of arrangements.

The Oberlin Women's club of Chicago will have a luncheon today at Allerton house.

The charter class of the Immaculate Alumnae association will give a pre-Lenten card party this afternoon in the Immaculate gymnasium at Irving Park boulevard and the lake. Proceeds will go to the school's organ fund.

The monthly luncheon of Alpha Delta Pi sorority will be held today at the Midland club. Miss Esther Wieland and Miss Clarissa Delano are in charge of arrangements.

The Chicago Hakoah Social and Athletic club will have a Valentine party and carnival tomorrow evening at Lawndale hall at Ogden and Trumbull avenues.

Two Turkish girls will be the guests of the Chicago Alumnae club at a luncheon meeting to be held today at the Chicago Woman's club. The girls will accompany Miss Marion Talbot, veteran dean of the University of Chicago, who brought them to this country on her return from a recent trip to Turkey.

The annual breakfast of the Sunbeam league will be held at 11:30 a. m. today at the Stevens hotel and will be followed by a theater party.

Jews Seek $15,000 for Rabbi to Visit Hospitals

Chaplaincy Sabbath will be celebrated tomorrow by all reformed Jewish synagogues in this city in an effort to raise a $15,000 fund to support the work of a rabbi who will visit charitable institutions in Chicago and its suburbs. Mrs. Samuel Alschuler heads the committee of women in charge of the drive for funds.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

The plaited arrangement at the left side of this straight line dress shows an interesting variation in the manner of setting in the plaits. The turned back cuffs, belt, pocket welt and collar can be made of a contrasting color with good effect. Flat silk crêpe, crêpe satin, crêpe de chine, wool jersey or challis will all make up attractively in this design.

The pattern, 2667, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 40 inch material with ¾ yard of 40 inch contrasting.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Edwin Denby, who as secretary of the navy in the cabinet of President Harding approved and was relegated to political oblivion by the Teapot Dome oil scandal, died while he slept today in his home in the Whittier apartments here. He was found dead in bed by his wife, Mrs. Martin Thurber Denby, when she awoke soon after 8 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Denby was aroused by a slight restlessness on her husband's part at 5 a. m., but this seemingly was only momentary, and he apparently fell asleep again. He was dead when she attempted to arouse him three hours later. Denby would have been 59 years old on Feb. 18.

Besides Mrs. Denby, their daughter, Marian, 13 years old, was in the apartment at the time. A son, Edwin Jr., 16, is a student at the Severn school in Maryland. Three brothers, Charles Denby, of Washington, Wythe Denby, of Chicago, and Garvin Denby of New York, also survive.

Seemed in Good Health.

A huge, rocklike figure of a man, Denby apparently was in his usual good health when he retired Thursday night. Only recently he had undergone a physical examination and been pronounced in good condition.

Mr. Denby enlisted in the navy during the Spanish-American war as a plain gob—a gunner's mate, third class, on the U. S. S. Yosemite. Came the world war and Denby enlisted as a private in the marine corps, from which he was mustered out as a major.

Signed Teapot Dome Transfer.

In his capacity as secretary of the navy Denby signed the transfer from the navy to the interior department of the naval oil reserves in Teapot Dome, Wyo., and Elk Hills, Cal. This was by executive order of President Harding. Later Denby, with Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, signed the leases that transferred the property in turn to Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny.

When the oil scandal broke in 1921, Denby at first was spared. In 1924 demand was made in the senate for his resignation. Replying to these demands, Denby assumed full responsibility for the oil leases. He declared they were made in strict accordance with the law and in the best interests of the country.

Funeral services will be held at Christ Episcopal church here at 11 a. m. Monday, with the burial in Elmwood cemetery, on Detroit's east side.

MEDIEVAL RITE MARKS FUNERAL OF QUEEN MOTHER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Feb. 8.—By telephone to Paris. After a six hour funeral service resembling the pageant like rites during the period of the Renaissance in Europe, the body of Queen Mother Maria Christina, Princess of Hapsburg, tonight reposes in the bare subterranean chamber of the East Escorial monastery where, according to tradition, it is destined to remain ten to fourteen years before it is transferred to a crypt in the same monastery where the country's rulers rest.

Blazing uniforms poured from the train, astonishing the Escorial villagers and American tourists. State, church, army and navy were represented, all in the gayest of funeral clothes.

A group of simple priests and clerical students led the procession. The cardinal archbishop of Toledo, who is Spanish primate, attended by two bishops, court gentlemen, government officials, army and navy officers in full dress uniform, troopers, the hearse, and Christina's empty carriage followed.

The monks opened the casket and peered at the corpse and swore that they recognized Christina, whereupon the body was turned over to them, while the minister of justice and religion recorded the act of recognition of the body.

FALL IN SHAFT FATAL.

Elmer Finds Radio Offerings Bit Under Par

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Somewhat below par for a Friday evening, somewhere around 95 per cent, though there were many good programs to be heard.

The last two acts of "Martha," by the W-G-N Opera company, with symphony orchestra accompaniment, 9 to 10, appealed to me as much for emotional reasons as for its musical beauty. It can be fairly taken for granted that most of the radio audience has seen one or more stage performances of "Martha" and that its music and story is familiar. But aside from mere familiarity, there is in this opera a tone and color that is tender and suggestive of intellectual sentiment rather than sentimentality. For it is not of a character that depresses the feelings and makes tears flow; rather it is of an intellectual, reminiscent, a "Last Rose of Summer" character. And the years do not lessen the charm of this work.

Three programs from WLS figured conspicuously. Gregory Stone, pianist, at 8:30, a newcomer to radio, and from his introductory work last evening it is apparent that we have something to look forward to in this pianist. The Metropolitan church choir, 9 to 9:45, presented a program of unfamiliar spirituals. Their singing last evening was unusually restful to the mind, and I am quite certain that one reason for this, in addition to the nature of their selections, is that this choir is gradually improving in its ensemble work. Its tone is growing mellower and smoother; there is a submerging of individual voices in favor of the more beautiful full chorus effects; there is more restraint and more refinement. They are nearing ideal concert performance standard. One drawback in last evening's concert was the sing song style of announcing.

And from 9:40 to 10 a little playlet: "The Woman Boss," in honor of National Drama week and, if I am not mistaken, presented by the Cap and Gown players of Northwestern university. The play bristled with tense moments and situations, and the lines were spoken with unusual clarity and with a creditable expression.

Mrs. Charles Dabuque, 51, Once Stage Favorite, Dies

Mrs. Charles Dubuque, a stage favorite 30 years ago as Rene Calder in Mort Singer's chorus at the La Salle theater, died last night at her home, 621 Buckingham place, at the age of 51. She is survived by her husband and three children, Margaret, Helen and Arthur. Funeral services will be held Monday morning in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

MOTHER TEACHES 40 CHILDREN IN SCHOOL DISPUTE

Protesting against a school board order to transfer their children from the Yale school at 1829 North Richmond street, to the Parker junior high school at 6300 Stewart avenue, parents of 40 children in the Hamilton Park district have set up a special class room in the Yale school building, it was learned yesterday. The mother of one of the children has been instructing the class.

The protesting parents, headed by C. Gordon Wederts, a teacher in the Chicago Musical college, appeared before William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, yesterday to notify him that they will refuse to abide by the compromise made by the superintendent earlier in the week. They had objected to their children attending school in the Parker school portables. Mr. Bogan endeavored to meet the objection by establishing a branch of the junior high school at the Yale, the superintendent said.

A teacher from Parker was sent to Yale to take charge of the new division but no children reported to the new classes. Instead they are attending the special class set up by their parents in another room at the school.

Mrs. Mary Manly, Mother of U. of C. Professor, Dies

Word of the death of Mrs. Mary Manly in Gaffney, S. C., on Wednesday was received by friends in Chicago yesterday. Mrs. Manly, who was more than 80 years old, was visiting a daughter, Mrs. Edward Watson. For the last 15 years Mrs. Manly had lived at 6030 Kimbark avenue with her son, Dr. Donald M. Manly, head of the English department at the University of Chicago, and a daughter, Mrs. Helen Patrick. Besides these two children, who are traveling in Europe, she is survived by three other daughters and another son.

The Rev. Francis De Haye Dies of Heart Attack

The Rev. Francis De Haye, a member of the Jesuit order, died at Milford, O., yesterday of a heart attack. Father De Haye was a graduate of Loyola university, where he was awarded highest scholastic honors three of his four years there. He received his early training for the priesthood at Florisant, St. Louis, Mo., where he was ordained in June, 1927. Father De Haye was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John De Haye, 1510 Lake avenue, Wilmette.

If doctors' warnings were heeded literally, this is how you would dress for the theatre. Statistics prove that the front line trenches were hardly more dangerous to health than crowds of coughers and sneezers.

Since you can't wear so outlandish a costume, protect yourself before and after exposure in poorly ventilated gatherings by taking GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. The mild laxative effect rids the system of poisons caused by colds. The tonic benefits build up the body's defenses.

Never wait for serious symptoms. Use the tablets from the little white box promptly, and frequently you will sidestep the cold entirely; or throw it off quickly.... Results have made this the largest-selling remedy. Results are the reason for avoiding substitutes. So emphasize GROVE'S, when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

JAPAN AND CHINA DEADLOCKED ON DAMAGE DEMANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—Chinese-Japanese negotiations in the settlement of the Tsinan incident and the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Shantung province struck a snag tonight. A new deadlock was reached when the Japanese minister, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, acting on instructions from Tokio, demanded that both sides forego damages incidental to the Tsinan incident.

At the session on Tuesday between M. Yoshizawa and Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese foreign minister, M. Yoshizawa agreed to the Chinese proposal that both sides pay damages, but when the two delegates met tonight for the purpose of initialing the draft of agreement, Mr. Yoshizawa brought up the new proposal.

The Chinese delegate refused the demand on the ground that the Chinese people had suffered losses of more than 5,000 killed and several millions of dollars of property destroyed. The nationalist government is insisting Japan must pay for these losses.

Mrs. A. Murray Dike Dead, Head of France Group

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. A. Murray Dike of Philadelphia died at her Paris apartment today after a lingering illness. She was president of the American committee for devastated France and with Miss Anne Morgan and other notable American women she worked out extensive building and educational plans in the evacuated northern departments.

RUTH OWEN TELLS NEED FOR WOMEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

It would do Uncle Sam no harm to have a wife who would help him with his national housekeeping and national economy, according to the opinion of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, congresswoman elect and daughter of William Jennings Bryan, who yesterday addressed a luncheon meeting of the Executives' club at the Hotel Sherman, at which women leaders in professions, business, and politics were guests.

Mrs. Owen stressed the importance of active women in building a community or republic, saying that in every town visited by her on a recent lecture tour the progressive and modern communities were those in which women were organized.

"We need have no qualms about the ability of our youth to take over leadership," she stated. "Today's younger generation has been sorely criticized, but it is as ready to strive and sacrifice when need arises as were its pioneer forefathers. Lindbergh is nearer being a true example of today's youth than those who are criticized in the newspapers."

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Eugene Rakosi, one of the oldest active journalists in Europe and founder of the Budapest Hirlap [Chronicle], which he edited for fifty years, died today at the age of 87.

M. Rakosi had been stone blind for many years, but despite this handicap he not only carried on as an editor but also made a reputation as a novelist, poet and critic. Among his works were translations of Greek classics and Shakespearean plays and poems into Hungarian.

What a funny way to escape a COLD

During the day your hands accumulate germs. Ordinary washing with soap and water doesn't destroy them. So, carried to the mouth on food, they develop, attacking the mucous membranes. A cold or sore throat or both frequently follow.

Full strength Listerine, is powerful against germs—kills most varieties in 15 seconds. Therefore its use on the hands before each meal is simply another wise precaution against colds and sore throat. Mothers handling children's food should particularly bear this in mind. Write for our great free book, "Personal Hygiene." Address Dept. S. 79, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

And for SORE THROAT

Listerine built its reputation on its ability to quickly check sore throat which is also caused by germs. At the first symptom of trouble, gargle with it full strength. Repeat the treatment frequently.

OBSERVERS BEGIN ENFORCING CITY'S NEW SMOKE LAW

Two on Duty; Eight More Will Start Monday.

Active enforcement of the new smoke ordinance started yesterday when Frank A. Chambers, deputy smoke inspector, added smoke observers to the personnel of his bureau. Two of the ten observers provided for in the 1929 budget were hired yesterday and the remainder will begin work on Monday.

The observers will cover the entire city, reporting violations of the ordinance and educating firemen and engineers in the proper methods of smokeless firing, Mr. Chambers said. For this purpose the city has been divided into eight districts, in each of which one observer will be stationed.

3 Men Assigned to Loop.

The first attack upon the smoke pall will begin in the loop area, where three observers will be placed until the situation is under control, Mr. Chambers declared. Later they will be moved into any district where the number of violators necessitates having more than one man on duty.

"Once the loop is cleared of smoke," Mr. Chambers stated, "the rest of the city will fall in line. The greatest number of people are in the loop and when the benefits of clean air are felt it will be easy for us to obtain co-operation from other districts.

150 Violators Warned.

A report of the activities of the department during January, which was submitted yesterday to Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, chairman of the smoke abatement commission, showed that 150 violators of the ordinance had been warned that a repetition would result in court action. More attention is being paid to the notices to attend public hearings than has been displayed in the past, Chambers said.

I. C. C. REFUSES TO MIX IN NO. SHORE LIVE STOCK ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Security holders of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad company today failed in their effort to get a ruling from the interstate commerce commission on the question of its jurisdiction over the issuance of securities by that company.

Treating the complaint of George B. Hild, E. G. Hitt, and Joseph Moudry, representing a protective committee of holders of securities issued by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee, against that carrier, as "merely a request for an answer to a moot question," the commission dismissed it on the ground that it did not present a proper matter for decision.

Charge Law Violations.

The complaint charged that the railway company had since 1920, the effective date of the commission's jurisdiction over issuance of railroad securities, issued various stocks and bonds without authority of the commission. The defense to the charge was that the railway company was an electric line, exempted from the security provisions of the transportation act.

The commission said the question raised was whether it might with propriety entertain a complaint that asked no affirmative relief, "but merely seeks an expression of opinion as to whether a provision of the act has been violated?"

Under the law, the commission declared, it had to act on petitions of carriers for authority to issue securities, and had no authority to award damages sustained by holders of void securities or to punish the carrier issuing the securities, or any of its officers or agents.

Question for Courts.

"These are matters solely within the jurisdiction of the courts," the commission said. "Having no authority to enter an order as to the legality or illegality of such issues, we would not embarrass carriers claiming that they are not subject to the provisions of section 20A by an expression of opinion such as complainants request."

Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman, on a dissenting opinion, declared that the commission should have decided the issue raised one way or the other.

MESSENGER BOY ROBBED OF $35,000 IN LOOP STATION

Believing there is a ring of pickpockets preying on messenger boys from banks and brokerage houses, Central police last night were hunting for the thieves who stole $35,000 worth of negotiable securities from the pocket of Arthur Bettis, 17 years old, 5125 North Menard avenue, in the La Salle street station.

The securities were the property of F. S. Lewis & Co., 111 West Jackson boulevard, stock brokers. Bettis, a messenger for the concern, had called for the securities at the Illinois Merchants bank and placed them in his pocket. He then went to the station to post a letter. The pickpockets, police believe, trailed him to the station and there took the stocks.

THIRTY RIOTERS KILLED AS POLICE FIRE IN BOMBAY

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 8.—[U. P.]—Thirty more rioters were killed tonight when police were forced to fire on mobs of Moslems and Pathans storming through the streets of several districts.

More than 100 persons were injured in tonight's fighting, the fifth day of communal rioting here. The casualties tonight brought the total death toll to approximately 95. More than 500 persons have been injured since last Sunday night, when workmen started attacking Pathans suspected of attempting to kidnap boys for sacrificial purposes.

TENNIS BAN ON TILDEN LIFTED, HE PLAYS TODAY

Net Chiefs Give Him Unanimous O. K.

Close to six months after suspending him for violating the player-writer provision of the amateur rule, the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association, in session here, tonight reinstated the former national champion, the action to take effect immediately.

Tilden thus becomes eligible to take up his racquet again in amateur play and, according to the announcement made in New York by Frank Hunter on Thursday, will make his first appearance in tournament competition since his disqualification in the invitation meet of the Heights Casino, starting in Brooklyn tomorrow.

Return Verdict in 5 Minutes.

Less than five minutes were required for the seventeen members of the executive committee present to lift, without a dissenting vote, the ban which had been placed upon the Philadelphian on the evening of Aug. 24 because of his newspaper articles on the play at Wimbledon last June. Before his official disbarment, Tilden had been removed as captain of the American Davis cup team on the eve of the interzone match with Italy in July, to the bewilderment of the tennis world and for the first time since 1920 the United States went into a Davis cup match without him on the team.

Following the victory of the American combination over Italy, Tilden was put back on the team, on the intercession of Ambassador Herrick, and played against France in the challenge round in which he gained a remarkable combat victory over Rene Lacoste. Upon his return from France he was tried on the charges which had been preferred against him while abroad and found guilty.

The following month Tilden sought to be reinstated by the executive committee, but his application was tabled. At the next meeting, on Dec. 8, it was brought up again and referred to the amateur rule committee, which was instructed to confer with the former champion, to determine more conclusively what his attitude would be in the future with regard to his observance of the letter and spirit of the rule, and to report back to the executives at tonight's session.

Call for a Vote.

Holcombe Ward, chairman of the amateur rule committee, was not present tonight, having left for Europe last week. In his absence, Louis J. Carruthers of New York, treasurer of the U. S. L. T. A., acted as chairman and introduced a recommendation by Mr. Ward that Tilden be reinstated immediately.

There was no discussion on the subject, according to the announcement from the closed session. The roll was called and sixteen of the seventeen members voted in favor of the recommendation. The other, whose identity was not disclosed, did not vote, so in almost the twinkling of an eye came to an end another chapter in the long history of Tilden's controversies with the parent body of tennis.

It was stated by an official of the association, who was speaking only for himself, that Tilden had adopted a more conciliatory attitude since the December meeting of the executives than he had maintained theretofore, and that his reinstatement might have come sooner had they received definite assurance that he would obey the rule.

Chicago Woman Is Beaten in Miami Beach Golf Finals

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. H. D. Sterritt, Hutchison, Kas., won the seventh annual Miami Beach women's tournament at the Bayshore course this afternoon. Mrs. Sterritt, medalist, won a 2—2 victory in the 36 hole final match with Mrs. John Arends, Chicago. Mrs. Arends was one up at the end of the 18th hole. They were even at the conclusion of the first nine this morning.

Barry's Team to Go After Golden Gloves

Buy 'Em Now

TICKETS for the four nights of the Golden Gloves boxing tournament are now on sale in the lobby of the Tribune Tower and at the Public Service office of The Tribune, Madison and Dearborn streets. Beat the speculators by getting the good seats now.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Barry, who yesterday nominated 27 for the big amateur meet, says he has stressed the importance of his fighters retiring to a neutral corner after flooring an opponent.

Barry believes he has the best team of amateur boxers in Chicago. He predicts his lads will prove it at the Coliseum Feb. 20 to 23.

Last year Barry coached and trained THE TRIBUNE team which held New York to a tie in the inter-city series. He taught the Chicago boys the fine points of the game. He emphasized the importance of the straight left lead and the right cross. Barry showed the Chicagoans how to feint a man out of position and then nail him with straight lefts or right crosses.

Comes from Old School.

Although Barry is better known as the referee of the Tunney-Dempsey fight in Chicago, many followers of the game remember him as the Canadian lightweight champion, who met Joe Gans twice. Barry was a pupil of the old school. He had the same style as James J. Corbett, Joe Gans, Tommy White, and others of his day.

"Tournaments conducted by THE TRIBUNE have put new life in amateur boxing," Barry said yesterday. "In my gymnasium all the boys talk about is THE TRIBUNE meet. They want to win the city championship and go to New York to fight the best developed boys in that section. I think my squad has an excellent chance to win the team trophy."

Among the fighters who will represent the Barry gymnasium are Bill Maddux, who won the secondary heavyweight bout in the tourney with New York last year. Nick Fosco, winner of THE TRIBUNE'S welterweight title a year ago, who lost his bout in the inter-city match with New York, is back in harness. Others whom Barry is depending upon are Mike Kamis in the lightweight class, Harry Alberts in the bantamweight,

MATSUYAMA WINS 3D STRAIGHT IN 18.2 TOURNEY

Beats Hagenlacher by 400 to 385 Score.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Kinrey Matsuyama proved tonight that the old ball game is not over until the last man is out in the last tinning. The boylike Japanese, whose remarkable playing in the current world's championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament has proved a sensation to the most seasoned critics, demonstrated the truth of the old baseball axiom by coming from behind on his last trip to the table to vanquish Eric Hagenlacher, champion of Germany, 400 to 385, in the most thrilling game of the tourney to date.

A crowd of 400 witnessed the game, which was held in the auditorium of the Level club, and wildly acclaimed the diminutive oriental at the end of the match.

His triumph gives Matsuyama a firmer grip on first place, with three victories and no defeats. A tie for second place exists between Edouard Horemans, the defending champion, and Welker Cochran, who defeated Felix Grange this afternoon, 400 to 158.

Matsuyama gave a splendid exhibition of courage and skill to maintain his lead in the field of six international stars. All night long he was forced to make most difficult shots when an erratic stroke left bad lineups.

Matsuyama trailed into the thirteenth inning 383 to 332. He tried everything and one spectacular shot after another came through until finally he grouped the balls at 54 and easily ran out the match. Matsuyama scored his high run of 110 in the tenth inning. The inning scores:

MATSUYAMA—1 42 7 48 15 15 8 12 61 110 0 18 68—400.
HAGENLACHER—119 115 21 18 11 5 0 40 2 31 6 17—385.
Averages—Matsuyama, 30 10-13; Hagenlacher, 23 1-12.

CHURCHMEN SEEK BAN TO CLOSE DOG RACE TRACK

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—An application for a permanent injunction seeking to close the dog racing track operated by the St. Petersburg Kennel club on ground that it is a public nuisance because of alleged gambling there was filed today with Judge T. Frank Hobson and was set for hearing Monday.

The action was brought by a Baptist church deacon, whose pastor, the Rev. Lincoln McConnell, had attacked the races from his pulpit.

BENNETT, INDIANA STAR, QUALIFIES FOR WEST POINT

Linton, Ind., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Charles Bennett, Indiana football star who was awarded THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE trophy for 1928, was officially notified today that he had passed all requirements and examinations for entrance at West Point Military academy and has been accepted. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bennett of this city.

Cleveland Youth Takes Lead in Barnyard Golf

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Blair Nunamaker, youthful pitcher from Cleveland, moved into first position here today in the world championship horseshoe pitching tournament with a total of twelve victories and one defeat. Burt Duryee, Wichita, Kan., who during the early stages of play today tied Nunamaker for first position, fell into second place when he was defeated by C. C. Davis, former world champion, of Columbus, O. Duryee has a total of twelve victories and two defeats.

Nurmi, Wide Race Tonight, but Not Against Each Other

New York, Feb. 8.—Paavo Nurmi and Edwin Wide, the two great fish eating middle distance runners, will race under one and the same roof in the course of the Millrose games at the Garden tomorrow evening, but, owing to an oddity in the arrangements they will run at separate distances. Nurmi will run one mile and Wide will light out in a two mile event, called a miss-and-out race.

The miss-and-out race is one of the folk dance races which are revived from time to time for the harmless exploitation of the talents of runners whose names command gate receipts. Such races are called drop-the-handkerchief events. The sack race, the egg-and-spoon race, the three-legged, the fat men's, and the married men's races are kin to the miss-and-out race.

Nurmi, in his mile run, will be matched against American milers who are not bad for Americans in the present mediocre state of mile running in the U. S. A., but who are palookas to Paavo Nurmi. Wide's competitors in the miss-and-out race will be comparative palookas, too.

Showdown at Later Date.

So, on the whole, the two famous guest amateurs will be running mere exhibitions and the rivalry between them will be carefully built up and the showdown averted until a later date. The late Mr. Rickard seems to have set the example with his shrewd pairings of the heavyweights in the so-called elimination tournaments but he never had quite the gall to present Gene Tunney against Leo Gates and Jack Dempsey against Tarzan Larkin on one and the same program.

Both athletes profess no desire to avoid a showdown, being, as they insist, amateur runners with the true amateur eagerness to test his prowess against the best competitors. Moreover, both have been running two miles, indoors, lately, and are fit to race in a legitimate two mile run Saturday evening. Nurmi recently ran two miles in 9:19 3-5 and Wide ran the distance in 9:17 1-5 Thursday evening, indicating that if they were to run a match race just now the competition would be very sporting. However, it seems that this will be saved for the K. of C. games or the Finnish-American A. C. games in March.

Betty Robinson to Run.

Betty Robinson, the blonde Chicago child who won one of America's few sprint numbers on the Olympic games last summer within a few months after her first race on any track, will be on the straightaways in one of the women's dash events of the Millrose program. She is small and slim and very ornamental. It would be more pleasant for the patrons if the girls ran long distances. These dashes are over in a few seconds and the runners pull their negligees about them and vanish into the catacombs again.

Percy Williams, the Canadian Olympic sprinter at Vancouver, will run one heat of sixty yards and, doubtless, the final 50 yard heat of the starred dash event. In the preliminary heat he will have to outleg Chester Bowman of the Newark A. C., James Daley of Holy Cross, and Eddie Hamm of Georgia Tech.

The other trial heat will bring out Johnny Fitzgerald of Toronto, another Canadian Olympic man; Jimmy Pappas of the Newark A. C., Jimmy Quinn of the New York A. C., and Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown university. Two will qualify from each heat for the fifty yard final.

Williams will run again, opposing Frank Hussy of New York in the 220 yard leg of an international medley relay.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Flo Adler's recent remarks in The Wake bring back memories of the good old days of ten-twent'-thirt' vaudeville shows at the Chicago and Olympic. Leading performers twenty years back were Cliff Gordon, the German Senator—few knew Cliff was practically blind in his later days, was led to the wings, and paced off his steps to the center of the stage—Ben and Joe Welch, the Jewish comedians; Four Mortons, Four Cohans, Four Fords, Avon Comedy Four, Ferguson and Mack, Stinson and Merton, Flood Brothers, acrobats, and Junie Mackree, always popular.

Others were Mons. Clivette, pantomime; Paul Conchas, the German strong man, who caught 250 pound balls on the back of his neck; Jones, Grant and Jones, the colored boys; Musical Kliest, and the great Lafayette, magician.

The choice seats in those days were the first row balcony at 30 cents, or a box for 50 cents. A crowd of us from the office were regular Monday nighters—possibly a stop at Righeimer's, Clark and Randolph, then a long sit through the supper bill to insure a good seat.

F. L. W.

The Chicago and Rock Island railroad shops once were located at the southwest corner of Clark and 12th. The roundhouse with turntable was just south of where the engines were under cover. Engines would be backed in the yards to where the cars were in waiting. There was only one track leading to the depot and that was from 22d street. The same track was used by the Rock Island and Michigan Southern, the only two roads with depots there.

This "Faw Down and Go Boom" thing is getting on our nerves. It's out so far as this column is concerned. Recently in New York we heard it sung in the original by Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee," for which the hotel scalper, as a special favor, procures one seat on week nights for $13 per each. It was the least attractive among the songs of one of the best shows we have seen in years.

TILDEN LEADS QUALIFIERS FOR MAROON SWIM

Two Records Broken in Preliminaries.

Two meet records were broken and one tied yesterday in the preliminaries of the fifth annual Cook county swimming interscholastic of the University of Chicago. The finals will be staged this afternoon at 2:30 in the tank in Bartlett's gymnasium.

Evanston's medley relay team, composed of Bowman, Eisner, Taylor, and Holmes, swimming 40 yards back, 40 free style, 40 breast stroke, and 100 free style, respectively, set a record of 2:07. Schurz held the former mark of 2:11 6-10, made last year.

Ericsson of Tilden shattered the mark in the 100 yard free style, negotiating the distance in :58 5-10 to better the time of :58 set by Wilcox of Schurz in 1928.

Tilden qualified five individuals and two relay teams and appears to have the best chance for the team title. Evanston qualified in both relays and in four of the individual events. Maine and Schurz appear to have the best chance for third place honors. Qualifiers:

220 YARD FREE STYLE—Murphy, Maine; Brown, Englewood; Kerber, Maine; Connelley, Englewood; Lima, Waukegan. Best time made by Murphy, 2:33 3-10.

40 YARD FREE STYLE—Troup, Evanston; Merk, Senn; Tischler, Schurz; Slattery, Tilden; Eisner, Evanston. Best time made by Troup, :19 6-10.

160 YARD RELAY—Evanston, Tilden, Schurz, Lane. Best time made by Evanston, 1:21 2-10.

100 YARD BREAST STROKE—Binner, Senn; Lima, Waukegan; De Graff, Tilden; Vanthielan, Tilden; Taylor, Evanston. Best time made by Binner, 1:14 2-10.

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Ericsson, Tilden; Highland, Schurz; Troup, Evanston; Murphy, Maine; Jacobson, Lane. Best time made by Ericsson, :56 5-10.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Although forced for the first time into overtime play, Butler university continued its march to a national basketball championship here tonight, by defeating Wabash college, an ancient rival, 32 to 28. Butler has six games remaining on its regular schedule, the next being with Franklin and Notre Dame.

Wanted: New Letter for Iowa State; I's Have It

Ames, Ia., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Iowa State college does not like the name "Ames" applied to its teams. Agitation has been started again asking that the insignia for athletes be changed from "A" to "I," the latter being called more symbolic of Iowa State college. Athletic Director Metcalf says many people believe there are two schools instead of one here, Ames college and Iowa State college.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY DON MAXWELL.

Folks on the west side who were alarmed yesterday by a series of explosions will be relieved to learn that no bombings occurred.

Investigation shows that the commotion was caused singly and solely by P. T. Harmon, the big builder. Mr. Harmon was overheated when Paul Prehn, chairman of the Illinois boxing commission, announced that Harmon's proposal to open the new west side stadium with a Loughran-Walker bout was premature, impossible of fulfillment, etc.

Loughran is light heavyweight champion. Walker is the middleweight champion. Prehn, in his dual capacity as chief of the Illinois board and president of the National Boxing association, allows that Walker can fight only in defense of his middleweight title or resign it.

"I thought that the duties of a fight commission consisted of seeing that the fans are offered worth while fights," Mr. Harmon said. "In March I'm going to open the world's greatest stadium and I want to do it with the best fight that I can get.

"Everybody admits that Loughran is a good fighter and a good attraction. I signed him. Then I tried to get a good opponent. The best I can find is Mickey Walker. A Loughran-Walker fight would work the town up. The fans would be crazy about it. Now comes Prehn and his objections. What if Walker is under ban? Couldn't it be removed? I'd like to see a little more coöperation and a little less technicality raising by the commission."

Fans are unkind when they say that the boxing commission's zeal in forcing Walker to fight a middleweight is inspired by the knowledge that James C. Mullen plans to stage a Walker show here. A Loughran-Walker bout would spoil those plans beyond repair.

It was Mr. Mullen who not so long ago put on two Walker fights, in neither of which did Mickey meet middleweights. One bout was with poor, worn out Mike McTigue and the other was with poor old Paul Berlenbach. Both of these setups were former light heavyweight champions.

Some folks don't understand why Walker should be barred from fighting the able Loughran if he was permitted to knock over the decrepit Mike and Paul.

Prehn suggests that it would be fine were Walker matched with Dave Shade or Ace Hudkins. Inasmuch as Walker whipped Hudkins here last summer and Rene De Vos beat Shade here several months ago, the commission's logic is mystifying to a layman.

Anyway, it is Harmon's problem and any one who can build a $7,000,000 stadium should be able to solve that one without winking.

Interest in sport is as varied as it is deep rooted.

Last week we met a man of 50 who walked three miles with the temperature 20 below zero to stand on the sidelines of an outdoor rink for an hour to watch a curling match.

We stood on the station platform at Medicine Hat, King Winter's home town, listening to three hockey enthusiasts explain why the Chicago Blackhawks were in last place.

Sit in Yankee stadium and you'll hear folks chanting "Push 'em up, Tony." Their cousins in Moose Jaw are shouting, "Sweep, Sweep Hard." Twenty-five thousand grow excited when a bull gores a horse in Mexico City.

You must have been deeply moved yesterday by a news story out of Cleveland.

It seems that K. O. Christner, the eminent leather pusher of Akron, went to the public hall ringside at Cleveland last Tuesday night and offered to be introduced to the crowd. The announcer thought he saw three of the boxing commissioners wink, and churlishly ignored K. O. Yesterday Christner received the following letter from Edwin D. Barry of the commission. It read:

"I was humiliated, embarrassed and shocked when I learned of the disrespect accorded you."

BUDDY'S QUICK PUNCH IS RULED LOW; FANS BOO

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—As Buddy Taylor and Al Singer were bounding along in the fourth round of a fight which was supposed to have some bearing on the featherweight championship in the Garden this evening, Singer suddenly flopped to the floor making gestures of pain and claiming he had been hit low.

Patsy Haley, the referee, was off somewhere shaving or adjusting his tie at the moment and saw, as he said, only part of the blow. This forced him to go into conference with Tom Flynn, one of the judges, who said the blow, to his way of looking and thinking, was out of bounds.

So Haley disqualified Taylor for fouling and Singer revived abruptly, leaving the ring with buoyant tread amid mixed exclamations from a large gathering of customers, some of whom thought the blow was fair and seemed to feel thwarted. This element called Singer a bum and raised rolling roars of "boo!"

Singer Winning the Fight.

Up to the moment when Singer pitched down he had given Taylor a fancy leathering and seemed pretty likely to win on points, provided his courage held out. He seemed a bit alarmed at all times, even when he was banging Taylor on the chin with left hooks that bloodied Bud's lips, whereas Taylor spread his wide, battered mouth in a vindictive grin and waded in not much bothered.

It was to have been a ten round fight and Taylor might have moved up to take the lead and finish in front if the foul hadn't been called. Fighting at 126 pounds, which seems to be his natural weight now, Taylor was so strong that Singer's hardest shots, catching him square on the jaw, didn't shake him. He was beginning to rouse himself in the fourth and was moving in on Singer when a left hand drive caught the New York prizefighter in the body.

It was a quick punch and only a few of those present, who chanced to be gazing on the tableau from a certain angle, were able to see it land. This, and the fact Singer had won fights on fouls before, caused many of the patrons to suspect that Singer wasn't really hit low, or wasn't badly hurt, even if so.

Singer Lands Repeatedly.

Singer had been reaching Taylor's head and chin with both hands. His left hook was ripping through Buddy's guard as Taylor came in and his right was looping over to the face and head. Even in the clinches he had a little the better of it, for he was punching more quickly, Taylor landed on the head now and again, but the punches were curving swipes and he found himself gathering in two or three return punches for every one he landed.

It was going along in this manner, quite exciting and swift, when the blurry moment came and the ringside customers all began milling around the ring, most of them denouncing Singer for quitting and all of them inquiring in substance, "what the hell happened?"

Mr. Singer had his back to your correspondent at the decisive moment, so your correspondent can only state that Taylor hit Singer somewhere between the knees and the bosom with a left. There were those in the correct angle who said the punch was fair, and others who said the contrary, so this probably will become one of the unsolved riddles for posterity to bother with. Singer weighed 127 pounds.

Mullen to Sign Taylor.

James [Moon] Mullen, the Chicago promoter, here on a shopping errand, said he did not think he would present Singer to his customers, preferring to offer Bud Taylor against Tony Canzoneri, the featherweight runner up.

"I do not think you can rely on guys who get fouled," he stated.

Singer had licked some neighborhood boys and had fought a draw with Canzoneri, the former champion of the featherweights, which accounts for his momentary prominence.

Heeney to Box Maloney March 1 in Comeback Bout

New York, Feb. 8.—[U. P.]—Tom Heeney was matched today for his first heavyweight bout since he was knocked out by Gene Tunney at Yankee stadium last summer. The New Zealander will fight Jim Maloney at the Boston Garden on March 1. The fight will be for ten rounds.

Izzy Schwartz Wins Decision Over Belanger at Toronto

OAK PARK HANDS EVANSTON ITS FIRST CAGE LOSS

Heavies Triumph, 29-23; N. Shore Lights Win.

Oak Park last night dealt Evanston its first heavyweight defeat in the Suburban league by taking a 29 to 23 battle at Evanston. Game Refuges Are Great Boon to Sportsmen

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockefeller Wild Life Refuge, La., Feb. 8.—Louisiana has done a good job. This is the impression you get after visiting one or more of the wild life refuges in the coastal marshes down here and seeing how these large tracts provide protection and food for countless thousands of water fowl and other game or nongame birds. After the perils of migration have been overcome by the ducks and geese on their long flights from the north country they come to these marshes to find big tracts of land where nary a hunter can molest them.

This morning while taking a farewell look at the ducks and the honking blue and snow geese which were marching across the sky, we talked with wardens and sportsmen in this locality and they were eager to make this point about refuges: The sanctuaries here along the coast are a great boon to the birds, of course, and directly benefit the sportsmen of Louisiana as well as all devotees of wild fowl hunting in the north.

Help Replenish Supply.

Here is the way conservationists and sportsmen figure the value of these sanctuaries. While the birds are protected absolutely on the preserves and the territory in which they may be hunted down here in their winter range is thus reduced these preserves serve to replenish the supply on adjacent shooting grounds. On the other hand birds that have settled outside the sanctuaries often seek them for food and protection.

It is quite obvious that northern sportsmen interested in our supply of water fowl are directly benefited by the southern preserves because the birds must have a safe sanctuary between the end of the hunting seasons and the time when they start their northern migration. If no rest grounds were provided our water fowl population would decrease at an alarming rate.

Federal Aid Needed.

With Louisiana doing more than its share in the job of caring for America's water fowl it is only natural that some of the sportsmen with whom we have talked should ask pretty plain questions about northern refuges comparable to these along the gulf coast. Such conversation leads direct to the Norbeck-Andresen bill which is now before congress. It provides for the establishment of federal wild life refuges throughout the United States and under its provisions the north would be able to maintain sanctuaries for the migrating water fowl, a thing which is needed in this day of increased drainage, decreased acreage suitable for duck and geese feeding and rest grounds and heavy toll upon the bird population by reason of the activity of more than 6,000,000 licensed hunters.

SONNENBERG USES FLYING TACKLE; DEFEATS FORBES

Sonnenberg demonstrated the hold in an exhibition last night against Jack Forbes of Rochester, N. Y. He pinned Forbes with the hold in eight minutes and 15 seconds.

The most exciting bout of the evening was between Karl Pojello, Lithuanian heavyweight and the Italian, Mike Romano. Pojello was awarded the decision. Toots Mondt and Gino Garibaldi battled thirty minutes to a draw. Tom Marvin tossed Young Zbyszko to the mat in 18:53 with a body hold.

The other two blocks of 10 games will be rolled on the same alleys Sunday and Monday nights. Carlson starts tonight's games trailing by 534 pins. Scribner rolled up the lead in the first three blocks bowled in Detroit.

Johnny Tarant in the flyweight, Orlando Fasco in the featherweight and John Hoff in the middleweight. Barry also will have a dozen more entrants before the lists close next Thursday.

Golden Gloves on Display.

The diamond studded golden gloves which will go to the winner in each class, the silver gloves, rewards for second place winners, and the bronze trophies which will go to third place victors, will be placed on display today in the offices of THE TRIBUNE public service bureau at Dearborn and Madison streets. The handsome cup, which will go to the club whose representatives win the greatest number of points, also will be in the windows. The prizes will be given the winners as soon as they are determined in the ring on Feb. 23.

BRUINS SWAMP HERB JOESTING'S ALL STARS, 40-15

Glass backboards, fine team play and excellent dribbling and shooting by Whitey Wickhorst enabled the Chicago Bruins to defeat Herb Joesting's 151st Field Artillery team of Minneapolis, Minn., 40 to 15, at the Broadway armory last night.

The Minneapolis quintet, led by Joesting and Haycraft, former Minnesota football stars, played aggressively, but could not cope with the Bruin attack. Joesting did not make a basket. Wickhorst, Bruin forward, playing the last half, led the scoring with five baskets and one free throw.

In a preliminary game the Skokie Reds defeated the John Hahn heavies, 33 to 17. Lineup:

RESERVE BOARD EDICT STIRS UP HORNETS' NEST

Some Comments on Act Are Caustic.

The stock and curb exchanges of Chicago and New York and other leading cities of the country will be closed today. They will be open on Monday, but will close again on Tuesday, together with the banks and principal commodity exchanges, in observance of Lincoln's birthday.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Whatever the federal reserve board may accomplish by its warning against speculation, it appears to have stirred up another hornets' nest that may produce more stings than did its famous "deflation" policy in 1921. This was the consensus in Wall and La Salle streets yesterday, where the reserve board's action was freely and caustically discussed.

Comment ranged from opinions that the reserve board is seeking to accomplish a laudable act but in an unfortunate manner, to others that the board is acting officiously and to a degree not warranted by either its own powers or the credit situation. In general, neither financiers nor business leaders relish the effects of congressional investigations or legislative proposals that may result because of their disturbing effect on business and industry.

Not the Case.

"It is unfortunate that the reserve board chose to issue its warning in such a spectacular way," a Chicago banker said. "It suggests that the credit resources of the reserve system are strained, which is far from the case. It suggests that the member banks are borrowing tremendous sums and indirectly diverting them to the stock market, which also is not the case. It suggests that business is suffering from credit stringency, which is not true.

"The member banks are borrowing about 8½ billion dollars from the reserve banks for all purposes. This is probably not much more than 10 per cent of their loans on securities. More than $500,000,000 of these borrowings are secured by government obligations. Undoubtedly the reserve authorities can force the banks to reduce their borrowings, but if it does this to an undue extent the banks will be less willing to buy future issues of government securities. Furthermore, any undue pressure against the banks might result in antagonizing the state banks, which do not have to belong to the reserve system.

"It is not credit furnished by the reserve banks that makes up the bulk of loans on securities, but largely the banks' own funds and surplus funds of corporations and individuals. The use of these funds is something over which the reserve board has no control. If people want to speculate with their own money and if the banks want to lend their own funds to speculators, it is none of the reserve board's business.

Could Lend More.

"There is no strain on the resources of the reserve system, as evidenced by the fact that its ratio of reserves to liabilities is close to 70 per cent. Actually, the reserve banks could lend two or three times as much as they now do before their condition would be regarded as precarious. There is no credit stringency for commercial purposes and interest rates are not exorbitant; in fact, the big corporations have so much excess money that they are lending it to the stock market."

Heads of other Chicago banks said frankly that they intend to take care of the requirements of good customers, whether for business or speculation, whether the reserve board approves or not. They asserted the most that the reserve board can accomplish is to force their banks to repay all borrowings, which policy might eventually result in considerable disruption of the reserve system.

It may be doubted, however, that the reserve board will adopt any drastic policy. Without any increase in rediscount rates, the reserve banks still have power to adjust the situation by refusing to lend to member banks which are maintaining a large volume of loans on stock. Or the reserve banks may apply a graduated scale of rediscount rates, thereby penalizing banks that are borrowing heavily and favoring banks with moderate loans. This system of progressive rates was used by several of the reserve banks in 1920 and 1921.

RATIFY C. G. SPRING AND BUMPER CO. SALE; WILL OFFER STOCK

Sale of the assets and properties of the C. G. Spring & Bumper Co., to Harris, Small & Co., and Paul H. Davis & Co., was ratified by the stockholders at a special meeting yesterday. A new company has been formed to take over the old.

The new company's stock will be offered in the form of units consisting of one share of "A" no par convertible preferred stock and one share of class "B" common at $66 a unit. Stockholders of the old concern will be offered the right to subscribe to the new stock. The first mortgage bonds, debentures and preferred stock of the old company are to be redeemed. Preferred shareholders will receive the call price of $11 a share and common holders will be paid $12 a share.

The company ended its patent litigation with the American Chain company, the settlement providing that all rights under the bumper patent are assigned to the American Chain company which in turn has entered into an advantageous license agreement with the new company.

MANUFACTURERS, WOOL GROWERS IN TARIFF TIFF

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Appeals of wool growers for a higher tariff on their raw product ran up against stiff opposition from clothing manufacturers at the third day's hearing on wool duties today before the house ways and means committee.

Appearing for thirty manufacturers, employing 50,000 people, William Goldman of New York opposed the growers' proposal to increase the present rate of 31 cents a pound on the clean content of wool in the grease to between 36 and 40 cents, on the ground that it would place an unnecessary additional burden on consumers' clothing costs. This already figures $200,000,000 a year, on account of the tariff, he said.

Fred Brenckman, Washington representative of the National Grange, the last witness to be heard today came to the support of the wool growers by recommending a duty of 38 cents a pound on scoured wool, now dutiable 31 cents, suitable for the manufacture of clothing, and proportionately lower rates on wool of inferior grades.

Brenckman estimated the cost of producing a pound of scoured wool at $1 on the range or $1.05 delivered in Boston, as against 62 cents in Argentina and Australia.

Water Holds Own in Cheap Power Field

BY SCRUTATOR.

Production of electrical power in the United States by public utility companies attained a new high in 1928. Figures issued by the geological survey of the department of the interior show that 88 billion kilowatt hours were made, an increase of about 10 per cent over 1927, which in turn had shown an increase of 9 per cent over 1926.

The same report stated that 40 per cent of the 1928 power came from water sources as against 37 per cent in 1927, although conditions were less favorable during the last three months than is usual for hydro electric plants. Water in the streams, it was pointed out, had been abnormally low since September.

Despite the constantly growing efficiency of steam methods of generating electricity, water is more than holding its own at present in the race to supply America with cheap power, the factor on which prosperity and its consequent betterment of living standards mainly depends. An even greater development of this natural resource is seemingly hampered by the uncertainty of government methods of control.

On Public Lands

Nearly all the water power sites are on public lands or on navigable streams, over which the war department has jurisdiction. In the early stages of the development the licensing of applications to establish hydro generating stations was in the hands of the departments of war, agriculture and the interior. Since 1920 such powers have been vested in the federal water power commission.

But the three departments still continue to hold their supervision over the projects that were in existence eight or nine years ago. The forest service of the department of agriculture was still overseeing 272 last year and the war department 43, according to report. The water power commission, which itself seems none too sure of what it can or cannot do, has complained that this division of responsibility and duplication of effort is undesirable.

In its dealings with applicants for licenses, whether from the "power trust" that so exercises Mr. Pinchot and Senator Norris or from others, the commission runs against the problem that apparently holds the key to the whole utility rate structure—the accounting methods used in determining assets.

General Policy.

Last May it announced that hereafter it would issue licenses only after an agreement had been reached by the licensee with the commission as to just what was to be included in capital account. This point is of considerable importance in view of the general policy to make provision for recapture of the sites by the government.

The result has been that few of the companies can reach such agreements with the commission and that water power development is not moving ahead as far as it might.

Electricity from water power is cheaply made after the capital expenditure is complete. But such projects as Boulder dam, with huge capital charges and difficulty of transmission over long distances to consumers, are impracticable in the opinion—at least the expressed opinion—of utility men. It has been shown that even if the dam is built it is likely that in its market on the coast steam generated electricity would compete with its product on a price basis. There's no reason to develop water power unless it pays in cheaper power.

Patrick S. Hart, Goodyear Company Official, Resigns

CHICAGO STOCKS WEAK; DECLINE 1 TO 13 POINTS

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

Chicago stocks put in another hard day with declining prices, with net losses ranging from 1 to 13 points. Prices wabbled unsteadily at the opening and started upward when the Chicago Federal Reserve bank announced that it had made no change in its rediscount rate at its weekly meeting.

This was small surcease to operators for the rise, however, as almost immediately the call money rate was quickly pushed up 1 per cent at a time in three movements to 9 per cent, whereupon selling broke out anew and most of the gains were wiped out, while many others sank to new lows for the movement.

Pines Winterfront Drops.

Pines Winterfront led the automotive list down with a loss of 13 points on light trading. The old and new Houdaille-Hershey issues were off from 2 to 6½ points. Borg-Warner declined 6 points and Bendix was off 4¾. Auburn Automobile was down 3½.

A few spots managed to withstand the break. Insull Utility Investments closed 2 points higher and the preferred gained 15 points. The debenture 5s were up 5 points. On the other hand, Middle West Utilities lost 3½.

Electric Household Utilities sold up 3½ in the early dealings, but was unable to hold all the gain in the face of the general movement. The upward movement had to do with expectations that 1928 will be registered as the second largest year in the company's history following upon the company's worst year, which was 1927.

Reports were current that the annual statement to be issued soon will show net earnings of around $2.50 a share, compared with $101,731, or 27 cents a share on the 375,102 shares of $10 par stock outstanding.

Reports on Income.

Ceco, selling ex-rights, was down 12 points in the radio division, while U. S. Radio finished 10 points lower. Grigsby-Grunow shot up 3½ to 160, but turned soft and closed 6½ lower.

Muncie Gear "A" and "B" stocks were slightly lower. The company reported that directors will take action on the class "A" dividend of 50 cents quarterly next week. The annual report to be issued soon will show net for 1928 of around $6.50 a share on the "A" stock and $3 a share on the "B" stock.

The Universal Theaters Concession company reported net income of $64,333, or $1.10 a share on the 40,000 shares of class "A" stock outstanding for 1928. This compares with $3,854, or nine cents a share in 1927. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1928, shows current assets and current liabilities of $201,587 and $9,565, respectively, against $127,175 and $12,055, at the end of 1927.

Stock Exchange Prepares to Transfer Seat Rights

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Preparations were begun today by many members of the New York Stock exchange to transfer their rights in the 275 membership created to take care of an increasing demand for exchange seats without loss to old members. The greatest satisfaction has been expressed by most brokers with the new arrangement.

The governing committee of the exchange today appointed Richard Whitney, Allen L. Lindley, and Warren B. Nash as a committee to make such arrangements as may be necessary to pass on all questions arising in connection with the transfer by members of their proportionate parts of additional memberships referred to in the resolution adopted by the governing committee Jan. 24 last.

Adopt Regulations.

The special committee has adopted regulations with regard to rights to the new memberships which state that all bids and offers for rights shall be in multiples of $500. Until a member has transferred his right any transfer of his membership must carry with it his interest in the additional memberships.

There will be three types of bids that may be made by applicants for memberships. They may bid for rights of four members for membership ex rights, or for membership with rights.

No sale of a stock exchange seat has been made since the extra membership plan was suggested two weeks ago. The last price paid for a seat was $625,000. This would make a seat ex rights worth about $500,000.

Rules for Transfers.

All transfers by members of the exchange of their rights to additional memberships must be made through the secretary's office on forms provided by the exchange.

No right may be transferred except to an applicant for membership who is approved by the committee on admissions and who is contracting to acquire the rights of four members. All bids and offers to purchase or sell rights received by the secretary up to noon Feb. 18 will be tabulated, and, when necessary, precedence among equal bids and offers will be determined by lot.

Bids or offers received after noon Feb. 18 will take precedence in order of time when received by the secretary of the exchange.

REPORT CHICAGOANS WILL ORGANIZE NEW INVESTMENT CORP.

A new financial corporation, backed by a number of wealthy Chicagoans and sponsored by Field, Glore & Co., investment bankers, is being organized. The capitalization will range between $60,000,000 and $100,000,000 eventually, although the concern will start off with a smaller sum, according to reports in La Salle street yesterday.

It is understood the major business of the company will be to buy stocks of companies which are closely held or have no regular market. Instances frequently arise where a large interest in a middle west company can be acquired at a favorable price from individuals who have built up the business or from an estate and heirs. Such securities later could be split up and marketed or the company reorganized and refinanced in a way whereby shares could be offered to the public.

Air Reduction Co. Reports Larger Chemical Profits

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Aided by the largest profits in its history for the last quarter of 1928, the Air Reduction company, producer of nitrogen, oxygen, and other gases and chemicals, today reported a big increase in profits for the year over its 1927 earnings. The 1928 total was $3,208,993, equal to $4.60 a share on 696,793 no par shares, against $2,412,596, or $10.74 a share on 224,597 shares, in 1927. The stock was split three shares for one last March.

DEMAND NEW MARGIN SCALE FOR N. Y. STOCKS

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—The stock market continued its downward course today, but in a slightly more decorous manner. There was grief enough for all before the day was done, but the panicky selling which characterized yesterday's storm was absent most of the session. It was as if the sorely buffeted market had become resigned to its fate, yet was determined to effect a dignified retreat.

Still groggy from one of the most severe trouncings it ever had taken, the market staggered along through the morning under the stimulus of smelling salts administered by optimistic bulls. There was a brisk rally, a sinking spell and then a feeble upward bulge was ironed smooth when a new money scare flattened out the list like a steam roller does wet asphalt.

Sounds Dirge.

The heavy calling of bank loans sounded a dirge heard at every trading post and as the calls mounted to more than $40,000,000 there followed a prompt stiffening of the call money rate, which soared from 6 to 9 per cent.

A wave of selling followed and what little improvement had been gained during the morning was lost. Nevertheless, there was no wholesale dumping of stocks and total sales were under 4,600,000 shares. The end of the session found the list near its low for the day and from 3 to 10 points further down.

There was more separating of the plums from the lemons today than yesterday for there was evidence of discriminating selling and not all of the good went down with the bad. A few choice issues were able to make progress against the trend but their journey upstream was short.

Opinion of Traders.

The action of banks in calling loans was held by traders to indicate their indorsement of the federal reserve board's threat to take drastic action to curb the flow of money into speculative circles. It also was said in the financial district that a member of the local Federal Reserve bank had privately let it be known that all of What Is An Investment Trust?

GUIDED by a history of more than half a century of successful and conservative operation in Europe, the so-called "investment trust" is now attaining a popularity in the United States that challenges the attention of all investors. Based on the principle of extremely careful diversification of security holdings and constant and exacting professional supervision, these investment companies of the general management type have solved the problem of scientific investment.

We have been identified with the financing of a number of such companies and we recommend their obligations for investment. The bonds may be had at prices to yield about 5.75% income. Some of them selling at higher prices bear warrants giving the holder the right for several years to purchase stock of the company at very advantageous figures. We shall be pleased to supply further information upon request.

Lighting Europe and Japan

Sote Hydro Electric Plant, Nippon Electric Power Co., Japan

The French, the Germans, the Italians, the Japanese all use electric light just as we do in this country. They pay their bills regularly the same as we do, and if they don't pay them their current is shut off the same as in this country. The incandescent bulbs are almost identical with those in America—so are the switches, lamps, and other fixtures. The current is generated in much the same manner as here, either from water power or huge steam turbines.

The large electric light and power companies of leading foreign countries compare favorably in earning power and financial stability with those of the United States. In many cases, the ratio between net earnings and interest charges is even better than in companies of like character in this country.

Bonds of the leading foreign electric light and power companies when sponsored by an experienced investment banker and surrounded with adequate safeguards offer an unusual opportunity to American investors. We believe that bonds of this character can properly be included in the average investor's holdings—the proportion depending upon his individual situation including the amount and nature of his other investments.

Utility, Aviation Shares Show Strength.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Prices followed an irregular trend on the curb market today with considerable nervousness exhibited because of unstable money conditions and fear of what the federal reserve bank might do Monday. With the call money rate shooting up to 9 per cent pressure was renewed against high priced specialties, but utility shares were well supported at the opening and held their gains in most instances.

The advance in utilities was executed behind Electric Bond and Share securities which went soaring to 254 at one time and closed with a net advance of 22 points at 245. American Super Power A gained 3¾, B, 2¼; Electric Investors, 3⅞; United Gas Improvement, 1⅝; Associated Gas and Electric warrants, 5; and Arizona Power, 5½.

Renewed Activity.

Aviation shares showed renewed activity and considerable strength also. Gains of from 1 to as much as 4 points were registered in four or five of these stocks. Weakness was plentiful, however, and the industrials as well as specialties were affected.

Several weak features in the industrials included Grigsby Grunow, off 13 points; Sparks Withington, off 5¼; Hiram Walker, 2; and American Cyanamid B, 2½.

New stock of Goldman Sachs Trading, as the result of the 100 per cent stock dividend, was admitted to dealings, the initial sale taking place at 112¾. The old shares were up 1¼ above the previous close.

Lose Oil Leaders.

The oils had apparently lost their leaders, and the majority of them closed at lower levels. Standard Oil of Indiana, bell wether of the group, dropped fractionally. Others that lost ground were Gulf Oil, off 2⅝; Standard Oil of Kentucky, new, 5; Indiana Pipeline, 5; and Penn-Mexico Fuel, 1¾.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco.

N. L. M.—The trend of earnings of Liggett & Myers Tobacco company is still upward.

Even with severe competition in cigarets and reduced prices, the company is able to show some increase in earnings for 1928 over 1927, carrying on the improvement of the four years preceding.

Profits of $6.32 a share on the common stocks for 1928 compare with $6.27 a share in 1927.

These earnings are on 2,614,238 combined shares of common and common B stocks of $25 par value.

A $1 common extra is to be paid March 1 in addition to the regular $4 rate, the same as a year before.

After payment of preferred and larger common dividends in 1928 the surplus for the year was $4,761,467, against $7,126,358 for 1927.

RAILROAD EARNINGS

CHICAGO AND NORTHWESTERN.

CHICAGO AND EASTERN ILLINOIS.

GRAND RAPIDS RAILROAD.

For the year ended Dec. 31 net income was $119,266 after depreciation, interest, taxes and all other charges. No comparable figure is available for the previous year, but for the twelve months ended April 30, 1928, the company reported net income of $128,687. Gross earnings in 1928 were $1,574,171, against $1,675,352 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1927, the latter figure including operations of predecessor company for four months.

WALL ST. STILL GROGGY; PRICES RETREAT AGAIN

But Selling Panic Does Not Reappear.

Wall street is of the opinion the re-duction rate will be raised at Mon-day's meeting of the New York Federal eserve directors, but it does not ex-pect such action to cause any great urry.

Today found most of the pool mem-bers and professional traders at home acking up for an extra long week end acation. They were out of the mar-et and will remain out until Wednes-day. Tomorrow's short session has een called off, Monday will be light and Tuesday is a holiday.

While the stock market governors explained the reserve bank's threats aid nothing to do with suspending aturday's trading, but that the ac-ion was decided on because of the influenza epidemic and piled up busi-ness, no one is taking this seriously. It is known stock market officials want breathing spell to let the latest money flurry die down, and with a holiday coming on top of a week end they think now is the time to take it.

Among Declines.

The fresh downturn of the stock et was led by such seasoned issues s Allied Chemical, which sold off 8¾ points; American Telephone and Tele-graph, which dropped 2⅞; Baldwin Locomotive, down 10; Byers company, off 4⅝; Chrysler, off 4⅝; Curtiss Aero, off 3; Goodyear Tire, down 5; Mont-gomery Ward, 4; Real Silk Hosiery, 4½; Simmons, 4; Union Carbon, 5½; and Wright Aero, 5 points.

United States Steel, General Motors, General Electric, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Anaconda, and a number of other top grade stocks broke into new low ground for the session during the late trading, but their swings were not so wide as those of many others.

The strong and steady support given the copper shares and some of the rails, in fact, was one of the features of the session. The coppers had started out bravely after the opening and were well bought throughout the forenoon.

Western Union to Pay Out $1,500,000 in Bonuses

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Nearly 40,000 employés of the Western Union Tele-graph company, including messengers, will share in the distribution of about $1,500,000 which has been set aside from the company's 1928 earnings for the employés' income participation plan, it was announced today. The distribution will be made on St. Val-entine's day, and every employé who has been with the company nineteen months or more will be eligible to share in the fund.

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE

In a generally weaker market Chi-cago Rivet and Machine stood out yesterday on the Chicago curb both for activity and strength. Cities Serv-ice was the other progressive issue. Most of the active stocks declined a point or less, including Transformer, Link Belt, and Harrison's Orange Huts, while Temple closed unchanged. Elgin National Watch dropped to a new low since listing on the local ex-change in a 1½ slump to 68¼. The principal decline was registered by Na-tional Family Stores whose common fell four points and preferred almost four. Other issues that sold off were American Rolling Mills, City Radio, De Forest, Harrison's and Polymet.

The Chicago curb will be closed today in common with the other exchanges.

Solvay Process Co. Buys Quarry Property, Report

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—It was re-ported in Wall street today that the Solvay Process company, Syracuse, N. Y., subsidiary of the Allied Chem-ical and Dye corporation, has enlarged its quarry holdings along the Lake Ontario shore district through pur-chase of the Adams-Buffer company of Chaumont, with its 119 acres of lime-stone property. The expansion was said to have been made in anticipa-tion of eventual exhaustion of Sol-vay's limestone at Jamesville, near Syracuse.

FAMINE REPORTS BRING ADVANCE IN WHEAT PRICES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Famine reports from parts of China, Bessarabia, and South Africa, with rationing of bread in some sections of Russia outweighed all other factors yesterday in the wheat market and resulted in a higher level of values, the May moving up ic early to a high of $1.28¾.

Selling against offers checked the advance and toward the last there was selling of futures by some of the early buyers due to the weakness in corn and the finish was unchanged to ⅛c higher with March, $1.24; May, $1.27¼, and July, $1.29@1.29⅛.

Corn was sold freely on an early bulge and declined 1⅛@1⅜c from the high with the close ⅝@⅞c lower, March being 95⅜c and May 98⅝@98¾c. Oats were unchanged to ¼c lower with March 52c, and May 52¾c, while rye was ¼@½c lower. March being $1.10¼ and May $1.09⅛.

News Favors Holders.

Reports of a scarcity of food in parts of Europe and Asia, combined with the continued unfavorable weather conditions abroad, and a better demand for cash grain from the continent and the United Kingdom were the dominating factors in the market. Liverpool closed ⅝@⅞d higher, ignoring the decline in North America on Thursday. Buenos Aires was up ⅛@⅝c, while Winnipeg was ⅛c lower.

Cold weather continues in the American southwest, but sections that have been complaining of a lack of snow covering of late, have received more or less moisture in the past 48 hours, as much as 6 inches of snow falling in western Kansas. Apprehension of crop damage continues to be expressed because of the ice which has formed over part of the area, especially east of the Mississippi river. Export sales at the seaboard aggregated 200,000 to 300,000 bu. The southwest offered No. 2 hard winter to come here at a price equal to 2½c under Chicago May, but no purchases were reported.

Liquidation in Corn

Local bulls were in the buying side of corn, but outside buying orders failed to appear, and later there was liquidation by tired longs and also pressure from some of the early buyers and the market reacted sharply. An easier tone in the cash market had some effect, and more than offset the advance of ⅛c in the basis for cash grain at the Gulf. The local spot basis was steady to 1c lower with country offerings to arrive small, but receipts at terminal markets are fairly liberal, and about normal for this season.

Lard Gets Support; Prices Are Advanced

Good scattered buying of lard by commission houses attributed to eastern and foreign traders took the offerings by packers and made a close at net gains of 12½c on May and 17½@20c on other months. Liverpool was 3@7½d higher with cash trade fair. Export clearances were 1,582,000 lbs.

Bellies were offered fairly and closed 12½@15c higher on May and July, while ribs were 2½@10c higher, July leading. Cash trade was within moderate limits and a good average for the season. Exports of bacon were 50,000 lbs.

Hogs had a sharp advance to $10.40 as the top, but closed easy. Prices follow:

EGGS AT NEW HIGH

Heavy short covering in fresh gathered February eggs advanced prices to 30¼c, a new high, and 1¾c over the finish of Thursday's session, equal to $165 per car. Profit taking caused a reaction to 29¾c at the close with a net gain of 1¾c. Unfavorable weather conditions, small receipts and a strong speculative market were the bullish influences. April storage closed unchanged at 27¼c. Sales were 162 cars and receipts 7,134 cases.

Butter prices were on the upgrade with February selling up to 48¼c and closing ¼c net higher for the day at 48c, and March gained a like amount, finishing at 47¾c. Production of the 157 plants of the American Creamery Butter Manufacturers association for the last week was 4,416,000 lbs, or 3¼ per cent less than last year. Sales were 56 cars and receipts 6,388 tubs.

Hogs soared to a new high point for the season yesterday, then reacted and lost practically all of the advance, closing almost in line with the general selling the previous day. Extreme top reached $10.40 at the start, highest since Oct. 12 and $1.90 above the low day of the season established on Dec. 21.

Prices averaged 20c higher at $10, against an average of $8.40 at the low time less than two months ago. Prices are mostly 25c above the close of last week. Shippers and small local packers were again the principal buyers, outsiders taking 18,000 head. Local packers bought a combined total of 21,100, including 9,000 averaging in tower at $10.00@10.08, and in weight 250@280 lbs. Bulk of the day's final offerings sold at $9.85@10.15. About 6,000 hogs were left at the close.

Yesterday's small supply of cattle sold generally steady, but still showed 25@25c advance since the low time of the week. The best available averaged 1,300 lbs. at $13.50, with 650 lb stock at $13.25. Prevailing quotations are $12@2.40 below the corresponding week in 1928. Butcher stock show gains of 25c since a week ago. Calves broke $2 during the week. Stockers and feeders were slow and steady.

Lambs Bring $17.35

Following a stronger opening yesterday, lambs advanced mostly 15@25c, closing at the high point of the day, with best to city butchers and on shipping account at $17.35. Bulk of total offerings brought $16.00@17.00, a band of about 1,900 medium quality handy weights lacking finish at the inside figure.

Fat lambs are selling 10@15c below the close of last week. Yearlings and aged sheep are steady to 25c lower compared with a week ago. Country buyers filled small orders for feeder and shearing lambs at steady prices.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 9,000 hogs and 1,000 sheep, against 529 cattle, 8,276 hogs and 7,223 sheep the previous Saturday and 494 cattle, 14,145 hogs and 1,731 sheep, a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 48,000 to 75,000. F. Knutson marked 48,000, C. Southwick 49,000, W. T. Renker and A. G. Welhener 50,000, C. Daley 51,000, Geo. Brittain 52,000, J. T. Brown 53,000, H. Pattison 54,000, J. M. Waters and F. W. Young 60,000, H. C. Carlson, S. Lund and J. A. Bunyan 65,000, F. M. Sherwood 70,000 and G. M. Chandler and Wm. Garrett 75,000.
